About the book

Book 1 in an action-packed dystopian adventure series set in the near-future post-melt Arctic.

The last ice cap has melted, and the world is on the brink of collapse. A deadly force—Terra Electrica—has been unleashed. It feeds on electricity. It is infecting civilization.

In this chaotic, rapidly changing reality, 12-year-old Mani has lost her family and community to the Terra Electrica. Armed only with some ancestral wisdom and a powerful, ancient wooden mask she was never meant to inherit so soon, she suddenly finds herself responsible for the fate of the world.

Can Mani piece everything together and harness her newfound powers in time to save humanity?

THE DARKNESS OF COLOURS

Mr Martin Blasco and translated by Claire Storey

A beautifully rendered translation of the winner of Argentina's Premio al libro mejor editado and Belgium's Prix Farniente

- Over 4 star average rating on Goodreads, with 2,500 reviews
- From a multi-award winning author published widely in Spanish, German and French
- A compelling read and great example of a book from Latin America that is not defined by struggles for identity or "otherness"

About the book

An historical thriller narrated from two different perspectives, in two eras. The novel revolves, around kidnapping of five babies during the night of 5th of April 1885. This is the start of the experiment into the idea of nature vs nurture. What happens if these children are given different upbringing? Twenty-five years later the children now grown up suddenly reappear on the doorsteps of their biological parents. Confused by his daughter's memory loss, one parent hires Alejandro a journalist to investigate. What he discovers shocks him to the core.
