Gardeco

Gardeco could be considered an art publisher – or editor – that represents artists and craftsmen. It's where new ideas in art meet high-end decoration, made from fine quality materials such as ceramics, bronze and glass. We provide an exclusive range of products for our clients being art galleries, design stores, high-end furniture stores, home accessories stores, concept stores and architects worldwide.

One of the artists we are working with is Regina Medeiros, a glass artist who lives in Belo Horizonte. Over the years, she has mastered the art of glass casting and painting techniques and has introduced the use of local oxides and gold components to create unique effects in the glass pieces. These are all amazing handmade pieces, that demonstrate the skills of Regina and the people working in her studio.

Oyuna

The 2017 Home collection from OYUNA is as sumptuous as ever, full of the vibrancy that the brand are so well known for. OYUNA Home 2017 embodies contemporary luxury; opulent emeralds and the signature OYUNA ultramarine sit alongside neutrals and warm tones that are perfect as autumn approaches.

This collection is a celebration of textures; fringes, bouclé yarns and unusual knitting techniques combine to create a diverse offering. It is a collection that allows one to build their own story; whether that be classic or contemporary, bright tones or neutrals, chunky knits or fine wovens.

Whilst Mongolia remains at the heart of OYUNA, Home 2017 brings forth collaborations with British and Italian manufacturers who are pushing the boundaries of experimental textile techniques, meaning OYUNA's hands-on approach is even more explorative.

Sound Leisure doesn't mass produce its jukeboxes, they are created by hand using quality wood and real metal finishes by craftsmen and women – many of whom have been with the company since the beginning. Despite being inspired by the looks of the classic nostalgia models of the jukebox's heyday in the 1940s and 50's, Sound Leisure jukeboxes today incorporate the latest technology, including Bluetooth compatibility and digital amplification and can be created to individual specifications or bespoke colour schemes.
