About:

Founded in 2009, Ousterhout Wine is a boutique producer of Pinot Noir Rosé from the Russian River Valley, Sauvignon Blanc from Alexander Valley, and Zinfandel from Alexander and Dry Creek valleys. Elegant and balanced single-vineyard wine is the trademark of Ousterhout Wine.

A longtime fan of California wines, Dr. Douglas Ousterhout started his medical practice in San Francisco after attending Stanford University. In pursuit of warmer weather and a quiet respite, he and his wife Nancy visited Sonoma wine country often before purchasing a small hillside estate in Healdsburg. There are five planted acres of predominantly Zinfandel on the property. Douglas and Nancy continue to split their time between San Francisco and Healdsburg and enjoy the perks of being vintners.

With over thirty years of wine industry experience, Jack Steffen joined the Ousterhout team in 2012 and has big plans for the winery. As the Director of National Sales and Operations, Jack has successfully increased distribution throughout the US. Under his guidance, Ousterhout wines have received significant press coverage and attention from major wine publications, bloggers, and members of the trade.
