

1852 ADELAIDE POUND - TYPE II

x150%

On the 28th January 1852, desperate to boost a failing economy, the Bullion Act of 1852 was passed. The act allowed the formation of the Adelaide Assay Office, assigned to assessing the purity, weight and characteristics of gold purchased from the Victorian gold fields.

To overcome issues of an unpopular ingot, an amendment was made to the act allowing ten shilling, one, two and five pound gold pieces to be struck by the Government Assay Office in Adelaide.

In a rush to produce the coins the first of the designs by engraver Joshua Payne failed with around 50-100 coins exhibiting a severe die crack on the reverse at about 12 o'clock. This is now known as the Adelaide Pound Type I.

A new die was quickly produced to replace the cracked die with the only major change being a crenellated inner circle on the reverse instead of the beaded inner circle of type 1. This is known as the Adelaide Pound Type II.

Provenance: Sold by M.R.Roberts to a NSW private collector in 1982.

2023 BOX JELLYFISH SILVER $1

Struck by the Royal Australian Mint, the Australian Box Jellyfish is the fourth release in the 'Australia's Most Dangerous' series.

The largest species in the Box Jellyfish family, the Australian Box Jellyfish is named for its box-like shaped bell that can reach up to 30cm in diameter. With up to 60 tentacles extending up to 3 metres long, this jellyfish can swim up to 8km/hr, unlike other jellyfish that float passively on the current.

PROCLAMATION CO

In late 1800 the Porpoise arrived at Sydney Cove with almost 4 tons (£550 worth) of 1 oz copper, 1797 dated cartwheel pennies struck by Matthew Boulton. Although not confirmed, it is highly likely that the coins were accompanied by directions from the authorities back in England to rectify the unsatisfactory situation of varying exchange rates for the various coins then circulating in the colony. In a bid to ensure that the newly arrived coins were not immediately traded back out, Governor Philip Gidley King issued a proclamation on the 19th November 1800 which artificially inflated the value of coins arriving in the colony of New South Wales. The value of the copper coins was effectively doubled. He also took the opportunity to set the values at which other silver and gold coins then in circulation were to trade. These latter valuations were probably in line with valuations derived by the English Treasury and provided for only a small premium above their nominal values.

WALLAL CENTENARY AUSTRALIA TESTS EINSTEIN'S THEORY

In 1922, the eyes of the international scientific community were focused on an expedition of scientists to Wallal, Western Australia to photograph a total eclipse due on 21 September.

Precise measurements of the apparent position of the stars near the eclipsed Sun were photographed and provided the evidence supporting Einstein's revolutionary Theory of General Relativity.

To celebrate the centenary, the Royal Australian Mint have struck an uncirculated aluminium bronze $1 and a domed shape, $5 silver proof.

THAILAND BULLET MONEY

Thailand's monetary system dates back to the 13th century where the currency was called "Pod Duang" by the Thai's and the rest of the world knew them as "Bullet Money". This form of currency was used for more than 500 years before it was replaced.

In 1904, a proclamation was issued to withdraw the bullet money from circulation and replaced by Fiat coinage.

We have available silver bullet money from the reigns of King Rama II to King Rama V (1804-1824), condition FINE-VF.

MILLION NUMBERED SERIALS

Banknotes with a serial number of one million (1000000) are extremely rare. Banknote numbering machines had only six printing wheels. When the seventh digit was required to complete each series, the serial number was printed on a hand press. The practice was continued with decimalisation until 1971 when each series ended with 999999.
