2. Pladda by Rebecca Clow

Pladda is a top-down, raglan sweater with an all-over colourwork design. This was inspired by the idea of a cosy weekend in a cabin when the mornings and evenings are still chilly, and you want to be wrapped up in your favourite cosy blanket. The easy shape makes it versatile to wear whilst the graphic colourwork adds a cool and modern touch.

5. Tepliy by Olga Putano

Tepliy is “warm” in Ukrainian. When it’s time to pull out your warm, cozy sweaters for the cold seasons, this is the sweater I think of. That day there is a chill in the air and you need an extra layer to wear on your evening walk, Tepliy is there to provide that comfort while keeping you from overheating. Tepliy is the sweater you will be sad to put away for the summer, and it’s the first one you’ll wear when the weather allows.

7. Heligan by Qing Studio

Heligan is as simple as charming: the cables do all the work, creating a wonderful sense of movement as they cascade down the body. The sweater is worked from top to bottom, in the round. The increases are worked within the cables, so they almost double in size by the time you are finished. At the end comes the fun part where you unravel all the stitches between the cable columns setting the top free to swing around the body!
