Si bien hay varias formas de provocar la hipertrofia, parece que emplear múltiples series con cargas moderadas (6-12 repeticiones, 65-85% 1RM) y periodos de descanso (60 segundos) crea el mayor aumento de testosterona y hormona del crecimiento (hormonas anabólicas primarias); en comparación con cargas pesadas (1-5 repeticiones, >85% 1RM) con largos periodos de descanso (2-5 minutos) y cargas ligeras (12+ repeticiones, <65% 1RM) con cortos periodos de descanso (30 segundos) (Schoenfeld BJ, 2010).
