

The wooden DUNES plates are the result of a shape study conducted by Studio Simple. Through the classic process of turning plates in wood, they ended up with a very simple-looking shape. The larger versions speak for themselves as distinctive underplates. "At home, we use the smaller plates as breakfast or lunch plates. The acacia wood is food-safe and easily washed by hand," says Jeroen Worst from Studio Simple.

STUDIO SIMPLE

The marriage between Serax and Studio Simple is of the long and very successful kind. Ann Vereecken and Jeroen Worst possess the gift of highlighting the beauty of everyday, almost obvious objects, to add something special to simple things. The list of designs they are adding to their Serax portfolio this year is far from spectacular, but this is precisely what makes them so special - if only because there is a very sustainable idea behind rediscovering the simple things in life.
