HYBRID TEA & FLORIBUNDA

HYBRID TEA. These roses have a classical formal shaped bloom with pointed petals and symmetrical shape. With usually one flower per stem, they are ideal for picking. Mostly taller in height, hybrid teas are great towards the back of a border or in a formal rose garden. For best results these should be dead headed in summer and pruned in winter to maximise blooming.

FLORIBUNDA. These roses have an abundance of flowers hence on one stem you can average up to 10 or 12 flowers. Some flowers are of hybrid tea shape and form (and smaller in size), but most floribundas are of looser more open petalled form. Floribundas are ideal for borders and hedges and are good for floral work. They can be pruned like hybrid teas or trimmed with hedge shears.

CLIMBERS & RAMBLERS

CLIMBING ROSES. These are often sports of bush roses and make a few big arms that can be trained against a wall, fence or pergola. If trained and pruned correctly the display can be phenomenal, and many of the climbers repeat flower throughout the season. Climbers can be utilised in even very small gardens to give as much display as a big shrub, but with a very small ground space.

RAMBLING ROSES. On the other hand, these are of wilder nature and more suited to larger or country gardens. They are very hardy and look great alongside road fences or can cover difficult areas quickly. Ramblers make many shoots from the base every year and will often sucker if they touch the ground as they are quick to make roots. Many of the ramblers

We recommend adding in some ican 24-Plus Slow Food at planting time. This will provide your plants with 24 months of balanced feeding as and when they need it—it carries on feeding when you forget.

The controlled release fertiliser acts with temperature to provide more fertiliser when the plant growth is active and less when it's not.

No Mess – No Fuss – No Waste

PATIO, PATIO CLIMBERS, SHRUBS & SHRUBLETS

SHRUBS. Comprising of a broad range of types of roses that are very bushy and tall (1.2m and over). Being repeat flowering bushes they are great as gap fillers and for hedges.

SHRUBLETS. These are small bush roses about 1m x 1m in size. Very easy care as they will carry on flowering whether they are pruned or not. A trim with the hedge shears will do for these beauties.

MINIATURE / PATIO BUSH. Patios are smaller in leaf, flower and bush size from the hybrid tea and floribunda. These roses are great for pots, patios, garden, and look good at ground level or as a mini standard. Flowers can be picked and you have varieties with the formal hybrid tea form and the blousy floribunda bunches. Not so many of these are fragrant.
