CHRISTIAN GOSSET

The Gosset family is one of the most famous in Aÿ, with history dating back over 500 years. Christian, after 30 years of dedicated work in the family vineyards and in the field, among wine merchants and restaurants, decided to change his life and, at fifty years old, produce his own wine, under his own name. Just like that.

His pinot noir vines have a high average age (45+ years) and are naturally low-yielding, giving very concentrated grapes with great character and identity.

His vineyards are in prime locations in the middle of the Aÿ terroir, all of which are Grand Cru and Eco certified on the tops of the hills with southwestern exposure. It is a succession of small valleys, with different altitudes, different slopes, different soils and therefore a great diversity of terroirs in a very small area. One of his favorite parcels is called Loiselu, a lieu-dit planted in 1963. Christian maintains that one of the most desirable characteristics of the terroir is its complexity and intensity.

Vineyards in Aÿ are predominantly south-facing, and mostly planted to pinot noir. Although inclination varies by plot, the hills behind the village are the steepest. Aÿ is often the source of the most powerful pinot noir-based wines of Champagne, as they are at a lower altitude than those of Bouzy and Ambonnay.

Winemaking is low-impact and low-intervention, with the pressing done using a traditional Coquard press at his neighbor Geoffroy's winery. The coeur de cuvée arrives by gravity into Christian Gosset's cellar, directly into the vinification barrels, where it undergoes a spontaneous fermentation with native yeasts. As he says, "let the wines ferment quietly and then we meet again in July for the bottling". For the Brut Reserve, aged in vats, he makes his decisions as late as possible for the assemblage and proportion of reserve wine, around the following June, before bottling and secondary fermentation. The wines are aged in his cellar for a minimum of three years on the lees, regardless of the vintage or cuvée. The naming standards for his non-vintage Brut and Rosé reflect his organized and pragmatic approach with his Brut A01 being his first assemblage, containing base wine from 2016, subsequently Brut A02 will be based on the 2017, and so on. All the single vineyard wines are aged in oak barrels..

The Christian Gosset style is aromatic, powerful, and structured, but always in search of finesse and elegance, with a common thread of verticality, precision, and intensity. Christian Gosset crafts gastronomic Champagnes destined to elevate world-class cuisine with a trademark long, complex finish.

For five generations, the Vergnon family has been established in Mesnil Sur Oger growing grapes. The cellars has been the same ever since and was inherited by Jean Louis from his parents.

In 1950, JL Vergnon replanted his vineyards on the slopes of Côte des Blancs, in le Mesnil sur Oger. His motto: grow exceptional grapes to make exceptional wines.

It's only in 1985 that he labeled his first wines under the name JL Vergnon, immediately rewarded by a "Coup de Coeur" for his Extra-Brut in 1987 by the famous Wine guide "Guide Hachette des Vins".

Vergnon champagnes are made only with domaine grown grapes and vinified at the cellar in le Mesnil sur Oger, Managing the domain since 1999, Didier Vergnon share the same passion for a work well done. Surrounded by an experienced team, the new generation join the domain to carry this legacy on.

The majority of our vines are planted in the terroir of le Mesnil sur Oger, classified Grand Cru, Blanc de Blancs. Well-known for his vineyard excellence, this village only hosts grapes of Chardonnay, what confers to his wines delicacy and elegance.

We also benefit of vineyard in terroirs of Oger and Avize, Grands Crus of Côte des Blancs.

To complete our domain, a part of the vines are planted in the terroirs of surrounding villages, Vertus and Villeneuve, Premier Cru.

In JL Vergnon, we only grow vines of Chardonnay, blending more than 20 parcels. Planted in majority with old vines of over 30 years on average, various exposure in order to reach this evenness in our Champagnes.

W I N E M A K I N G

With the desire of preserving the nature and our environment, we promote a sustainable viticulture in our vineyard. Herbicides are no longer used in the last 15 years, the cover crop is used in the parcels, chemical treatments are limited. To enhance this approach, we obtained HVE label (High Environmental Value).

All the cuvee are 100% blanc de blancs, sourced from their own vineyards in the Grand Cru Vineyards in the Cote de Blanc. Low dosage across the range endows this true expression of typical terroir, vivacity, and nerve combined with the unique finesse of chardonnay.

The purity of the fruit, the concentration and the elegance of the mousse are the 3 highlights that make this Champagne an excellent drink. This is highly recommended for Champagne fans looking for high-quality blanc de blancs.

MOUZON LEROUX

SUMMARY

The family has been established in Champagne since 1776 and for many years supplied grapes for Veuve Clicquot. The first bottlings with the domaine labels started to be sold in 1930, sold under the name Champagne Mouzon. The change to Mouzon Leroux happened in 1976 with the marriage of Philippe Mouzon with Pascale Leroux, father and mother of Sebastien Mouzon and the 9th generation of the Mouzon family to grow grapes in Verzy.

Mouzon Leroux currently farms 7.5 hectares of vines in Verzy Grand Cru, divided in 50 parcels. After completing his degrees in viticulture and oenology Sebastien Mouzon spent a year working in Burgundy, which helped him to expand his understanding of the use of oak for fermentation and maturation. He returned to the family domaine in 2002 and took over the domaine in 2008, when he started the conversion of the vineyards to biodynamic farming. The domaine is currently certified organic and biodynamic by Demeter.

In the vineyards only certified organic products are used for treatments, including biodynamic horse manure 500 preparation, dandelion, horsetail essence, yarrow, among other herbs. Horses are used for ploughing and sheep to control the cover crops used to regulate the vine vigour.

The grapes are harvested at the peak of physiological ripeness, in order to avoid chaptalization, with a good balance of sugar ripeness and acidity levels. Mouzon vineyards are planted with 60% Pinot Noir, 35% Chardonnay, 5% divided between Arbane, Pinot Gris, Pinot Blanc, Pinot Meunier & Petit Meslier.

The terroir from Verzy is quite unique, and one of the few villages that can grow equally well Pinot Noir and Chardonnay. To the east of Verzy the active limestone content in the soils is very high, producing excellent Chardonnay, while to the west of Verzy there are much heavier clay soils on top of the limestone subsoil, which is ideal for producing Pinot Noir.

WINEMAKING

In the cellar, the fermentation are carried out pied de cuve, which involves gathering a little amount of pre-harvested grapes and allowing it to naturally ferment in order to serve as a "starter" for inoculating the various tanks with the native yeast.

The fermentations and maturation take places in a mix of stainless steel tanks and 500-liter barrels that have 4-5 years of use from Louis Jadot in Burgundy. The finished wines age from 7 months up to 24 months on full lees. Malolactic is allowed to happen naturally, and dosage is maintained to a minimum.

