Best practices for the upgrade

Adobe recommends backing up all projects and media before updating.

Install the new version next to your existing After Effects installations to avoid compatibility issues. This will allow you to migrate projects to version 17.0 at your own pace. Creative Cloud allows automatic updating of Adobe applications.

Remove unwanted objects from your video with the appropriate fill tool.

Responsive content filling With After Effects, you can repair holes in a video created by removing unwanted areas or objects. After Effects analyzes step-by-step images to synthesize new pixels from other images.

Remove unwanted objects from a video clip by creating a mask or by cutting an object and then clicking Create Fill Layer. Content-Aware Fill uses the optical flow technology, points to the surrounding frames of the object, and fills the transparent area with neighboring pixels to get a consistent image.

Improvements in the expression editor

The new built-in expression editor replaces the existing editing experience with a modern, flexible editor with features such as line numbers, syntax highlighting, code folding, and auto-completion. The whole editing experience is flexible and can be customized to your needs.

Improved performance

The preview refreshes some areas of the low-priority UI in the Composition, Layer, Footage, and Timeline panels less frequently. This improves the overall performance of the rendering and fixes certain issues related to the inability to get real-time rendering in certain situations.

The following effects are now rendered using your computer's GPU when Project Settings> Rendering and Video Effects> Use is set to Mercury Acceleration GPU:

Change color
Corners and edges

Save instructions to share with publishers

You can now import guides in the Composition, Layer, and Images viewports and export them using the new Import Marks and Export Marks commands in the View menu.

Exporting guides create a template (.guides) file that you can share or import into other projects or to another composition, layer, or footage. A guide template file contains JSON data that records the attributes of the guide.

You can also import Help files created by After Effects in Adobe Premiere Pro 13.1 and vice versa. This workflow has some limitations, such as: For example, After Effects does not currently support all features of Adobe Premiere Pro-authorized manuals, such as: For example, the colors of individual manuals.

Automatic synchronization of Adobe fonts

If you open a project with a missing font in After Effects and that font is available in Adobe Fonts as part of your Creative Cloud subscription, Creative Cloud automatically syncs it.

Improvements to the support of audio and video imports
Improved support for RED and Sony formats

After Effects provides better support for importing video files in the following Camera Raw formats

RED metrics (.r3d) can now be disabled on the GPU if the project is configured to use Mercury GPU (Metal) acceleration on macOS. So far, the decomposition of RED was only functional for OpenCL and CUDA.
Sony VENICE V3 X-OCN movies (.mxf) captured by VENICE cameras with the 2019 firmware update can be imported.

Improvements in hardware-accelerated HEVC decoding

Windows HEVC rendering is smoother with new 10-bit hardware decoding
Hardware decoding improvements for H.264 and HEVC on macOS result in better performance when using these formats.

Changes to the settings

The General Settings panel option for displaying the splash screen when launching After Effects has been renamed Enable in Home Screen. It remains activated by default. Disabling this option now hides the Home button in the Tools window. Both changes take effect the next time you start After Effects.

Allow scripts to write files and access the network

Enable the JavaScript debugger
Expression Pick Whip writes compact English
Display the warning banner if the project contains expression errors
The Script and Expressions panel also contains options for the new expression editor.

Update the inherited expression script

A new script, Update Legacy Expressions.jsx, is installed with After Effects and is available from the File> Scripts menu. This script finds the existing syntax in expressions and updates them to be compatible with the JavaScript expression engine.

Specifically, this script searches the compositions, layers, or properties using the functional expression syntax with the Legacy ExtendScript expression engine, but is incompatible with the JavaScript expression engine and modifies them to be compatible:

One-line if ... else statements are changed to include a line break before the else statement.

Function blocks are moved to the beginning of the expression

In short, the references of this level are replaced by this level.

Source index table references, e.g. sourceText [n] are added with .value.

Snake_case properties and methods are replaced with camelCase equivalents (matching key-value pairs).

For more information, see Expressions: JavaScript Engine.
