

The 9 Best Double Strollers of 2023, Tested and Reviewed

Best for Travel: Delta Jeep Destination Ultralight Side x Side Double Stroller

PHOTO: AMAZON

View On Amazon | $218

View On Target | $218

View On Ashleyfurniture.com

Our Ratings

Assembly 5/5 Design 3.5/5 Maneuverability 5/5 Value 4.8/5

Ease of Folding 5/5

Pros

- It's easy to maneuver over stairs and around tight turns.
- The UPF-protected canopy keeps kids protected from the sun.

Cons

- The peek-a-boo window is plastic and can't be opened.

A single stroller can be hard enough to haul in and out of cars and even through airports and train stations, but a double stroller can be double the trouble. That's why we were so impressed with the performance of the Jeep Destination Ultralight. Throughout our testing we really liked how this stroller maneuvered, especially over stairs and uneven surfaces, and we found that it performs well on tight turns, too. The fact that it went up the stairs so easily was one of the best features about this stroller. The brake is easy to engage and release and folding/unfolding is also a cinch, which should give parents peace of mind when traveling with their little ones.

This Jeep double stroller has seats that can recline independently, along with adjustable calf rests, which adds a level of comfort for your little one — especially if they like to nap in the stroller. The canopy extends and offers UPF protection, which helps keep little ones protected on extra sunny days. Though there's a nice peekaboo window to let you check on your child, we wish it was vented instead of plastic to allow for ample airflow. In terms of ease of assembly, we had the Jeep out of the box and ready to go in just four minutes; it comes already assembled on the frame, so we just had to add the wheels and snap the arm bars and were literally good to go.

Price at time of publish: $17.99

Age/Weight Range: Up to 40 lbs. per seat | Stroller Weight: 28.6 lbs. |

Features: SPF 50 sun visors, carry strap, storage

Best Wagon: Jeep Sport All-Terrain Stroller Wagon

PHOTO: DELTA CHILDREN

View On Deltachildren.com

Our Ratings

Assembly 4.5/5 Design 4.7/5 Portability 4.8/5 Maneuverability 5/5

Value 4.8/5

Pros

- Multiple storage pockets in the front and back make it easy to store essentials.
- A removable snack tray separates the seats, and each one has its own dedicated cup holder.
- The five-point safety harness is easy to buckle and unbuckle, and it keeps kids safely in their seats.

Cons

- This isn't suitable for infants or younger kids who can't sit on their own.
- There's no footwell in the center, which means kids have to sit with their feet stretched out.

This fun and functional wagon is perfect for taking your kids to the beach, a park, or a family gathering. It's spacious enough to sit two little ones safely, and the five-point harness system keeps them securely seated in place. During our testing we found that the harness was extremely easy to buckle and unbuckle, and the wagon itself provided a smooth ride over all types of terrain. Whether we pushed it over gravel, carpet, or turf, we found that it glided smoothly and easily. We were able to turn it easily through the obstacle course even while using one hand and the foot pedal locking system helps keep it securely in place when not in motion. We love how easy this wagon is to fold and unfold, which makes it a perfectly portable option for taking on-the-go.

It's important to keep in mind that this wagon is only suitable for older babies who can confidently sit on their own. Also, the wagon does not have a footwell in the center, which means kids have to sit with their legs stretched out, rather than bent naturally when sitting down. While it still provides a comfortable ride, this configuration could prove uncomfortable on longer rides.

Price at time of publish: $250

Age/Weight Range: Up to 90 lbs. combined weight | Stroller Weight: 36 lbs. | Features: 360-degree front swivel wheels with in-line lock option; compact fold, auto lock and standing stow; one-handed backrest recline; spacious cargo basket

PHOTO: BEBE / GETTY IMAGES