The second fermentation is done with an isolated yeast called Quartz, coming from Champagne Fleury in Aube. The wines are not filtered, and only a minute amount of sulfites are used. The Champagne age between 3 to 5 years in bottle before disgorgement, and spend another 6 months resting on a cork after disgorgement.

TREMBLAY MARCHIVE

The domaine started back in 1949 with a small plot of Fourchaume farmed by André and Gabrielle Tremblay. Back then frost and lack of mechanization made work especially hard and not very profitable. Despite these difficulties they managed to expand the holdings and passed over 7Ha of vineyards over to their daughter Lyne Marchive.

In 1973 Lyne Marchive started domaine bottling and in 30 years she grew the number and the size of her vineyards, extended the winery and modernized the equipment.

Through her travels her wines were soon to be found in the best restaurants in Asia, Europe and the United States.

In 2018 she decides to step aside and handed over the domaine to her son Richard who became the managing director and daughter Amandine who leads sales marketing and communication. Lyne's eldest daughter Marion, who works in the wine industry in California is also a partner in the Domaine.

Incidentally Richard also started his own winery in Beaujolais in 2007 and has managed vineyards from the Moulin a Vent appellation. He also gained experience working at wineries in various other countries such as California, South Africa and New Zealand.

The domaine current chief winemaker is Guenole Breteaudeau who joined in 2006. Six employees work in the vineyards full time, one employee is in charge of order fulfillment and two employees work in administration.

Today the Domaine owns 29Ha of vineyards between Petit Chablis and the Grand Crus and the objective in the vineyards is to eliminate chemicals to increase wildlife and sustainability of the soils. Organic fertilizers are used if needed.

The vineyards are tended carefully to prevent diseases, and horses are used to plow in order to aerate the soil and allow an improve organism's diversity.

Since 1963 the vineyards were planted with massal selection, which allows a broad genetic diversity and the best vines can be propagated and grafted on new plantings.

CHARLES VAN CANNEYT

Charles Van Canneyt is the young winemaker in charge of Domaine Hudelot-Noëllat. A post he earned in 2008 from his grandfather Alain Hudelot who was in charge of the domaine for over 30 years.

The improvement in the wine quality, and vineyard management lead Charles to be quickly recognized by the specialized critic, and consumers as one of the most talented winemakers in Burgundy's new generation.

Following an unprecedented demand on his wines, Charles felt the need to look for ways to increase production. However, with the increase in the value of land price in Burgundy in recent years, acquiring more land wasn't a feasible option for him.

Finally, in 2012 following his goals, Charles decided to start his own micro-negociant label, following the path of many successful growers in the Cote de Nuits.

Charles Van Canneyt micro negociant is a partnership with Johan Björklund, who's a former wine merchant and how runs the famous Bistro de L'Hotel de Beaune.

Johan has also partnerships with Coche Dury and Ponsot.

Through a series of connection, Charles is now able to source grapes from exceptional sites such as Chambertin, Clos de Beze, Volnay Santenots, Chevalier Montrachet, Corton Renardes, NSG La Richemone, among others, and produce one or two barrels of each wine per year.

WINEMAKING

Charles doesn't farm the vineyards he sources his grapes, however, he oversees the grape growing process from the beginning until the harvest, while the regisseur of each vineyard adapts his viticulture techniques to suit the style of Charles wines.

The Pinot Noir is 100% destemmed as he does with his grandparents' wines at Hudelot Noellat.

The grapes are finally harvested and pressed, and in some cases, Charles will acquire the must ready for fermentation or the wine already fermented according to his specifications and ready to mature in his cellars.

The wines are matured in French oak barrels with about 15% new oak used for the premier crus, with a gentle oak influence in order to showcase the specific terroir. Only two barrels are made of each premier crus per year with more Bourgogne Pinot Noir and Chardonnay produced. As for the grand crus, it's also one to two barrels of production.

DOMAINE TORTOCHOT

The history of the domaine dates back to 1865 with the purchase of land that was being sold at low prices due to the infestation of phylloxera.

Most of the developments on the domaine were introduced by Gabriel Tortochot the third generation of the family to grow vines in Gevrey was a fervent defender of Burgundy's wines, and also the president of the "Syndicat Viticole de Gevrey-Chambertin". After a long career in charge of the domaine in 1997, he stepped down and passed his responsibilities to his daughter Chantal, who had worked in the Petrochemical sector and started studying viticulture at 35 years of age, when her father was already 80 years old.

They have spent 5 vintages together when Gabriel passed away in 2001, and Chantal was who really started domaine bottling, since her father previously had not much help taking care of the domaine and was then selling most of his production to Maison Joseph Drouhin.

Chantal not only increased the production of domaine bottling from 10.000 to 60.000 bottles a year, but also had to search for a new clientele for all this new domaine wine being produced.

A new storage building was built in 2000 to hold the production that was no longer sold to negociants. The domaine converted its vineyards to organic viticulture since 2008, but had been experimenting since 2003. The domaine also uses cover crops and promotes the development of a healthy ecosystem in their vineyards.

Winemaking

The wines are 100% destemmed, fermented in stainless steel tanks and macerated for 5-7 days at low temperatures. (14-15°C)

Pump overs and punch downs are used as necessary on each cuvee, free run juice and press juice are blended before being transferred to barrels for aging. The wines are racked after the malolactic is completed. Later the wines age in barrels on the fine lees for 15-18 months. A mix of coopers are used to source the barrels to avoid a “marked” style. The village wines age in 15-25% new oak, 1er crus in 30-50% new oak and the grand crus from 80 to 100% new oak. All medium toasted barrels.

GEANTET PANSIOT

The Geantet-Pansiot estate was founded in 1954 when Edmond Geantet married Bernadette Pansiot and the newlyweds started to make wine on 7 acres of vineyard spread on both Gevrey-Chambertin and Bourgogne designations. In 1977, their son Vincent joined them in the family business and has been in charge since 1989. A third-generation is in the wings as Vincent's son, Fabien, has been working with his dad since the age of twelve, officially joining him in 2006. While both father and son share a deep sense of commitment to their land and a passion for its fruit, Vincent also passed down to his son a love for Harley Davidson motorcycles and volunteer firefighting. In fact, it is fairly common to see either of them coming straight from the winery to answer the call of duty, zipping around the narrow streets of Gevrey-Chambertin on vintage sporsters. The domaine has steadily grown over the years, with the acquisition of 10 additional acres in Gevrey-Chambertin in 1991, and a few more plots since then in Chambolle-Musigny and

Chambolle-Musigny 1er Cru. Also, with each passing generation, the Geantet-Pansiot family has been careful to update its facilities with regular renovations of their winery. Gregarious by nature, Vincent and Fabien favor collaboration over competition with their fellow winemakers. For instance, Vincent was one of the first to join the local Center for Agricultural Technical Studies, and advocates a constant exchange of knowledge and resources with neighboring colleagues. Today, Vincent and Fabien practice lutte raisonnée, using no herbicides or chemical fertilizers over their 32 acres of vineyards. This colorful family makes wines very much in its image, generous and strong, gifted

HISTORY

The very first reference to « Clos des Lambrays » traces back to the fourteenth century. Archives of the Abbey of Cîteaux reveal its founding around 1365. An engraved milestone, still in its original location, commemorates the founding. After the French Revolution, the Clos became extremely fragmented. Based on the archives and maps of the vines owned by the Domaine, the survival and recomposition of the fragments of the Clos des Lambrays was due in large part to the strong vision and willpower of its different owners during the nineteenth and twentieth centuries.

