THE FINE ARTS.

SOME IMPORTANT ARTISTIC DECORATIONS IN SCHOOLS AND COLLEGES—RADCLIFFE ADORNS HERSELF.

The movement for the decoration of the interior walls of schoolhouses, which is fostered and encouraged by the Public School Art League of America, is taking deep hold of the popular mind. For some years past there has been a growing custom for the graduating classes in schools and colleges to leave behind it some work of art as a memento.

The present year this custom has been more extended than ever. Upon the walls of the Girls' High and Latin School has recently been placed a large sculpture in high relief, descriptive of the visit of Orpheus to Hades for the purpose of rescuing his wife, Eurydice. At the threshold Orpheus unfortunately glances backward for rescuing his wife, Eurydice. The relief is a copy of the celebrated marble in the museum at Naples.

Upon the walls of the Boston Latin School has been placed a beautiful relief depicting a chariot race. It is a copy of a marble found in the ruins of Herculaneum, and now in the museum at Naples.

The West Roxbury High School building has been adorned with a bust of Benjamin Franklin. A bust of Franklin has also been placed in the Franklin School, Waltham street. Busts of Grant and Franklin have been placed in the Phillips School.

A large bust of Juno has been placed in the Gibson School in the Dorchester district. In the Edward Everett School, Dorchester, has been placed a bust of Abraham Lincoln. A fine bust of Benjamin Franklin has been placed in the Bowditch School, Jamaica Plain.

The graduating class of the Fall River High School has placed in the building, as its gift, a copy, in full size, of the famous antique statue of Diana of the Chase, otherwise known as the Diana of Versailles. The original of this statue, of which this is a beautiful copy in plaster, is in the Louvre.

In the Worcester Academy has been placed recently a beautiful full-size copy of the famous Apollo Belvedere, the original of which stands in the gallery of the Vatican at Rome. It is the gift of the graduating class.

The building of the High School, Clinton, has been adorned with a fine antique bust of Juno.

The graduating class of the Normal School at New Paltz, N. Y., has presented to the school a fine copy of the colossal antique statue of Sophocles.

The class of '94 of Colby University has added to its collection a full-size statue of Pudicitia, the goddess of modesty. In Hebron Academy, Maine, has been placed a fine copy of the Diana of the Chase, similar to that placed in the Fall River High School.

The class of '94 of Bowdoin College has left behind it a fine statue of Sophocles.

Radcliffe College has been recently adorning herself. The halls and lecture rooms have been profusely adorned with statues, busts and reliefs, copies of some of the finest specimens of classical, renaissance and modern sculpture. The hall has been adorned with a beautiful replica of the groups and processions of singing boys, the work of Luca della Robbia, upon the front of the organ-screen in the Duomo at Florence. The historical lecture-room has been adorned with a fine collection of Greek reliefs and busts, the German and French rooms with sculptures appropriate to their places. In the last-named room, for example, among others is an exquisite copy of a bust of Mme. Recamier, a copy of that in the Louvre. The most recent of these additions has been a fine copy, in full size, of the statue of Pudicitia.

The R. I. School of Design at Providence has recently made a beginning for a foundation of a museum of fine arts in that city. Already a very fair collection of oil and water-color paintings, rugs and tapestries, has been gathered, and the foundation laid for a gallery of statuary. This already contains statues, in full size of the originals of the Venus of Melos, the Faun of Praxiteles (Hawthorne's "Marble Faun"), Donatello's "St. George," and Michael Angelo's "Slave," beside a number of lesser pieces. Mrs. Radeke, the widow of Dr. E. G. Radeke, is especially active in the promotion of this idea.

P. P. CAPRONI & BROTHER beg to return thanks to the many lovers of art who have in the past favored them with their patronage, and to inform them that they have now largely increased facilities for meeting orders with promptness. Especial thanks are due the Public School Art League of America for its patronage, through which they have been enabled to decorate, with their casts, some of the finest school buildings of the country.

With an almost entire renewal of moulds from original sources, and with large and important additions thereto from the most famous galleries of Europe, they feel competent to meet the most exacting requirements.

They beg to call especial attention to the fact that their casts are made under their own constant and careful supervision, an oversight rendered more valuable, they are persuaded, by personal knowledge of, and long experience in, the details of plastic art.

GREEK STATUES.

Original Size.

