

Don't let the legal process be your punishment

When a firearm owner is faced with a legal problem, the costs of legal representation can be debilitating.

If you're ever charged with a firearm related offence, Firearm Legal Defence defends your rights, provides you with a lawyer and covers your legal costs.

Our Firearm Legal Defence Policy provides up to $250,000 worth of lawyer's time and services per claim, to a maximum of $1,000,000 for all claims received in any one policy period. There is no deductible and all policies include unlimited access to our legal advice helpline.

What is covered

Unlimited telephone legal advice - We will provide you with access to a legal advice helpline through which you can receive confidential general legal advice and information over the phone relating to any personal legal problem to help determine legal rights and options under the provincial laws of the applicable province and the federal laws of Canada.

Firearm offences - We will pay your legal costs to defend your legal rights in relation to your being prosecuted for an offence arising out of the use, storage, display, transportation or handling of a firearm or bow.

Firearm licensing - We will pay your legal costs to represent you in appealing to the relevant statutory or regulatory authority, court, or tribunal following an event which results in a licensing, regulatory or judicial authority suspending, revoking, or altering the terms of, or refusing to renew, or cancelling your firearm licence.

Personal Injury - If you're injured by someone else using a firearm or bow, we'll provide you access to a lawyer and cover legal costs.