During the 1930s through the 1980s, the Rodier family's determination helped the Clos des Lambrays recover its official Grand Cru status, a status it had always held de facto. And a status which wine lovers had always recognized. Finally, in 1981, it received the official status after the French National Institute in charge of Appellations d'Origine to decree the Clos des Lambrays as the 33rd Grands Crus of Bourgogne.

Since 1979, the Clos des Lambrays has been blessed with both a succession of passionate vinticulturs and good fortune. First Mr. Louis and Fabien Saier along with Mr. Rolland Pelletier de Chambure and then the Freunds, since 1996, have kept the property in pristine condition. In 2014, the property, identified as one of the jewels of Bourgogne, was acquired by the LVMH Group.

DOMAINE JESSIAUME

The Domaine was created in 1850 by the Jessiaume family. Between 2006 and 2020, the Domaine was owned by a Scottish businessman and industrialist, Sir David Murray. After generations of Jessiaume making the wines, a new team has arrived in 2014 and the Domaine changed its direction.

In 2020, Sir David Murray sold the Domaine to Dr Jean-François Le Bigot. This Burgundy lover wishes to impulse the qualitative directory of the Domaine.

The winery was recently renovated and new equipment was acquired. Harvest and sorting are done by hand. The wine is fermented with natural yeasts and the extractions are gentle and controlled. The goal is to obtain elegant and fine wines which respect the terroir. Chaptalization is avoided. There is a strict barrel selection for the elevage that is made without much intervention. The wine is bottled after natural clarification and with low doses of sulphites. The conversion to organic viticulture was concluded in 2019.

The domaine extends to 15 hectares, and it's the biggest land owner of Santenay La Graviere.

LATOUR GIRAUD

The domaine operates out of the Giraud family premises – there have been Girauds in Meursaults since 1850 and Latours since at least the 17th century. The domaine now covers 11 hectares and is run by Jean-Pierre Latour. He joined his father in 1983 and took over 10 years later. The domaine is farmed organically, without certification.

The whites are direct pressed, settled if necessary, then encouraged to start to ferment in tank before transfer to barrel, with 20% new wood for the village wines and no more than 25% for the whites, all in the traditional 228 litre size. There is some lees stirring. The wines are racked to tank after 11 months and bottled early the following year. The reds are entirely destemmed (though Jean-Pierre's father left all the stems in), given a cool pre-maceration, then fermented with some punching down for a total of up to three weeks in the vats.

The approach in both colours is classical but not hidebound. Jean-Pierre is very aware that words like classical or traditional can be taken pejoratively. He remains open to change, but I suspect rarely needs to do so as his formula works very well to make un-showy but intense and intricate white wines, along with some attractive, fruit-laden but adequately structured reds. He chose to bottle the whites a little earlier than usual, to suit the style of the vintage.

PERNOT BELICARD

Philippe Pernot's father still runs the famous 17-hectare family domaine in Puligny-Montrachet. Sometime in the future he will inherit his third of the domaine but for now he is concentrating on the 6 hectares of vines that make up Pernot-Belicard, the domaine that came from his marriage to Mademoiselle Belicard. Her father was more of a fruit grower than winemaker and sold off most of what he produced. In contrast Philippe is more interested in bottling under his own name and has let contracts with négociants run their course, allowing him to hold on to much more of his fruit.

His first vintage was as recent as 2009 and with each vintage since the quality of wine has progressed with big leaps being made with the 2011s, 2012s and most recently 2013s. Space in both the cuverie and the cave has always been at a premium, and up until the 2012 vintage Philippe would bottle all his cuvées a year after harvest. However, the 2013 vintage saw him extend the length of élevage he gave his wines and the results were impressive.

Since establishing the domaine Philippe has bought more vineyards, augmenting the range of 1ers Crus Pulignys. The wines see between 20 and 35% new oak and currently drink well after a few years in bottle. The old vine cuvée of Meursault is produced from especially old vines (around 70 years) but there are plenty of old vines throughout the domaine.

JOANNES VIOLOT GUILLEMARD

This is a fifth-generation, 6.5-hectare estate, predominantly based in Pommard, with a few vines in Beaune, Meursault and Volnay. The estate is run by Joannes from 2019, as his father Thierry retired, the estate is certified organic.

They make wines that lean towards purity and freshness. From warm vintages such as 2018 and 2019, the wines are light, delicate and fresh, extraction is kept to a minimum. The 40% new oak used for the reds never looks obtrusive, and the elegance and delicacy of all the reds belie the Pommard stereotype.

All the reds are wines with lovely mouth perfumes, and there is no hint in any of them of hot vintage characteristics or Pommard rusticity. The wines look charming at a young age, which perhaps explains their success with many top French restaurants. But Epenots and Rugiens in particular are both wines with a pedigree to keep them improving for years.

The 2019 vintage is the finest
I have ever tasted
at this address... to deliver wines with aromatic profiles more reminiscent of the Côte de Nuits' finest addresses than any outdated stereotypes of burley and resolutely terrestrial Pommard. Perfumed, seamless and penetrating...this is a brilliant set of wines, and I can't recommend them warmly enough

Richard created his domain in 2007, taking on established vines aged between 40 and 80 years. His driving passion is the chance to experiment with innovative organic viticulture. Yields in Moulin-a-Vent are always naturally low, making this the most powerful, concentrated and long-lived of the Beaujolais cru.

Today the domaine farms 5ha of vines, converted to organic since 2012, and following the lunar calendar for the work in the vineyards and cellar.

Each parcel of vines is handpicked and vinified separately to be able to adapt techniques to fit the micro-climate of each vineyard. Vinification is traditional, semi-carbonic (meaning partially fermented in closed vats). After being pressed, the wines are transferred to classic Burgundian barrels and foudres. The wines are aged for between 6 months (for the classic Moulin a Vent) and 10 months (for the Champ du Cour).

