MAYBE YOU JUST NEED TO SHAKE YOUR BOOTY.

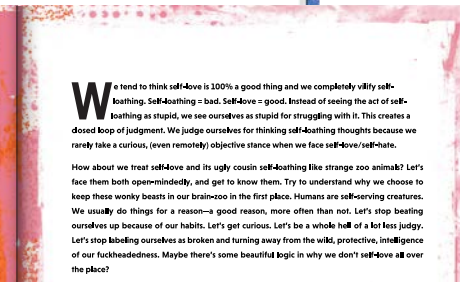

There is a reason that every inspirational movie has that moment where the hero finally decides to go all in on their dream and suddenly blood-pumping music starts playing and they are in a three-minute epic doing-montage where they do their homework, clean their house, learn to dance, and paint the orphanage. The reason movies are like that is because in real life we all need theme music for our epic doing-montages! What are the songs that make you feel like you could kick the absolute shit out of any challenge that comes your way? What songs get you moving and get your head in a Fuck-Yeah-I-Can-Conquer-the-Whole-Fuckin'-World mindset? Remember to listen to these songs regularly and to shake your booty as part of your manifesting practice.

HOW DO YOU DANCE YOUR ASS OFF THEN COME BACK AND WRITE ABOUT HOW IT FELT AND IF IT CHANGED YOUR DAY:

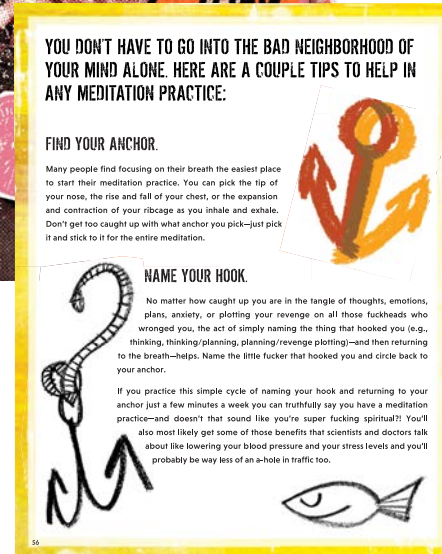

TO THINE OWN ASS BE TRUE (AKA SELF-LOVE)

We tend to think self-love is 100% a good thing and we completely vilify self-boasting. Self-boasting is bad. Self-love is good. Instead of seeing the act of self-boasting as stupid, we see ourselves as stupid for struggling with it. This creates a closed loop of judgment. We judge ourselves for thinking self-boasting thoughts because we rarely take a curious, (even remote!) objective stance when we face self-love/self-hate.

How about we treat self-love and its ugly cousin self-boasting like strange zoo animals? Let's face them both openly-mindedly, and get to know them. Try to understand why we choose to keep these wonky beasts in our brain-cocoon in the first place. Humans are self-serving creatures. We usually do things for a reason—a good reason, more often than not. Let's stop beating ourselves up because of our habits. Let's get curious. Let's be a whole hell of a lot less judgment. Let's stop labeling ourselves as broken and turning away from the wild, protective, intelligence of our fuckheadedness. Maybe there's some beautiful logic in why we don't self-love a little over the place?

YOU DON'T HAVE TO GO INTO THE BAD NEIGHBORHOOD OF YOUR MIND ALONE. HERE ARE A COUPLE TIPS TO HELP IN ANY MEDITATION PRACTICE:

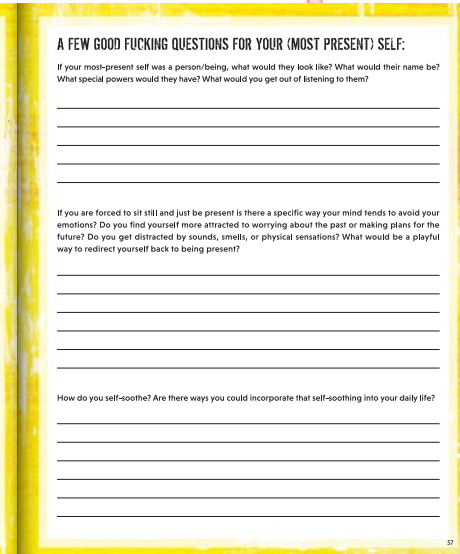

FIND YOUR ANCHOR.

Many people find focusing on their breath the easiest place to start their meditation practice. You can pick the tip of your nose, the rise and fall of your chest, or the expansion and contraction of your ribcage as you inhale and exhale. Don't get too caught up with what anchor you pick—just pick it and stick to it for the entire meditation.

