Chelsea Farms serves as a contemporary exemplar of environmental sustainability in action. Focused on reviving the Olympia Oyster, an indigenous species of Olympia, which had been on the brink of extinction, the farm has made this restoration effort a top priority.

As a dedicated member of the Pacific Coast Shellfish Growers Association, Chelsea Farms is committed to sustainable farming practices that play a vital role in preserving water cleanliness. To achieve this, meticulous attention is paid to water maintenance, particularly while cultivating an array of shellfish, including the Chelsea Gem, Bonita, and Olympia Oysters, as well as fresh clams and geoduck.