Before starting on his domain in Beaujolais, Richard traveled widely to learn about vinification and the culture of wine around the world. From his native Chablis to the south of France in Gaillac and the Luberon, to South Africa and New Zealand and finally to Beaujolais

DOMAINE LIONNET

The Lionnet Family has owned vineyards in Cornas since 1575. This small estate spans over five lieux dits for a total 3,8 hectares of which only 3 belongs to Cornas

More recently one hectare was planted in Saint-Pierre. The estate also owns a single plot in Saint Joseph planted in 2008 with a Syrah and Roussanne in Lieu Dit Giraud, les Côtes at 300 meters of altitude on clay and limestone soils.

COMBES

MAZARDS

45 ans vines located just under lieux dit Chaillot ; Pied la Vigne located north east of the appellation on clay and limestone terroirs planted mainly with old vines 50 to 70 years old

CHAILLOT

Lieu-dit Le bois on Granit soils with a high level of decomposition

The Domaine converted to organic viticulture in 2003, the estate is fully certified since vintage 2009. Ludovic follows the Lunar calendar for all viticultural and winemaking operations.

WINEMAKING

Winemaking is rather unconventional at Domaine du Lionnet, grapes are handpicked after a first severe sorting in the parcel, a slight « foulage » is made directly in the harvest boxes in the vineyard, Ludovic has no fear from oxidation and wants to stimulate a quick start of the fermentation by feeding the indigenous yeast with the first juices. Pressing is made in a 150 years old wooden vertical press very slowly. Fermentation is made with full cluster without the addition of So2 and with indigenous yeasts only. Bottling is made without filtration and no collage is made during the ageing. Ageing is then made in used barrels and demi-muids for two years.

Domaine FL

THE HISTORY OF...

When his father passed away, Philip a successful CEO of a Telecom company decided to invest in a winery.

Philip acquired two estates in 2006 and 2007 on each side of the river Loire first Domaine Jo Pithon in Anjou and second Château de Chamboureau in Savennières, and founded Domaine FL.

Domaine FL, named after his owner Philip Fournier Longchamps is born from the passion of wine, transmitted from father to son in the Fournier family.

Born raised in the Loire, Philip and his son Julien had a clear idea on the goals they had for Domaine FL since it's foundation; to produce exceptional wines that are able to age for decades.

In order to merge the two estates and preserve the integrity of the grapes during the harvest, a new building was created in Rochefort sur Loire in 2011.

The family owns today 60 hectares with almost 30 hectares on Savennières and 16 hectares located in 3 different villages: Rochefort sur Loire (Quart de Chaume), Beaulieu sur Layon St Lambert and Mozé sur le Louet. In total 25 ha are of Chenin Blanc, complemented by 5 ha of Cabernet Franc.

IN THE VINEYARD

Julien gathered a highly skilled team including Ludovic Pierrot, a viticultural consultant from Burgundy, specializing in organic viticulture.

An in-depth terroir analysis has been carried out to adapt viticultural practices to each plot. During the first years some green harvesting was carried out to reach optimum ripeness through yield reduction.

The soils are mainly Schist, with varying proportions of clay and sand.

Since 2009 the estate is certified organic and from 2015 fully converted to biodynamic.

The estate produces 6 appellations of Anjou blanc and Savennières rouge, Savennières Roche au Moines, Coteaux du Layon and the Grand Cru Quart de Chaume.

WINEMAKING

After working with Stéphane Derenoncourt for a few years, in 2014 the estate appointed the world acclaimed consulting winemaker Kyriakos Kynigopoulos who started to work towards plot-by-plot vinification bringing the estate to new levels of quality and terroir expression.

All the fruit is hand-harvested, with up to 5 tries through the vines for both the dry and sweet wines, and rigorously sorted, followed by a gentle press and vatting by gravity. All care is taken to avoid oxidation and favor the terroir expression.

The wines are fermented in thermoregulated stainless steel tanks and oak vats with strict temperature control, with 10-15% renewed every year. Then matured on the lees without racking for a varied amount of time and malolactic fermentation is avoided in the Chenin Blanc to preserve natural acidity and allow for long-term aging in the bottle. Most wines use a mixture of the neutral and new oak barrel to maintain a balanced complexity and while staying true to characteristics infused from the terroir.

The multiple cuvées of the estate are differentiated by the proportion of schist soil in the vineyards, with the more mineral wines being sold as the top range cuvee and having the longest ageing.

RAYMOND USSEGLIO

DOMAINE
RAYMOND USSEGLIO & FILS
CHATEAUNEUF DU PAPE

Domaine Raymond Usseglio was created by Stephane Usseglio's grandfather, Francis Usseglio, an Italian immigrant that emigrated in 1931 from Piemont in Italy to escape the Italian dictature. Since 1999, Stephane Usseglio is managing the 24 hectares of the estate spreading on 19ha in Châteauneuf du Pape, 5 ha in Cotes du Rhône and 3 hectares of Vin de France. The estates owns more than 33 parcels in various lieux dits of Châteauneuf. This diversity of soils (including roughly an equal split of pebbles and sandy soils) and exposure combined with a priceless patrimony of very old vines from 1902 adds complexity to the different wines of the estate.

Stephane started the process of certification to organic and biodynamic viticulture in 2010, with certification in 2015, which he practices alongside biodynamics. Soil management is extremely important with strategies adapted to each parcel specificity, and also using biodynamic preparations including cow horn manure (500) to favor the vitality of the soils, and silica (501) applied on the canopy to favor the photosynthesis especially in damp vintages. Stephane is also preparing a bunch of teas and decoctions to reduce the use of copper and sulfur in the vineyard : nettle and horsetail. During the vegetative cycle numerous operations are carried to limit yields including disbudding and green harvesting. The diversity of soils, exposure and grapes owned by the estate leads to adapting the practices to each parcel.

In the cellar, the approach is noninterventionist, yet with specific strategies: after a handpicking, Syrah and Mourvèdre are destemmed while Grenache is only partially destemmed. As much as possible Stéphane likes to avoid crushing the berries to favor intra cellular fermentation. The mechanical extraction is then limited during the diffusion process with light pumping overs and generally not more than one cap punching. Fermentation is temperature controlled with 3 to 5 weeks skins contact. When possible, the different varietals are co-fermented for more aromatic complexity.

The whites are pressed with full cluster to favor freshness and structure. Grenache are aged in a combination of small concrete tanks and foudres from the Austrian barrel maker Stockinger; While Syrah and Mourvèdre are aged in different 225 liters barrels. The use of SO2 is limited to a small addition at the end of the alcoholic fermentation.

"Readers looking for the next superstar estate in Châteauneuf du Pape and Côtes du Rhône need to get on Raymond Usseglio's bandwagon ASAP as the quality here is equal to anything out there today." — Jeb Dunnock

BOROLI

History

A Piedmontese family of entrepreneurs since 1831. Firstly, in the textile industry, then in publishing and now also in wine-growing. Many family documents have survived thanks to the conservation and classification work of Don Carlo Pollina (1744-1799), the guardian of little Carlo Antonio Boroli, Silvano's Great Great Great Grandfather.