NAME YOUR HOOK.

No matter how caught up you are in the tangle of thoughts, emotions, plans, anxiety, or plotting your revenge on all those fuckheads who wronged you, the act of simply naming the thing that hooked you (e.g., thinking, thinking/planning, planning/revenge plotting)—and then returning to the breath—helps. Name the little fucker that hooked you and circle back to your anchor.

If you practice this simple cycle of naming your hook and returning to your anchor just a few minutes a week you can truthfully say you have a meditation practice—and doesn't that sound like you're super fucking spiritual?! You'll also most likely get some of those benefits that scientists and doctors talk about like lowering your blood pressure and your stress levels and you'll probably be way less of an a-hole in traffic too.

A FEW GOOD FUCKING QUESTIONS FOR YOUR (MOST PRESENT) SELF:

If your most-present self was a person/being, what would they look like? What would their name be? What special powers would they have? What would you get out of listening to them?

If you are forced to sit still and just be present is there a specific way your mind tends to avoid your emotions? Do you find yourself more attracted to worrying about the past or making plans for the future? Do you get distracted by sounds, smells, or physical sensations? What would be a playful way to redirect yourself back to being present?

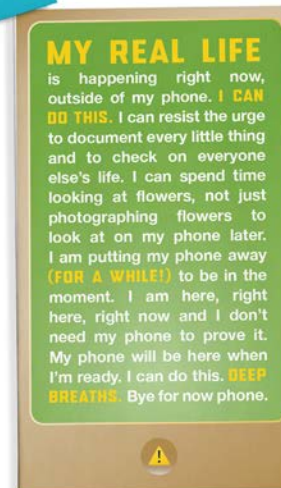

How do you self-soothe? Are there ways you could incorporate that self-soothing into your daily life?

Everybody on the whole-wide World Wide Web wants to IM you on their candy-colored iMac. :)

Ugh! As if... you should ever doubt your awesomeness. Like whatever, you've got it going on.

In the poetry slam of life, you always end up winning the espresso cup.

You're cooler than a pair of knee-high Dr. Martens,® a vintage cardigan with moth holes, white Jackle O. shades, and a Kangol® lid.

YOUR SOBER PAL

SELF-ESTEEM

I love and respect the person I am becoming in sobriety. Turns out, I don't need alcohol to feel good about myself! I've upgraded from that cheap, knockoff version of confidence that booze gave me to a new, shiny, authentic, 24-karat confidence, and it's truly ... chef's kiss.

EMBRACING THE STRUGGLE

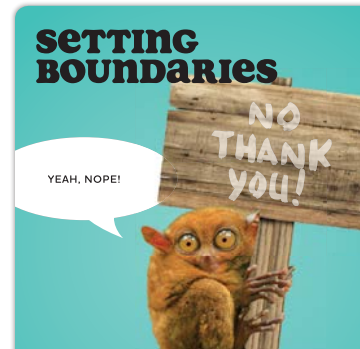

Some days the struggle is more struggle-y than others. But I actively embrace it anyway because I recognize that it makes me more resilient. If I can quit drinking, imagine what other magical stuff I can accomplish! Climb a mountain? Run a marathon? Organize my underwear drawer? Sobriety makes anything feel possible!

MAKING AMENDS

SORRY, I WAS AN ASS.

I have the courage to make up for the ways I hurt others when I was boozing. Making amends helps me release guilt, heal shame, and stay accountable. It also offers closure to those I hurt. If they choose to forgive me, awesome. If they flip me the bird with both hands, I understand. Whatever happens, I can accept it with grace, humility, and a ten-page journal entry soaked in my tears (you know, to give it texture).

SETTING BOUNDARIES

YEAH, NOPE!

I protect my sobriety by setting healthy boundaries. This includes telling people no when I need to, leaving situations that trigger me, and saying what I mean without saying it mean. So long, snippy human grump ... hello master jedi of love, personal agency, and self-respect!

PROGRESS NOT PERFECTION

DOG-GONE IT. BUT HEY, I STILL HAVEN'T TAKEN A BITE!

I try to banish all-or-nothing, get-it-right-or-I-totally-suck thinking and welcome baby steps and setbacks as a normal part of the recovery process. Someday, I'll look back on all those awkward, fumble-filled, uncomfortable moments of growth and feel grateful I never gave up. Plus, I'd love a crappy Lifetime movie about my life someday, and we all know mishaps & mayhem make the happy ending even more satisfying ... so, there's that!

