

Tips for using PAH/Print At Home Downloadable Patterns

- Print on letter or A4 size paper. BE SURE to print the pattern actual size. Otherwise, it will not work. Some PDF applications have page scaling set by default to "fit to printable area". If so, change page scaling to "None".
- Before printing your pattern, print the page containing the Test Square. Measure the square with a ruler. If its sides do not equal 4", check your printer settings and try again.
- If your Test Square is still not printing at a 4" square, you may need to download the latest version of (free) Acrobat Reader.
- To save printer ink, choose "draft" or "fast" quality.
- After printing and checking your test square, print pages 7-15.
- Trim off the left and top margins (colored blue here). Then overlap the pages as shown by the red arrows, bringing the black triangles together to form diamonds. Tape the pages together to form the pattern.

Tips for using AO/Copy Shop Downloadable Patterns

- You can send the AO/Copy Shop file to any printer capable of printing on 36" wide - or AO - paper. Locally, check out the companies that print large format such as office supply companies, blueprint, architectural, repro-graphic printing, etc. These can be a bit more expensive than ordering the paper version. There are also many print companies online that offer this service. Many have dedicated services for printing sewing patterns. Since this info ever-changing, we recommend searching online for "copy shop printing for sewing patterns".
- Download and save the file to send to your printing company. Specify which page(s) you need printed. Ask them to check the test square dimensions before printing all the pages.