Silvano married Elena Verri in 1968; they have 4 sons (Carlo, Guido, Achille and Filippo) who work in different fields, and now 7 grandchildren.

" CULTURE AND WINE: SO MANY THING IN COMMON, STARTING FROM QUALITY. TOTAL AND CONSTANT QUALITY, WITHOUT ANY COMPROMISE "

—Achille Boroli

In the 1990's after a long and successful career in the graphics industry Silvano decided to change his life by devoting himself to an old passion of his: the land, which for a Piedmontese can only mean Langa wines.

Achille, after graduating in business administration, decided to take care of the wine-growing and producing business and deal with food-and-wine connoisseurship. After gaining the Michelin Star with the Locanda del Pilone, with the 2012 grape harvest he decided to radically change the methods used in vineyards and vineries, aiming at total quality for Barolo and its crus.

BOROLI

BAROLO

The Baroli are crushed and destemmed; fermentation in steel at controlled temperature for 10-12 days, then submerged-cap maceration between 15 and 25 days depending on the cuvee, and successive racking and malolactic fermentation in small barrels at controlled temperature. After the malolactic fermentation, decanting in small and large wooden barrels for ageing no less than two years. Finally, bottling and refinement in bottles for no less than one year.

TENUTA DELL' ORNELLAIA

This famous Bolgheri estate was founded in 1981 by Marchese Ludovico Antinori trying to follow a similar path to the project that his uncle Marchese Mario Incisa della Rocchetta was successfully managing also in Bolgheri, the Tenuta di San Guido, with the iconic Sassicaia.

The first vineyards were planted in 1982 by Ludovico, who researched the land and decided to plant French grape varieties (Cabernet Sauvignon, Merlot, Cabernet Franc and Petit Verdot).

In 1985 the new winery built by Ludovico starts operation, but only in 1989 is officially inaugurated. The vineyards in the Bellaria (coastal area) are planted in 1990. The estate has currently 97 hectares of vines.

In 1991 Michel Rolland was appointed as consultant oenologist, to guide Tibor Gal into a more "international style", and in 1999 the famous Robert Mondavi took a minority share in the Ornellaia estate.

Le Serre Nuove was launched in 1997, to be the second wine of Ornellaia, made from younger vines and a more approachable blend with more Merlot on it.

By 2002 Robert Mondavi acquires full control of Ornellaia and transfers 50% to Marchesi de Frescobaldi, creating a colossal reaction from the Antinori family who wasn't informed that the estate was going to be sold to the Frescobaldi family.

Starting from the 2003 vintage Michel Rolland was kept as a consultant in winemaking and Alex Heinz was appointed as winemaker.

Successively the plantings in the Bellaria area were completed and by 2005 after the sale of Robert Moldavi to Constellation Brands, the remaining 50% stake of the estate was sold to Marchese de Frescobaldi, and Ferfinando Frescobaldi was appointed chairman.

Since 2006 an internationally famous contemporary artist has created a work of art for the estate and a series of limited-edition labels, inspired by the character identified by the winemaker to describe the particular features of the new vintage.

The clusters selected by hand on a double sorting table, before and after destemming, and finally softly crushed. Each grape variety and single vineyard block were vinified separately. Fermentation took place in stainless steel and concrete tanks. The malolactic fermentation took place mainly in oak barrels, 70% new and 30% once used. The wine then remained in barriques, in Ornellaia's temperature-controlled cellars for about 18 months. After bottling, the wine aged a further 12 months prior to release.

Established in 2002, Ampeleia is a collaboration between Elisabetta Foradori, who is renowned for her work at her family estate in Trentino-Alto Adige, Thomas Widmann, and Giovanni Podini; they saw in Ampeleia a place where they could not only develop an agricultural project but also fulfill a common vision. The project aspires to represent the inherent diversity and huge potential of this particular area of Maremma, the ‘Colline Metallifere’, which are not the coastal lowlands one usually associates with the Maremma, but mineral-rich hills that have been mined since Etruscan times.

The estate results from the purchase of different plots of land, located far apart and on different altitude levels, with the precise aim of creating a great variability in altitude, soil type and microclimatic conditions; each vineyard has a distinctive identity that is enhanced by the uniqueness of the surrounding environment. Variety is the keystone and soul of Ampeleia.

Ampeleia is one of the stars of the Tuscan coast. At their best, the Ampeleia wines are among the most pure, transparent expressions of the coast readers will find. Elisabetta Foradori and her team are doing important work here. Ampeleia is a young estate. There is every reason to believe the best is yet to come

— Vinous Antonio Galloni

In fact, variety represents the project’s constant quality, both physically and symbolically, and is harmoniously expressed in its wines that taste of the varied lands of the area around the village of Roccatederighi. Many of the grape varieties that have been planted in Ampeleia are common in Mediterranean farmlands. In past times, vineyards were not planted with just one grape variety, but many types of grapes were present, and they were all harvested at the same time; the vineyards at Ampeleia reflect this tradition.

Within this diversity, the estate focuses on Cabernet Franc, planted in the early 1960s, and Alicante Nero, a distinctly Tuscan biotype of Grenache. The Ampeleia estate covers around 130 hectares of land, but only 35 hectares are planted to vine, in an attempt to keep the landscape intact to promote biodiversity. The estate is certified Organic and Biodynamic.

Fattoria Le Fonti

Italy

The Imberti family is originally from the province of Bergamo and for five generations has operated in the wood importation and processing industry. Over 50 years ago Vito Arturo Imberti fell in love with these hills, a love that was crowned by the purchase of Fattoria Le Fonti.

Today his children Franca, Ferdinando and Giovanni, and his nephew Mattia tend to the over 140 hectares estate, of which 27 are vineyards, cultivated according to the principles of organic farming. In addition to the great wines of the Tuscan tradition, the Imberti family produces extra-virgin Chianti Classico DOP olive oil and cereals, while a large part of the farmland is kept as forest and used for fauna and a game reserve.

Winemaker

Sangiovese is the “main player” of the production, a variety of grapes highly affected by the terroir, never monotonous, exciting with every vintage. This land offers a great variability of soils: with the presence of Pliocene clays and others with sandy matrix and deposits of pebbles. These conditions often intersect creating complexity and a wide variability. The estate keeps a great number of clones resulting from years of research both within the estate and with the University of Florence.

Le Fonti protects their vineyards and grapes strengthening the plants, enabling them to resist diseases and environmental stresses with the use of organic products. This is the only way to obtain grapes that reflect the vineyard with its unique characteristics, resulting in authentic wines.

In the cellar the grapes are not pressed, delicate pump over and light extractions, favoring the integrity of the fruit and the expression of the single parcels of the vineyard throughout the fermentation. The ageing process continues in steel, concrete or in medium or lightly toasted French oak barriques depending on the wine. The wines are supervised by the renowned Paolo Caciorgna consultant winemaker, that is also responsible for Altesino, Il Pallagio, Bocelli, among others.

