Gotham font is known to be the geometric sans-serif typeface family that was created and presented by an American designer Tobias Frere-Jones in the early 2000s. The letterform of this typeface was inspired by the designs of architectural signage of the mid-twentieth century. This typeface had a great broad design with wide apertures and normal high x-height.

There is really a fewer number of people that would know the fact that Gotham is one of the most popular typefaces in the fonts industry and most of the web designers love to use this font in their projects.

This is known for its use in the adobe and font generator function. As this typeface became widely famous because of its use in many campaigns and especially in Obama's hope campaign this was the day this font is it on the peak. This is similar to optima font.

The main purpose of this typeface popularity is the creativity and uniqueness in its design. The designer will love to use this creative typeface to make their design more user-friendly and professional.

As we know that everybody wants to make their projects professional and more creative as it makes in nordic font and if you are one of them then this might be the right time for you to use this typeface.