SHITTY WORRY # 2

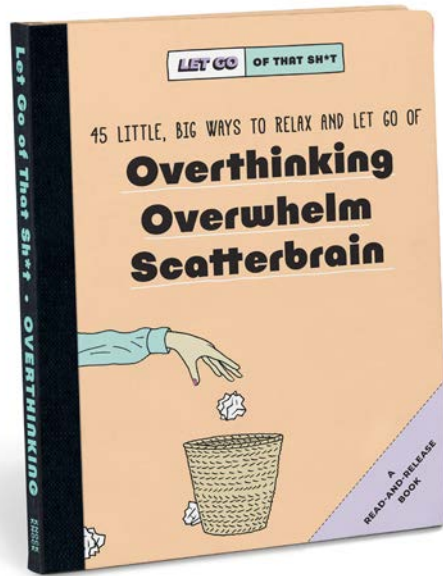

I Feel Like a Huge Weirdo in a World of Normal People

PERHAPS YOU FEEL LIKE everyone else in the world belongs to a secret Everyone-Else Club, and they meet to talk about important secret things, and also talk about YOU. Or maybe you are someone who walks into a party and assumes everyone there went to high school together, and you've got no chance of fitting in...and that even if you had known them in high school, you still would have felt like an outsider!

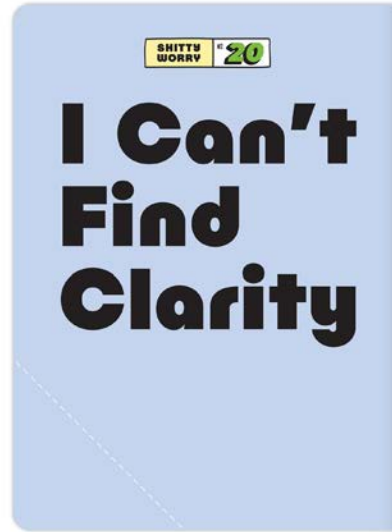

LET GO OF THAT SHIT!
So many of us feel this way (most of us?). You may be an introvert or highly sensitive person who isn't suited to crowds. But that's not something that you need to "fix." It's part of your magic and your personal power. Lots of successful people are wired that way. BTW, there's no Everyone-Else Club—or if there is, we're not members, either. So fuck 'em!

NOPE. NOT TODAY SHIT!

SHITTY WORRY # 20

I Can't Find Clarity

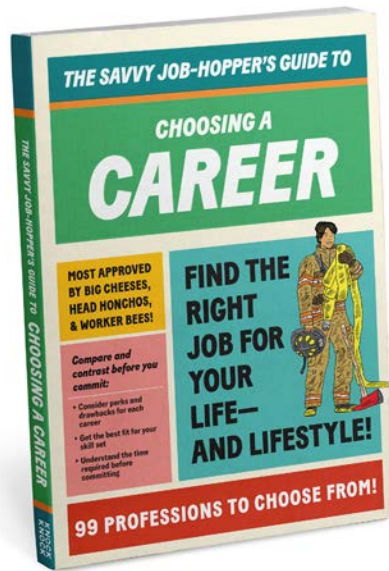

ONE MINUTE YOU WANT ONE THING and the next...well...the next minute you have no idea what you want and maybe even no idea who you are. You might feel like something in your life is destiny, but then it doesn't work out and you doubt the part of yourself that believed in destiny in the first place. It's exhausting to be human sometimes, and when you can't get clear on the big things, it's easy to feel small.

LET GO OF THAT SHIT!
Having a lot of ideas and options is actually a good thing. You'll never get bored with yourself and you'll always have something to look forward to. Free will is a real thing and you get to make all the choices you want. Maybe you have a whole lot of enticing options rather than a lack of clarity.

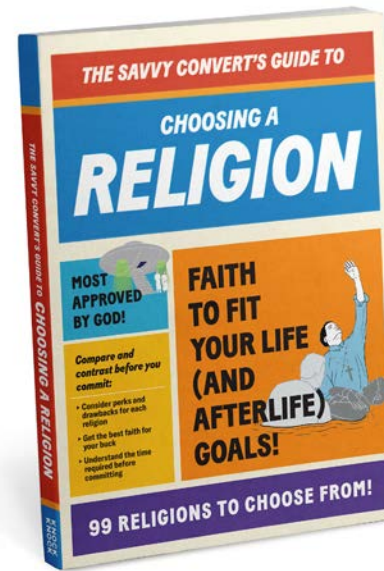

NOPE. NOT TODAY SHIT!