Luce Della Vite

Since 1993, we have worked with care and attention to celebrate the fruits of a land of rare beauty, Montalcino, which we chose as the perfect location for our project. Every day, we work without undue haste and in full respect of nature and the time it keeps to stimulate the intelligence and curiosity of the people who take care of Tenuta Luce so we may transform the ancient vocation of this territory into a project capable of constant innovation. Super Tuscans or Brunello di Montalcino, our wines are always a tribute to their land. While celebrating their place of origin we never give up on a personal, original interpretation of the terroir.

Luce is the symbolic wine of the Estate, a tribute to the golden and radiant sun that every day gives us warmth, energy and life. A light, a vision, a soul made up of two elements: Sangiovese and Merlot, elegance and envelopment, galestro and clay, the tradition of Montalcino and the personal interpretation of this land.

Lucente offers a compelling and refined experience of Tenuta Luce in Montalcino. Like Luce, it is fruit of the same care and attention in interpreting the magic of this exceptional terroir. It comes from a careful selection of grapes from dedicated vineyards of the Estate, combining Sangiovese and Merlot, which prevails in the blend. This is a wine of great charm and personality, with a fruity profile and delicate, silky tannins.

VEGA SICILIA

Vega Sicilia has stood out since it was founded in 1864 under the name Bodegas Eloy Lecanda, when it was the only winery at the heart of Castilla region. They were rewarded at the Centennial International Exhibition in Philadelphia in 1876, an unprecedented feat for a Spanish wine. The vintage of the oldest conserved bottle is unclear, it could be 1897 or 1899, as distinguishing whether the last digit is a seven or a nine is impossible.

Eloy Lecanda was the first to fetch and transport some French varieties, which still form a small portion of the Vega Sicilia set up. Vega Sicilia still has a plot of vines planted in that era that is now 120 years old. The wine was rebranded as Vega Sicilia at the end of the 19th century. The name refers to Saint Cecilia, and the estate still keeps the church made on her tribute.

The turning point for the winery was in 1982 when the Alvarez family bought the property, and starting from 1983 the adoption of biodynamic growth was implemented, inspired by the advice of Madame Lalou Bize Leroy. Vega Sicilia still produces their own American oak barrels in the estate. Compared to 2010, the 2011 vintage is somewhat fresher, and more vibrant.

Oremus

The origin of this estate dates back to 1620, but only in 1993 it was named Oremus after the acquisition by Vega Sicilia. The original estate was the first to ever produce a Tokaji Aszu in the 18th Century (made by grapes affected by botrytis), and carry its fame to this day.

Those wines were served to many Spanish and Russian monarchs, and for decades Tokaji Aszu were more prestigious and more expensive than the best reds and white wines in the world.

Oremus makes wines of 3, 4, 5 and 6 Puttonyos besides the sublime and exceptional Eszencia. The estate farms 115 hectares concentrated in Tolcsva, with some vineyards in Teleki, .

Deak and a historical plot in Satoraljaujhely. The vineyards are mostly planted in Volcanic soils, with high clay content, and exposed to the South.

Besides the vineyards, Oremus has an important underground cellar responsible to hold a considerable amount of back vintages. These cellars extend outwards below the ground along 5 KM of corridors in 3 different levels. The ventilation system in form of chimneys allows the temperature to be maintained at a constant 10 C, which is vital for the slow fermentation of the casked wine.

The galleries are vaulted, relatively narrow and barely two meters high. The walls are covered in a special fungus, Cladosporium Cellare, which via a process of micro condensation, is able to absorb the esters, volatile aldehydes and alcohol vapours.

The wines are aged in 2 types of barrels traditionally made in the region, the Gonc a 136L capacity barrel and the Szerednyei with 220L capacity, similar to Bordeaux barriques.

Apart from the traditional Tokaji wines, Oremus also produce dry wines from Furmint grapes in a very modern style. Fermented in stainless steel with temperature-controlled and aged in barrels.

In terms of production, the famous Aszu is made from Furmint (55%), Harslevelu (45%) and Muscat Lunel (5%) harvested late and made from grapes affected by noble rot (botrytis). During harvest, the grapes are picked one by one and placed in large vats. After the Eszencia is extracted from the free run juice, the leftover paste is mixed with dry white wine and left it to ferment a second time to produce the Aszu. (these wines have residual sugar that vary from 60-90 gr for the 3 Puttonyos to 150-180gr for the 6 Puttonyos), and 5 years of barrel ageing before bottling.

The wines are aged in 2 types of barrels traditionally made in the region, the Gonc a 136L capacity barrel and the Szerednyei with 220L capacity, similar to Bordeaux barriques.

With new wine laws enacted over the past few years have the production of 3 and 4 Puttonyos aszú has been phased out, and now the numbers 5 and 6 will also be disappearing from bottles of aszú. The minimum residual sugar has been set at 120 grams per litre for any wine to be called an aszú, and they must be aged for a minimum of 18 months in oak.

WEINGUT HOLGER KOCH

Holger Koch, once cellar master at Fritz Keller, has run his own small, eight-hectare property in Bickensohl/Kaiserstuhl (Baden) since 1999. The vines are all grown on the cooler hillsides of the Kaiserstuhl and based on diverse, low-yielding cuttings (for example from Alsace)—not on clones. His vineyard management is virtually organic, and profiles of the wine favor a refreshing and finessed, elegant style of Pinot.

In fact, the style of their wines is pretty French: pure, precise and elegant, with reduced fruit aromas on nose and palate, but with intensity, persistence and freshness. The wines are bone dry, straight and mineral, well-concentrated and structured—either by a stable acidity or fine tannins. The drinkability of all of their wines is immense. The wines are not really full-bodied, round or creamy; instead, they are remarkably fresh, precise and focused.

“The Pinot Noirs are among the finest in Baden and in all of Germany. I have rarely tasted such delicate, silk and finessed, filigree-structured Pinot Noirs. This is a top producer for advanced wine lovers who don’t look for fruit aromas and charming roundness, but serious, firmly-structured wines that unfold their talents only in the persistent finish.”

—Robert Parker’s Wine Advocate

Pinot Noir is and remains the backbone of the domain. In recent years, Holger Koch has significantly reduced the extraction process and focuses more on finesse than on fullness, “because suppleness comes naturally in the warm years.” There is no longer any remontage, and the pigéage is also only carried out during the main fermentation phase, which is hooked at below 30 degrees Celsius.

The lighter wines are grown on loess soils, while the more complex and structured wines are grown in volcanic soils.

