RULES OF BABYWEARING

- The baby's belly is always in contact with the bearer's body.
- The child must always be above the carrier's center of gravity(above the navel).
- You must be able to pass an open hand between the baby and the bearer's body, but not a fist.

By bowing your head you must be able to kiss his head easily

The child's legs should take an M position

Be careful that his chin is not resting on his chest

Check frequently that the face and airways are always clear

The child's back should be in a C position

HOW TO INSERT THE FLAPS IN THE LOOPS

Lay the back of the band with the logo facing the support surface. Insert the flap of the band, passing it through both rings from the inside out.

Pass the end between the two rings, making sure the flap is well distributed inside the rings. Repeat the same operation with the other flap.

PREPARATION

How to begin with the use Koala Cuddle Band:

- Try first with a doll or a stuffed animal
- When first wearing use a mirror
- Let someone help you, you'll feel more secure and it would be easier

At the beginning it can happen to everyone to have some difficulties, the important thing is not to get discouraged. First, make sure you have worn the Koala Cuddle Band correctly by following the directions in this manual. Get your little one used to the it gradually, bringing him in the sling for a short time every day.

Take the sling.

Wear it like a t-shirt.

Check that the backrest fits snugly against the body.

Arrange the two flaps by stretching them.

Pull both flaps forward so that the band fits snugly against the body.

Create space for the baby by lowering the intersection of the flaps with your hands. Pick up your baby, placing his behind above your navel. Pull the outer edge of the sling apart as if you were going to hug his body. If the band is too short you need to loosen the rings, if the fabric is too abundant you will have to pull it. At the end of the binding (A or B), it is important that all the babywearing rules (pages 7-8) are respected.

TIE METHOD: FRONT CROSS CARRY (FCC) - SIMPLE X

FROM BIRTH AND TO FOLLOW THEM WHILE GROWING

Difficulty: Beginner ● ○

This is what the binding will look like in the end

At the end of the steps of this binding the child will be positioned as in this illustration: legs in M, back in C, with free airways

Pick up the child taking care to support the head and back correctly and place him on your chest at shoulder height.

Remove the flap opposite the baby and surround the leg, positioning it in the hollow of the knee

Repeat the process by placing the child on the other shoulder and working with the other flap.

Accompany the child to the center of your body making him sit down on the crossroads. The child assumes the physiological M position of the legs.

Retrieve the innermost flap of the X, stretch the fabric well behind the child's back from one knee to the other.

tuck the flap under the flap still draped to secure

Repeat the procedure also with the external flap.

Make sure that the child's back is correctly supported and the flaps are well open.

Adjust the tension if necessary by pulling the flaps forward past the loops. To facilitate this operation, it is possible to lift the child's bottom with one hand (1) and with the other pull the flap (2).

It is important to ensure that the child is at a height where it is possible to kiss the head. The palm of the hand must be able to pass between the baby and the mother's body, but not a fist

Take the support band making sure the logo is in the centre.

Wrap it carefully behind the child's back, hugging him or her from the nape to the bottom.

Close with a double knot behind your back. If the flaps are too long it is possible to tie them with an additional knot in the front part. If the sash ends are too long, you can tie them at the waist.

TO EXTRACT THE CHILD

Untie the support band.

Open the crossed flaps one at a time starting from the outer one, keeping the child safe.

Grab the child with both hands under the armpits and pull it out from above.

TIE METHOD: FRONT DOUBLE HAMMOCK (FDH)
SPECIFIC FOR THE VERY FIRST DAYS OF THE NEWBORN

Difficulty: Expert ● ●

This is what the binding will look like in the end.

At the end of the steps of this binding the child will be positioned as in this illustration: legs in M, back in C, with free airways.

Take the baby taking care to support the head and back correctly and place him on your chest at shoulder height opposite to the one where the innermost flap is positioned.

With one hand, recover the innermost band flap and surround both legs, then placing the band in the hollows of the knees.

Repeat the procedure placing the child on the other shoulder and insert the other flap in the hollows of the knees.

Accompany the child to the center of your body making him sit down on the crossing making sure that the feet are free. The child assumes the physiological M position.

Locate the innermost flap of the X and, passing the hand under the same edge, trace the edge.

Fold the flap inward on the child's back.

Stretch the fabric well behind the child's back from knee to knee.

Repeat the procedure also with the external flap. Trace the outermost hem by turning it inward.

Stretch the fabric well behind the child's back from knee to knee.

Adjust the tension if necessary by pulling the flaps forward past the loops. To facilitate this operation, it is possible to lift the child's bottom with one hand (1) and with the other pull the flap (2). It is important to ensure that the child is at a height where it is possible to kiss the head.

Take the support band making sure the logo is in the centre.

Wrap it carefully behind baby's back, hugging him from nape to bottom.

Close with a double knot behind your back. If the flaps are too long it is possible to tie them with an additional knot in the front part.

TO EXTRACT THE CHILD

Untie the support band.

Open the crossed flaps one at a time starting from the outer one, keeping the child safe.

Take the baby with both hands under the armpits and pull it out from above.