NO.		HEIGHT. FT. IN.	PRICE.
25	Faun . . . . . Praxiteles	6 3	$60.00
	The "Marble Faun" of Hawthorne. Found in 1701 near the ruins of the villa of Antoninus Pius and placed in the Capitoline Museum, Rome, in 1753. An exquisite description of this statue is found in Hawthorne's wonderful romance.
26	Venus of Melos . . . . . Louvre	7 1	60.00
	Found in 1820 by a peasant in a grotto on the Island of Melos, near the town of that name. Bought for 6000 francs by the Marquis de Riviere, French Ambassador to Turkey, and by him presented to Louis XVIII. An interesting controversy has since been waged as to the attitude of the arms in the original, a question that has never been satisfactorily settled.
27	Niobe and Child . . . . .	7 8	100.00
	Original in the Uffizi Gallery, Florence. Found in 1583 near the Lateran, Rome; removed to Florence in 1775. These two figures were found with twelve others, evidently a group; probably the work of Skopas.
28	Diana of Versailles . . . . . Louvre	7	100.00
	Sometimes called "Diana à la Biche". Date of discovery not known; was carried from Rome to France in the 16th century.
29	Apollo Belvedere . . . . . Rome	7 6	100.00
	Marble Statue found near the end of the 15th century at Capo d'Anzo (Antium). Bought by Julius II., at that time Cardinal Giuliano della Rovera, and placed in the garden of S. Pietro in Vincoli, Rome. When he became Pope (1503) he removed it to the Belvedere of the Vatican.

30	Sophocles . . . . .	7	$100.00
	Original in the Lateran Museum, Rome. Found at Terracina, Italy, about 1839, and presented to Pope Gregory XVI.
31	Discobolus Standing . . . . .	6	65.00
	Found in 1792 in the ruins of an ancient villa on the Via Appia, Rome.
32	Minerva Giustiniani. In the Braccio Nuovo of the Vatican	7 6	100.00
	Marble Statue found near the Church of Santa Marie Sagra Minerva, Rome, date of discovery unknown. It was in the possession of the Giustiniani family in the 17th century. Bought by Pius VII. for the Vatican.
33	Pudicitia (so called) . . . . . Vatican	7	75.00
	A fully draped female figure, believed by some to represent the Goddess of Modesty, by others thought to be a portrait of Livia, wife of Augustus.
34	Antinous . . . . . Capitoline, Rome	6	75.00
	Marble Statue found in Hadrian's Villa near Tivoli. Placed in the Capitoline by Pope Clement XII. This gives an excellent impression of the condition of the Art of Sculpture at Rome in the first half of the second century.
35	Hermes, Olympian . . . . . Praxiteles	7 8	100.00
	Original in Parian marble, found in 1877 lying near its pedestal in the ruin of the Temple of Hera, at Olympia. He bears on his left arm the infant Dionysius, sent by Zeus to be nursed by the Nymphs.
36	Discobolus of Myron . . . . . Vatican	6	65.00
	Found in 1791 in the ruins of Hadrian's Villa and placed by Pius VI. in the Vatican.

62	Niké (or Victory) of Samothrake Louvre	3		15.00
	Found in the Island of Samothrake, 1863. This statue was part of a votive offering, commemorative of a great naval victory, doubtless that of Demetrius of Macedonia over Ptolemy of Egypt, off Cyprus, B.C. 306. It stood upon a pedestal representing the prow of a vessel. The goddess is represented as rushing forward in battle, bearing in one hand a mast and with the other holding a trumpet to her lips. A mechanical reduction from the original, with wings extending about two feet from the body.

The Parthenon—or Temple of the Goddess Athena—was the most beautiful of all Greek buildings, both in its architecture and in the sculpture with which it was decorated. It was built to crown the Acropolis, or citadel, of Athens during the administration of Perikles, and was finished about the year 438 B.C. The architects were Iktinos and Kallikrates, but this is one of the buildings of which Plutarch tells us that Perikles gave the general charge to Phidias. It is most probable, therefore, that he designed, and possibly executed the sculpture of the Temple, and especially the marvellous frieze surrounding its walls, which is the most beautiful work of its kind ever produced. This frieze represented the procession which took place every four years at the great festival of the patron-goddess of the city, one of the chief elements of which was the cavalcade of the sons of Athenian citizens, mounted upon superb horses, probably of Thessalian breed. The selection which we offer of this is the best preserved of what now remains, and is from the western end of the building. All but two blocks of it (Nos. 1 and 2) are still in their original place on the Parthenon: these two are in the British Museum. It represents the preparations for the cavalcade. Some of the men are harnessing their horses, others mounting, and others already on their way. No portion of the frieze better illustrates the variety of the composition or the technical qualities which have made the work famous among sculptors.

The original of this work of art was manufactured for the International Exhibition of Paris, in 1867, and was purchased by the English Government, for the Museum of Science and Art, South Kensington, at a cost of $15,000. It was the work of Morel Ladeuil, who designed and wrought it by the repoussé process in silver and steel, with enrichments in damascened gold. The subjects selected for illustration on this Shield were taken from Milton's "Paradise Lost," 6th book.