The age of the vines is 15 to 30 years for the Pinots and two to 12 years for Chardonnay. For Chardonnay, Holger prefers classic clones from Puligny—with low yields and high complexity, thanks to larger and smaller berries in one bunch. Holger Koch harvests the grapes rather early, but the grapes are always ripe if possible. The grapes are destemmed, but not crushed. After a three- to four-hour maceration, the grapes are pressed overnight. The must is clarified in cooling tanks for 12 hours before it is fermented naturally in 500- and 600-liter tonneaux. Holger prefers fast fermentation. Everything should be dry by Christmas at the latest, otherwise, he will be cranky. The malolactic fermentation usually runs off in winter. Until the bottling in the spring months, the wine is hardly moved and only a little sulfurized. The assemblage of the individual lots, including a mash-fermented portion of 5% to 10%, takes place only shortly before bottling. The lighter wines are grown on loess soils, while the more complex and structured wines are grown in volcanic soils.

BASS PHILLIP

THE ESTATE

Bass Phillip is named after George Bass and Arthur Phillip – men of great pioneering spirit, foresight and leadership during the nineteenth century. The Bass Phillip vineyards were first established, many years later, in the southeastern corner of Australia in 1979, specialising in high-quality pinot noir and chardonnay wines. The vineyards have been organic since 1993 and biodynamic since 2002.

Made in a simple and traditional manner, with low-cropped vineyards, no irrigation and minimal intervention in the winery, the wines of Bass Phillip display flavours which are characteristic of the region and their individual vineyards. Deep mineral-rich soils, natural high humidity, and cooler temperatures in South Gippsland is also part of the magic that delivers the length, complexity, flavors, balanced acidity, and natural minerality to Bass Phillip wines.

Minimal human intervention is practiced wherever possible – no irrigation/pesticides/fertilizers, minimal pumping/ filtration, natural yeast, no fining agents.

GIPSLAND TERROIR

The region is blessed with approx. 1,000 millimetres of rainfall per annum and a deep, silty loam soil filled with volcanic minerals. High temperatures (mid 30 Celsius degrees) in the summer months are balanced by humidity and late afternoon, cool air from Bass Strait.

High density planting is one of the approaches taken by Bass Phillip to prove that Australia can produce an impeccable pinot.

Although a single vine at Bass Phillip barely makes half a bottle of wine, the highly perfumed nose, robust flavors, exquisite textures, profound complexity and minerality contained in each bottle provide a justification for this practice.

As of April 2020, Bass Phillip wines has welcomed the entry of Jean-Marie Fourrier of Domaine Fourrier. In this new phase of growth moving forward, Jean-Marie Fourrier will begin to take an active and primary role in the management of the vineyards and the wine production process as Chief Winemaker of Bass Phillip wines.

Jean-Marie Fourrier took over the Gevrey Chambertin family's 10 hectares property from his father in the mid 1990s at the age of 23 years old. His experience was gained not only at the family domaine in Gevrey-Chambertin, but whilst working at Domaine Drouhin in Oregon and with the legendary Henry Jayer in Vosne-Romanee.

His vineyard management is rigorous. With equilibrium being the keyword, he is in the vineyard at all times, and restricts his yields through pruning during the winter season as opposed to green harvesting, with no usage of any chemical fertilizer.

Meticulous about his grape selection, he instructs his pickers to eliminate any unsound grapes in the vineyard before the bunches go into the baskets as he wants to ensure that only perfect grapes go into the tank so as to yield the best lees for a successful elevage without racking.

BLANKBOTTLE

BLANKbottle started 12 years ago with Walser buying wine from other winemakers, blending it and bottling it. Five years ago, he started buying grapes and making the wine himself.

He buys from 58 vineyards in the Western Cape, picking 28 varieties from 68 lots over a period of 100 days (Jan 7 – mid-April) and from this he will produce 30 wines with a total production of 55,000 bottles. The largest output being Moment of Silence (4,000 bottles) and the smallest output being Im Hinterhofkabuff (400 bottles).

The blend changes every year so that none of his wines ever tastes the same. Half of the wines will not make a re-appearance.

“I experiment. If it is a new vineyard I make one barrel and see how it goes,”

——Pieter Walser

I appeal to the adventurous wine drinker and they buy my wines because they trust me – they give me money to take them on a journey.”

Pieter Walser started his label BLANKbottle because he was “fed up of tasting wines with fancy labels and wanted to create a wine brand that you could judge only on quality, not looks.”

Pieter produces wines that have no indication of the grape on the bottle, which not only demands complete honesty when it comes to quality, but it allows him the opportunity to introduce once-off limited runs of interesting wines. An honest brand that had no limitations when it came to style, vintage, area or cultivars. Something for someone with an open mind and an adventurous heart.

Quite apart from the grapes, wine and name, each of Walser’s wines have different, distinctive-shaped bottles and a unique label all handmade with original artwork by Walser out of woodcuts, linocuts and painting.

As for the winemaking itself Walser likes to adopt a non-interventionist approach. The wines are made in old oak barrels and left on the lees with no sulphur or enzymes added. After the winter he adds a small bit of sulphur prior to bottling. “I want my wines to be as naturally made as possible and I like it when grapes challenge consumers, but having said that I don’t want the wine to taste like bacteria. I want the wine to taste great and I want people to taste the vineyard.”

MOTHER ROCK

Johan Meyer, is a rising star of the new South African wine scene, who has developed strong relationships with some of the best grape growers across the Cape over the years, and as a result he has gained access to some of the region's best fruit.

The Mother Rock label focuses on discovering exceptional parcels of well-farmed vines grown on a variety of soil types from Swartland, and vinified as simply as possible. These are terroir-focused wines made to offer drinkability and enjoyment. Johan himself says it best: “I believe the word terroir should be used in honest terms. Letting the area and grape speak for itself in the bottle is our goal – naturally fermented grape juice, that’s all!”.

JH Meyer Signature Wines Focus on Johan’s love for Burgundy. Concentrating on single vineyards, in cool climate areas, often with high altitudes, the Chardonnay’s and Pinot Noirs which are all organically farmed, are amongst the finest in South Africa. Across all of his wines Johann pursues a hands-off approach to the winemaking using native yeasts and allowing the reds to undergo long gentle fermentation with extended time on the skins delivering wines with exceptional texture and tannic structure. They offer exceptional concentration and flavor whilst remaining elegant and light on their feet. All wines are unfinned and unfiltered.

Across the range, Johan’s wines represent exceptional value, for handcrafted, organic and natural wines.

AMUSE BOUCHE

Vin Perdu

Amuse Bouche wines are all produced in Napa Valley from estate fruit, and no expenses are spared to make top quality wines. Heidi Barrett former winemaker of Screaming Eagle produces 2 wines in partnership with John (Vin Perdu and Amuse Bouche Proprietary Red). Those are impressive Bordeaux red blends that are very well balanced, and approachable since a young age. Those are neither over oaked or too high in alcohol.

