Details

Target Description	Contactin-associated protein-like 2 protein, or Caspr2, is a neuronal transmembrane member of the Neurexin family. Structural features of Caspr2 include epidermal growth factor repeats, laminin G domains, F5/8 type C domain, fibrinogen-like domains, and PDZ binding sites. Caspr2 is a cell adhesion molecule as well as a receptor. It is involved in mediating cell–cell interactions in the nervous system and involved in neural-glia interactions and clustering of potassium channels in myelinated axons. It is expressed at the juxaperanodal region of nodes of Ranvier in the CNS and PNS. Changes in expression have been associated with increased susceptibility to autism and epilepsy.
Specificity	No cross-reactivity against Caspr/paranodin
Purification Method	Produced by in vitro bioreactor culture of hybridoma line followed by Protein A affinity chromatography and conjugation of purified mAb. Purified mAbs are >90% specific antibody.
Quality Control Tests	Each new lot of antibody is quality control tested by western blot on rat whole brain lysate and confirmed to stain the expected molecular weight band.