Mr. George Wallace (Curator of the South Kensington Museum), when noticing this Shield, wrote thus: "Every face expresses the appropriate mental emotion, or passion. There is awe and fear expressed in the face of Adam, and modesty in that of Eve, as they listen to the recital by Raphael of the conflict between the hosts of Heaven and Hell. The listeners are seated in Eden's bower, shaded with trees, with creeping plants, tender ferns, and spontaneously produced fruits scattered at their feet in rich profusion. Confidence is indicated in the faces of the Hosts of Heaven as they advance to the attack. There is Michael Angelo-like force of drawing in the terrified faces and forms of the defeated rebels, as they are driven out of Heaven, and fall down to perdition in an endless variety of attitudes, recalling the 'Last Judgment.' How fiercely St. Michael wields his flaming sword, as he stands over the prostrate body of the Dragon! Sin and death are represented with their appropriate symbols at the bottom of the Shield, and soaring far above the regions of conflict, strife, defeat, sin and death, seraphic and angelic figures, borne on wings, approach, in attitudes adoring, the cherub-surrounded Emblem of all Light and Life, spiritual and material. The signs of the zodiac, with figures floating, symbolize the rolling year and the flight of time, and delicately worked leafage, in low relief, is introduced to fill up the space not occupied by the illustration of the poem."

	The Barbarini or Portland Vase, height 10 inches	2.50

This celebrated Vase was for more than two centuries the principal ornament of the Barbarini Palace at Rome. It was then generally known as the "Barbarini Vase;" but having been purchased by Sir W. Hamilton, and then sold by him to the Duchess of Portland, it was at her death presented by her son, the Duke of Portland, to the British Museum, where it is now known as the "Portland Cinerary Vase." It was found about the middle of the sixteenth century, inclosed in a marble sarcophagus, within a sepulchral chamber, under the Monte del Grano, two miles and a half from Rome, on the road to Frascati. The tomb is believed to have been that of the Emperor Alexander Severus and his mother, Mammæa. The vase is made of purple glass, ornamented with white opaque figures in bas-relief. The execution of the design is most admirable. The figures in relief are in two groups. In the former of these a female is represented in a recumbent posture, with a cupid hovering over her head and a serpent in her lap, a young man on one side supporting her outstretched arm, and on the other a bearded personage of more mature age attentively regarding her. The latter group, on the opposite side of the vase, consists of a female reclining on a pile of tablets, with her right hand placed upon her head, and holding in her left a lighted torch with the flames downwards—a young man being seated on a pile on one side of her, and a female, holding a rod or staff in the right hand, sitting on the other. On the bottom of the base is a bust of Atyl. The subject of the bas-relief has created much difference of opinion, but it is generally supposed to have reference to the birth of Severus. The vase is ten inches high, and its diameter seven inches at the broadest part, very near the centre, and it has two handles.

WE make a specialty of coloring our casts for home decorations, to correspond with their environment; such as terra cotta, bronze, or a light and soft cream color. This has the effect of taking from the cast the dazzling white appearance. The ivory stain is one of the most satisfactory of these colors. The stain appears darker in the deeper places in the cast, thus bringing out the features and modeling to excellent advantage. These processes do not in the least injure the fine lines or modeling of the cast. Casts so treated may be readily washed without the slightest injury.

TO CLEANSE CASTS.

Plaster Casts prepared as above may be readily cleansed if soiled. Lukewarm water and a sponge or soft brush should be used. The use of soap is not recommended, as it is liable to leave a shining surface. Our experience has been that some of the washing powders—that known as "Pearline" is to be preferred—are the best for this purpose. The cast should be thoroughly rinsed with clear water after cleaning.

CAREFUL attention given to the making of Piece Moulds, and of Waste Moulds from Clay Models.

Modeling Clay and Plaster for Artists and Schools.

Marbles cleaned and repaired, packed and unpacked.

Broken Statuary skilfully repaired.

Casts taken from the living or dead; also, hands, feet, etc.

Statues carefully packed to any part of the United States, Canadas, or South America, either by freight or express, which will be at the charge of the buyer.

A liberal discount will be given to Drawing Schools, Academies, Art Associations, etc.

Cases and cartage will be charged extra at cost price.

Parties will secure prompt and careful execution of orders, as well as advance their own interests, by dealing directly with the manufacturer.

Prices and information regarding any statue found or not to be found in the list, will be cheerfully furnished.

Skilful workmen supplied for mounting Casts, or putting up Reliefs, at any point desired.