The Vin Perdu is the best value and most mind-altering wine from their estates. Every year the blend changes, so we can really say that each vintage is unique. Only around 600-800 cases are made each vintage (in 2019 only 200 cases were made).

About the winemaker Heidi Barret:

Having grown up in a winemaking family, Heidi was destined to become one of California's leading winemakers. Since 1988 she has developed a stellar client list of superb wineries such as Screaming Eagle and Dalla Valle. She is currently winemaker for Amuse Bouche and Jones Family among others. "My philosophy is to make the best wines possible with emphasis on the unique characteristics of each individual vineyard. I try to maximize the potential of each vintage in a very balanced, elegant style of winemaking"

Morgen Long wine have a singular focus on Willamette Valley Chardonnay, with high aims. To balance this, their work is deeply moored to historical methods and techniques for revealing the character of grape, time and place. They produce wines that can be easily enjoyed in the vibrancy of their youth or cellared confidently to reveal nuance and depth. Tiny production, single vineyard specific cuvee's make these wines to look out for.

Fruit is handpicked according to the vintage and is pressed uniquely, taking into consideration each site's pedigree, yield, and vintage character. The wines are Barrel fermented with 20-30% new oak from Damy. Lees are only stirred as needed, typically once or twice towards the end of primary fermentation, while CO2 is still present and before malolactic begins. Once primary fermentation and malolactic are complete, the wines age with minimal effective sulfur. After one year in barrel, the wines and lees are transferred to stainless steel with inert gas to blend and integrate for a second winter. Fining may occur with bentonite and filtration may occur prior to bottling after 18-20 months.

VINOUS

It's all Chardonnay, all the time for Seth Long, who makes his range of wines at the Lingua Franca winery in the Eola-Amity Hills. These are graceful, unadorned examples of the variety. Long sources from some of the Willamette Valley's most prized vineyards, some of which are bottled as site-designated wines. These Chardonnays are made for patient wine lovers, but if one is inclined to try them soon after release, I'd highly recommend some decanting.

The “rose” and “arrow”, innately connected yet conflicting, each defined by the existence (or absence) of the other.

Our favorite wines make us appreciate the harmony of opposites: acid/sweet, simple/complex, solid rock/sprouting vine. The latter is where our narrative begins, as every great wine is ignited by unique tensions in the rock of its origin.

The beauty of wine originates in the connection between the vine and the soil (or, in our case, the rock). We spent years unearthing how nature creates our favorite wines, and found our answer buried in the hillsides of Willamette Valley: Tiny pleats of ancient volcanic rock, relics from 14 million years ago when rich lava formed new land atop the seabed of Western Oregon.

ROSE & ARROW

WINEMAKING

The vines in these seven parcels, planted in pleats of preserved mother rock, carry the character of the land in its most primitive form. Our winemakers, Louis Michel Liger-Belair and Felipe Ramirez, liberate the vines’ instincts to produce the Pinot Noirs we love. The resulting single-origin wines embody the pleasure of paradox: a light body with a depth of complex flavors, aromas, and textures. A universal history of the hills, and the singular story of each parcel’s erosion.

This is the new highly ambitious project by Mark Tarlov (Chapter 24 Vineyards) and Louis Michel Liger-Belair of Burgundy notoriety. They work with famed soil scientist Pedro Parra and lead winemaker Felipe Ramirez to produce, as Tarlov puts it, “wines that express the individual character of their soil origin as accurately as possible.” This is a no-expense-spared operation. The maiden efforts from 2016 are undeniably stunning wines that show noteworthy depth of flavor and intensity. Parra thinks that the best days are yet to come as the team acquires more experience with the vineyards. This is definitely a winery to watch. Vinous

MUJAKU

The highest glory of Japanese sake

Produced by the Horie Brewery established in the middle of the Edo era in 1764, the Mujaku Sake is made of 100% Isehikari rice, the best rice from Ise Jingu, and milled down to a very low polishing ratio of 18%.

It's made using the purest underground spring water from the Nishiki River. The hard water is rich in minerals and it's chosen because of its high quality and purity. Mujaku is a very rare and premium vintage's sake with high aging potential. Unlike other sake with limited ageing ability, Mujaku will gain complexity from bottle ageing, like a fine wine. With an annual production of only 1000 bottles, Mujaku is distributed only to private collectors and exclusive partners.

Springwater from the pure Nishiki river

Horie sake brewery is located at the northernmost of the famous Nishiki river which runs through Iwakuni City from north to south, and was selected as one of the best hundred bodies of water in Japan.

It is known that the best sake comes from the purest water, and water has the potential to change the taste of the sake greatly, for this reason Horie Brewery makes Mujaku, its most premium sake using only this water source.

The highest glory of Japanese sake

The best polished rice

The Isehikari rice was farmed in the illustrious Ise jingu shrine fields in Heisei era, and is treated as special rice. The rice fields used in the production of Mujaku are grown by reducing agricultural chemicals and using organic fertilizer in order to produce the highest quality rice possible.

We harvest the Isehikari rice and polish it like diamonds. Shinpaku is the center of the of rice, and the most important part of the grain for making sake. The closer rice is to shinpaku, the better we can make good sake, and this is the reason Mujaku milled down to a minimum of 18% of its original size.

The traditional Sake brewery

Horie sake brewery was established in the middle of the Edo era(1764), and is the oldest sake brewery in this area. It's located about an hour's ride upstream the Nishiki, running along the valley between the mountains.

It is surrounded by a wonderful natural environment where Toji continues to make the best original sake, mixing traditional ways with modern skills.

Mr. Fuzen Horie, the master brewer at the Horie Sake Brewery, who had originally studied aged sake at Tokyo University of Agriculture, took the challenge to produce the most expensive sake in Japan, and was attracted by the phrase "as good as wine", when consumers try his exclusive creation "Mujaku".

"When we used hard water from the uppermost reaches of the Nishiki River and polished it to an uncommon 18% through trial and error, a strong, sweet, and unique flavor emerged. Mr. Horie is proud of the fact that the sake was appreciated more by foreigners for its taste than for its concept."

—Fuzen Horie

The Character of Mujaku

The raw material chosen to make Mujaku was Isehikari, a rice found in the Kanda area of the Ise Shrine and grown in Nishiki-cho by a farmer associated with the shrine. In addition to the ingredients and people from his hometown, the hurdles he had to overcome ignited the spirit of the master brewer.

In order to make a particularly good sake, special attention is dedicated to the process of fermentation and to the quality of the rice and water.

Mujaku is distributed nowadays to directly to collectors, and exclusive restaurants and hotels such as Armani Restaurant in the Burj Khalifa in Dubai, at Matsuya Ginza where is sold besides Romanee Conti, and at Madison Wine in Hong Kong.
