With more of us becoming conscious of our impact on the environment many of us are actively looking for creative ways to reduce, reuse, and recycle.

Sydney based Home & Lifestyle brand, Tree Stripes, wants to support floral designers who are making a conscious effort of choosing ethics over convenience in their practice.

Founders of Tree Stripes, Pretisha Patel and Kapil Jekishan have designed a suite of products including, vases and pots that are ethically hand made by women in Sri Lanka using 100% recycled materials. Designed to last a lifetime, these vessels are made of recycled paper and sealed with natural rubber making them waterproof - simply pour water and add your stems!

On the exterior of their products, they work with a variety of recycled materials such as sand, wood or cement, which provides a strong textured finish to help elevate your floral arrangement.

Kapil adds 'We reuse all paper leftovers from our main production to create new paper pulp for the next run. This has helped eliminate the need to transport waste material and creates an entirely zero waste production cycle'.

Made from paper, their unique lightweight and unbreakable design make them perfect for transporting fresh floral arrangements, dried arrangements, and plants – no more mishaps in transit.

Our vision is to empower global artisans and create home goods with a soul and story. We're excited to support florists with a range which is zero waste, made by artisan women to ensure Australians have a greener choice to complement their plants and flowers.

Tree Stripes have just launched their 2022 collection, and you can head over to their website - www.treestripes.com to enquire about becoming a stockist.
