✓ Pros: Can fit up to two kids at one time, plus ample storage space

✗ Cons: Big and bulky, not ideal as an everyday stroller

Why We Love It

While a stroller wagon probably wouldn't be your main stroller, it does offer some undeniable benefits. Although big, bulky, and harder to push than a regular stroller, families with multiple children find that stroller wagons are ideal for shorter, more leisurely walks — think around the neighborhood, trips to the zoo or walking to the beach on vacation

Many stroller wagons, however, only have a three-point harness, which the AAP considers less safe. So the Jeep Deluxe Wrangler Stroller Wagon by Delta Children stands out in that it can fit up to two kids in safe five-point harness seats. It can also accommodate an infant car seat with adaptors (sold separately) and has tons of storage space.

At 50 pounds, this stroller wagon is definitely heavy — you wouldn't want to be taking it in and out of your car very often. But for certain situations, parents love the flexibility it offers.

Weight: 50 lbs.

Dimensions: 46 x 29 x 46 inches

Weight/age limit: Up to 110 lbs.

Under-carriage storage: No

"I have a Jeep brand wagon which I love, but a couple of comments and considerations as you shop around. Pros: 5-point harness so we started using it when my son was just around 1 with no worry, can hold two kids, ample pocket and side storage, detachable sun shade, handle on both sides so can push from either direction, great on any terrain (dirt, grass, even sand, though still tough because well it's wheels on sand but definitely better than a stroller). I couldn't live without it going to the beach, I sit my son in it, pack everything in and around him and off we go! Cons: BULKY for everyday use, I don't like going for walks in the neighborhood or to the park. I feel like I'm pushing a bus. Doesn't fit through standard doorways when opened, not so easy to move when closed so I store it in my garage."

"This is quite pricey but it works awesome. You can put a newborn in a car seat on top of the wagon, and then you can have a toddler ride in the wagon. It has a harness to strap them in, comes with a cooler, cup holders, a canopy and the canopy has screens that roll down. I've used it at a flea market and had plenty of room to put the goods in. Only downside is that it's LARGE. It does fold in half but trying to find a home for it when not in use is a challenge."
