

FAIRKIND

OUR STORY

It all began in a small town in Uganda.

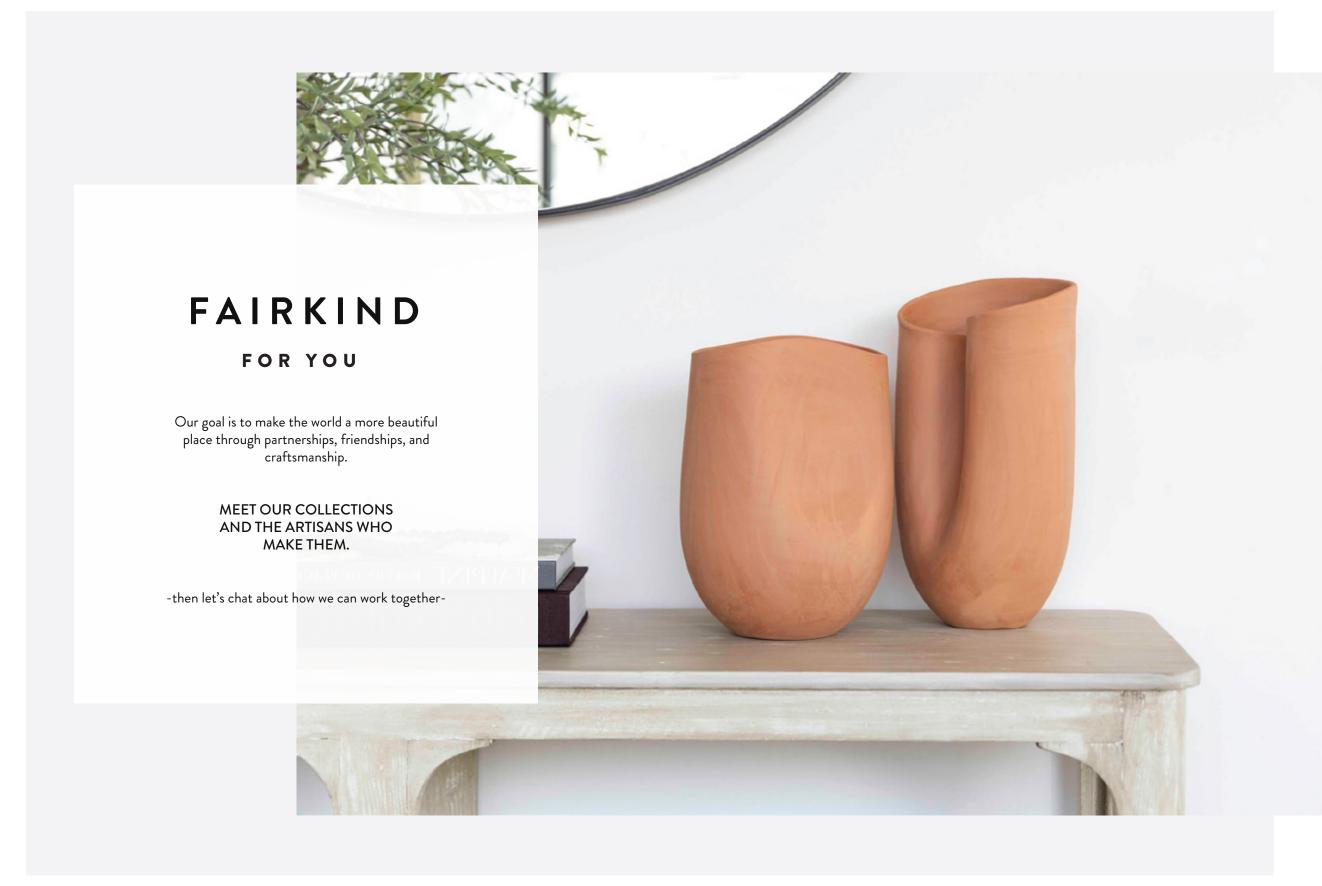

I was fresh out of college and eager to see the world. As fate would have it, I found myself in Uganda, working amongst some of the most talented and inspiring women I had ever met.

These women were master artisans. I watched for hours as they handcrafted goods with a skill and grace I had never seen before. I was completely mesmerized and quickly realized I wanted to be a part of this world.

I decided to dedicate my career to bringing artisans' products further than they'd been before, in a way that paid fairly and provided opportunity and growth in local communities.

Fairkind was born, and the dream of a new future for artisan goods began.
Today, I'm thrilled by just how beautiful that future is becoming.

THE ARTISANS OF BIR BOU REKBA

Nestled on the coast of the Mediterranean Sea lies the majestic country of Tunisia. There, olive trees have grown and flourished for centuries.

Our artisan partners collect sustainably sourced wood from local groves, then set to work handcrafting each piece in the collection.

From their small workshop in Bir Bou Rekba, artisans are paid fair trade wages and have a safe work environment to practice their craft. The stability of consistent work allows them to dedicate their full-time to the goal of preserving their craft for future generations.

THE ARTISANS OF GAYAZA

Tropical rains fall over Uganda, giving way to green grasses and lush vegetation, creating the perfect pastures for herds of Ankole cattle.

Native to Uganda, Ankole cows are known for their stunningly large horns, each as unique as a fingerprint. The horn is ethically sourced as a food by-product and our artisan partners have perfected the art of recycling it into one of a kind goods.

Artisans are paid premium wages for their skills and have a proper workshop to practice their craft. In a community where consistent work is hard to come by, our artisans are able to provide for their families and invest in a brighter future - from sending their children to school to purchasing land for a future home.

THE WEAVERS OF PAUCARA

Tucked away in a quiet mountain village in the Central Highlands, alpacas graze on fields of wild ichu grass that grows in the high altitudes of the Andes.

Using ethically sourced wool from local shepherds, artisans hand-loom each intricate design, taking a week to make from start to finish. The skill and detail of their work is simply stunning and the result is second to none.

Alpaca has been a part of Andean culture since ancient times and today, provides thousands of jobs across the country. Our artisan partners are working to preserve their traditional weaving methods for future generations. Artisans are paid premium prices for their skills and each product is made exclusively in a fair trade environment.
