HIMALI® Born in Nepal | Based in Boulder

MOUNTAIN APPAREL BUILT FOR YOUR BIGGEST PURSUITS.

There is no denying that getting deep into a snowy mountain range tends to put us in a different headspace. It's where the icy air in our lungs, our racing heartbeat, and the majestic views all fight for our attention. It's where our decisions have real and immediate consequences - and it's a big part of what makes our lives feel vibrant, interesting, and meaningful.

Creating high quality apparel that allows you to perform at your highest level is at the core of what we do and informs every decision that we make.

We've utilized high end textiles, coupled with performance based design, to develop an array of apparel made to stand up to the highest and harshest conditions on Earth. Our gear is built for you to push your limits and pursue your biggest goals.

TENDI SHERPA COLLECTION

For someone who has reached the summit of Mt. Everest 13 times, Tendi Sherpa is an exceptionally grounded man. Driven not by fame or glory, his love affair with the world's tallest peaks was initially fueled by hopes of being well fed and properly clothed.

At just 13 years old, Tendi finagled his way into a job as an equipment porter on a 24 day expedition in the Annapurna region of Nepal. He had to hide underneath a client's luggage on the way to the expedition since he was too young to officially be on the trip. Once he was on the mountain, it was too late for them to turn him away. A very long way from Mt. Everest and Tendi's home village near Mt. Makalu, and lacking the proper gear or even a good pair of shoes, Tendi performed exceptionally well. He managed 95 pounds of equipment, porting it to altitudes as high as 17,000 feet.

A year later, he summited the 21,247-foot Mera Peak. It became clear that he was far from average, even for a climbing Sherpa. At 19, he was given his first opportunity to climb on Everest and he worked as a part of a group effort that removed roughly 2.4 tons of garbage from the mountain. Only two years later, he received his opportunity to become one of Mt. Everest's youngest climbing guides.

His dedication to excelling in his chosen career has paid off handsomely. He became the 2nd Nepali to become a IFM-GA/UIAGM certified guide (the equivalent of getting your doctorate in mountain guiding) & has completed Longline Helicopter Rescue Training. He has continued to elevate his guiding to not only 13 summits of Everest (from a mix of the North and South sides), but impressive summits around the globe.

Tendi maintains a reverence for nature and a child-like appreciation for both the places he has gone and the people that he has met along the way. He first started practicing English while working at a coffee shop in Kathmandu, where he would find unassuming customers to practice with for as long as they would allow (they either loved it or made it a point to never go back). Now, he speaks over 8 languages fluently and works as a guide for many distinguished guiding companies, notably as a Sirdar (lead guide) for our guiding partner 'Climbing The Seven Summits'. He is also co-owner of TAG Nepal Treks & Expedition - a Nepali guiding company.

When he is not guiding, you can usually find Tendi working for his nonprofit, the Tendi Sherpa Foundation; an organization that builds schools and safe transportation in rural areas of Nepal. He lives in Kathmandu with his Wife and their two daughters.

The Tendi Sherpa Collection is built to help you exude kindness and confidence as you explore the far reaches of the globe.

ED VIESTURS COLLECTION

On May 12th, 2005, Ed Viesturs became the first (and to date the only) American to summit all 14 of the 8,000m peaks. He did so without the use of supplemental oxygen - putting him in a stratospheric category of mountaineers. He calls this 18 year long project "Endeavor 8000", coming up with the idea after becoming the first American to summit the 'Big Three' - Everest, K2, and Kangchenjunga.

Along his journey to complete Endeavor 8000, he received the American Alpine Club Sowles Award in 1992 for his participation in two rescues on K2, as well as the historic Lowell Thomas Award by the Explorer's Club for outstanding achievement in the field of mountaineering in 2002. It placed him among the rank of elite climbers such as Sir Edmund Hillary. In 2005, when he completed his quest to complete the world's 14 x 8000 meter peaks, he was named Adventurer of the Year by National Geographic.

Despite the numerous (well deserved) accolades, Ed remains remarkably humble and grounded. It is clear that his success was rooted in a true love and respect for the mountains, traits that he exemplifies to this day. He serves as an advocate for Big City Mountaineers (BCM), an organization that instills critical life skills in under-resourced youth through wilderness mentoring experiences that help kids to stay in school, reduce violence and avoid drug use.

Ed now lives in Ketchum, Idaho with his wife of 24+ years, Paula, and their four children. He continues to conduct speaking engagements, consult, go on adventures, and guide globally. In August 2018, he made his 215th ascent of 14,410' Mt. Rainier.

The Ed Viesturs Collection is light, efficient, and thoughtfully designed with simplicity in mind.

PRIMALOFT®

Primaloft® specializes in creating synthetic insulation layers that are warm, lightweight, breathable, packable, and insulate when wet.

PERTEX®

Durable, long lasting performance is the foundation of all Pertex® fabrics and is never a point of compromise.

POLARTEC®

Polartec® has perfected the art of creating fabrics that balance warmth, breathability, performance, and comfort.

TORAY®

By considering the unique performance needs of each fabric, Toray is able to create truly high performing textiles.

YKK®

YKK is dedicated to perfecting the details, which is why YKK zippers have become a staple for premium products.

BLUESIGN®

We work with bluesign® system partners to ensure that our textiles are good for the planet, the people that make them, and the people who use them.

RESPONSIBLE DOWN STANDARD

The Responsible Down Standard aims to ensure that our down is sourced from ethical supply chains and farms.

FILL POWER

A higher fill power equates to higher quality down, and an increased ability to trap air between the down plumes. This means, if you are comparing the same weight/amount of down, a higher fill power down will keep you warmer.

RECYCLED MATERIALS

We use high performing recycled materials in most of our fleece styles and are working towards incorporating recycled materials in the rest of our product line.
