Independent Business

Advantages:

Freedom

The greatest advantage of owning your own independent business is calling the shots. Because you don't report to anyone, you have complete freedom and can make all the decisions.

Cashflow

Ongoing support, training, help with fit out, stock, marketing, supply chain management, operations, HR and so much more.

Disadvantages:

Limited Support

Even if you do have a background in the sector and you're taking over an existing business that has already had some success, you're on your own from the start.

No Manual

In your own business it's up to you figure out the best way to do things and there's no manual to follow for what will and won't work.

Franchise

Advantages:

Tested Model

Start trading as soon as you enter the business and don't need to spend time figuring out the best way to do everything.

Ongoing Support

Ongoing support, training, help with fit out, stock, marketing, supply chain management, operations, HR and so much more.

Brand Recognition

Joining a well-known brand means your business will have brand awareness from day one. Having an established reputation can be a huge advantage.

Disadvantages:

Limited Control

Signing a franchise agreement means you're committing to following the franchisor's guidelines. This can mean less flexibility and creativity in the way you run your business.

Ongoing Fees

While sharing the profits with the franchisor gives you access to benefits, they're also costs you need to factor in, deduct from your own profits and pay even if you run into tough times.

Competitors

Our Competitors

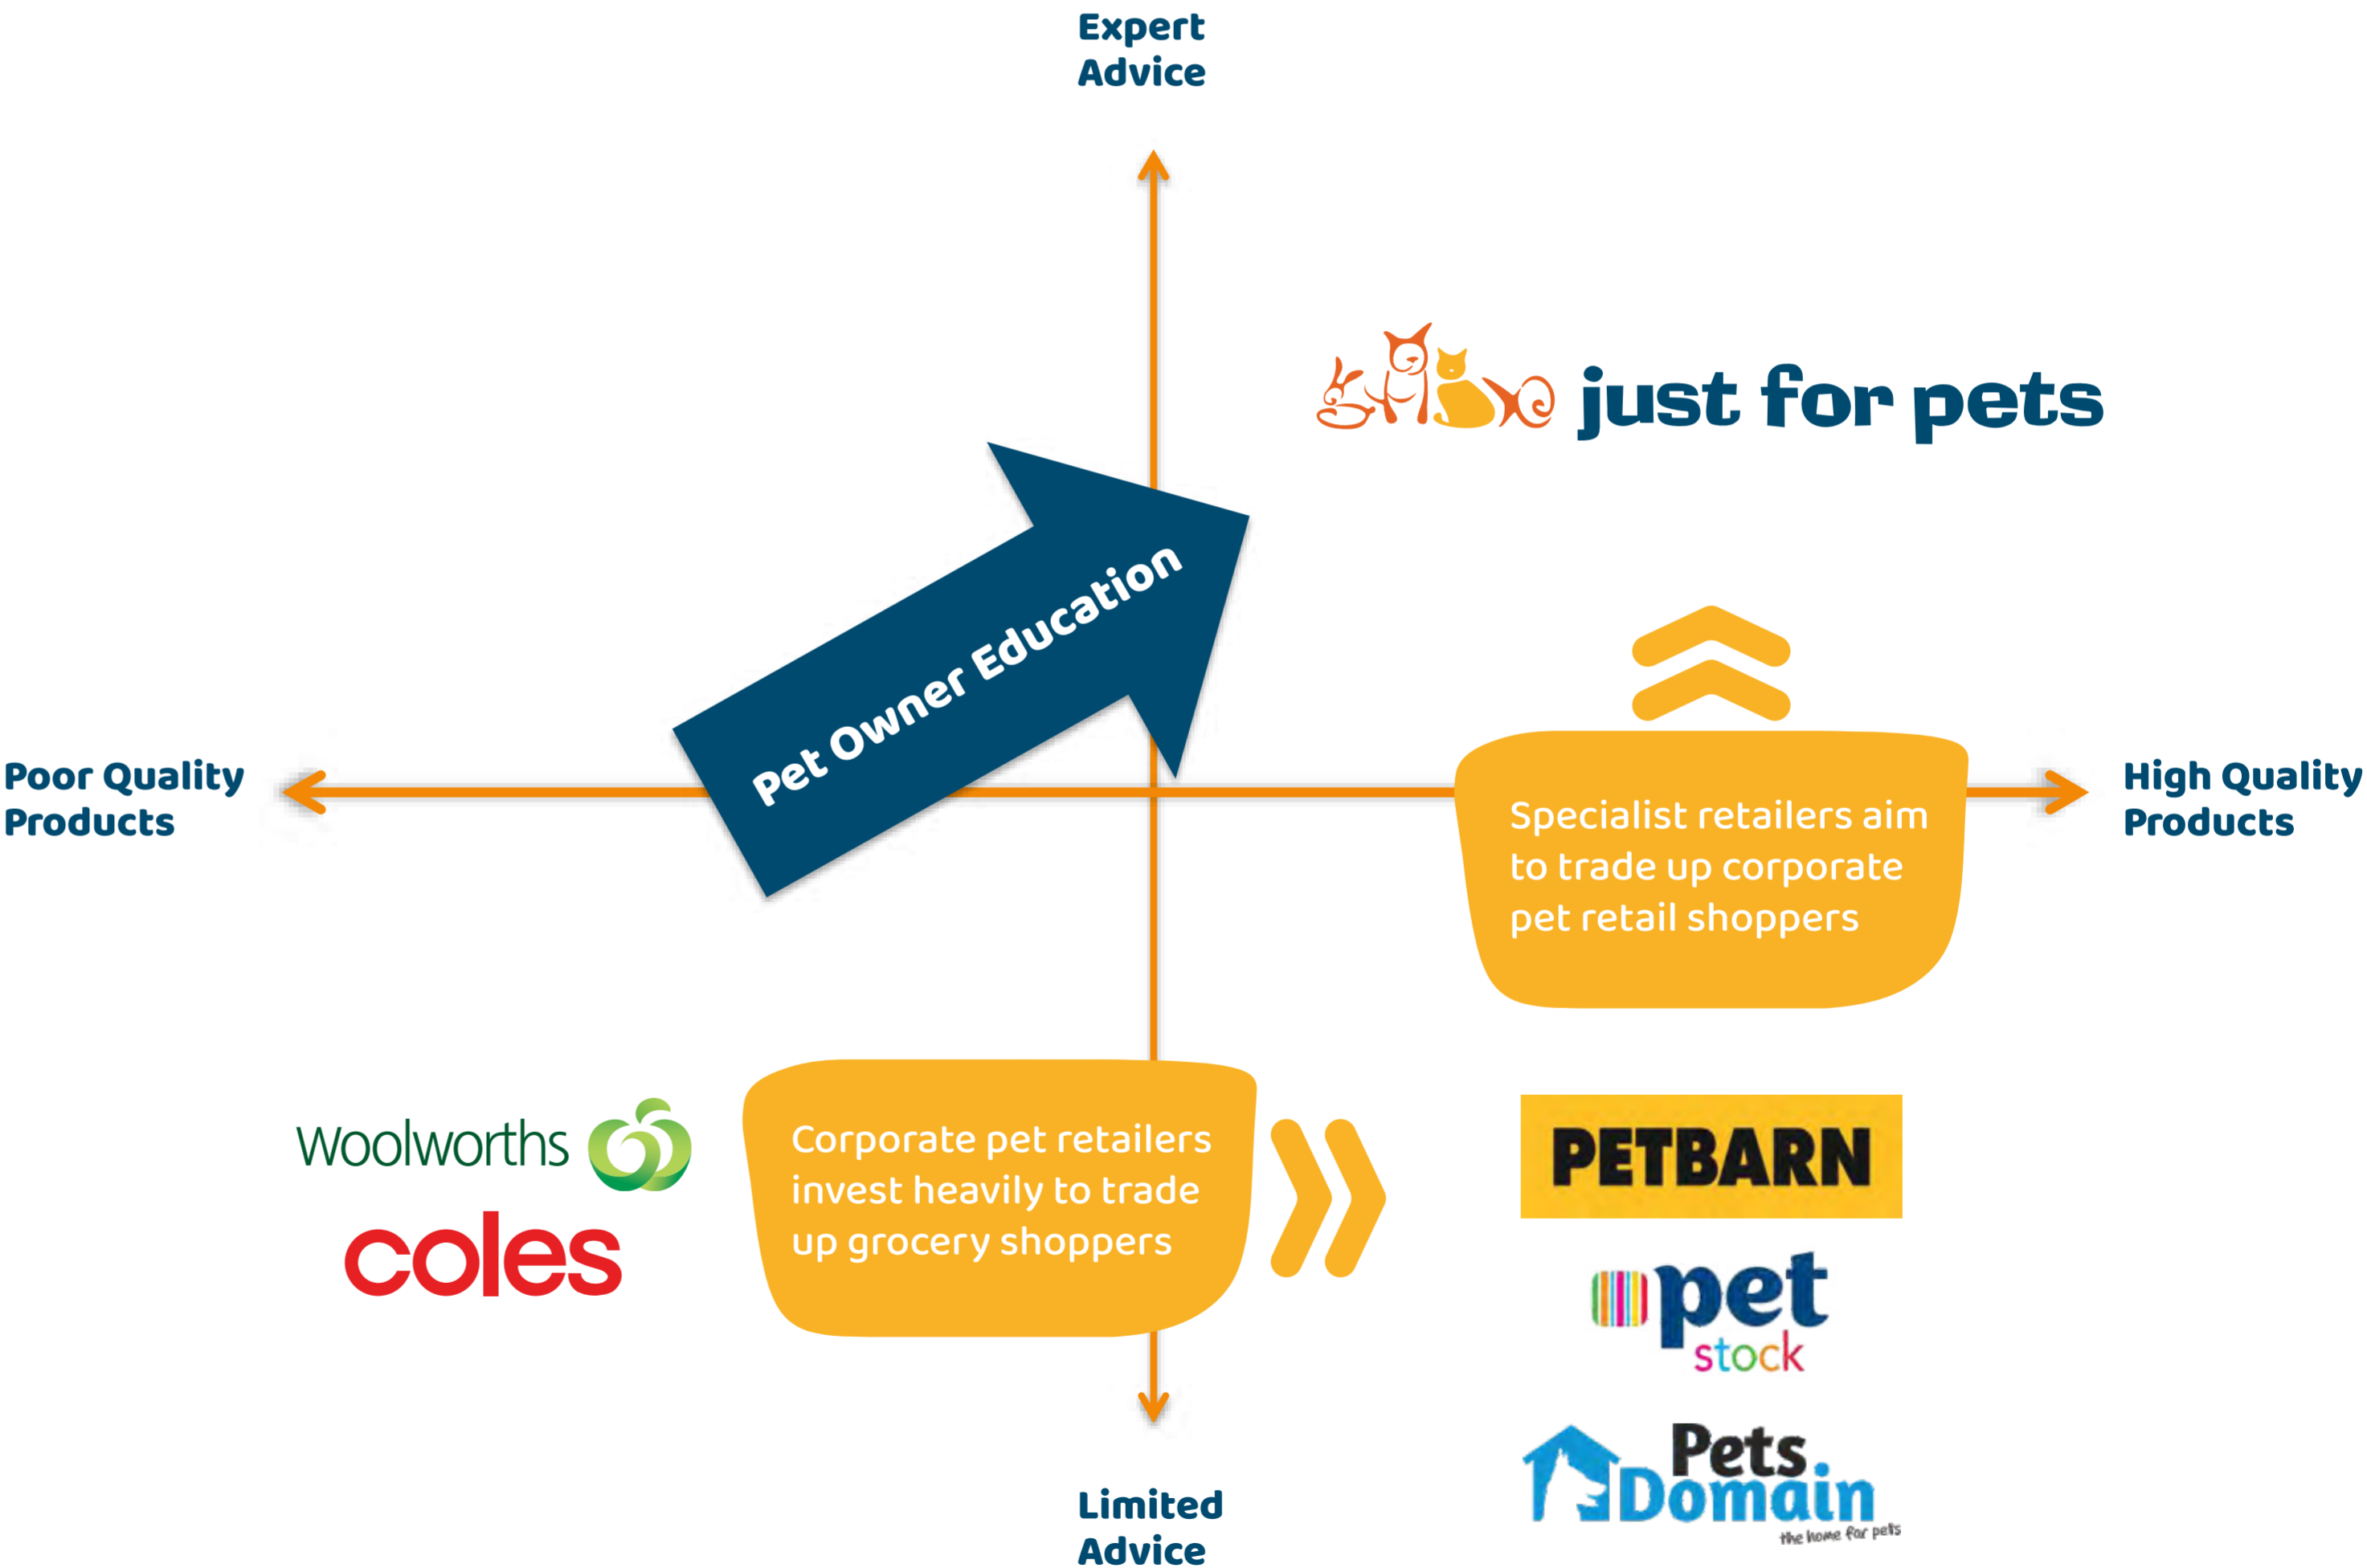

Corporate groups are accessing deals that have not previously been accessible to independent retailers. Collective negotiating is allowing us to gain access to these.

Supermarkets still have 72% of the pet market. JFP marketing initiatives are proving to access these shoppers and get them through your doors.

Just For Pets is the only group of pet stores offering significant national scale, excellent quality and expert advice.

How JFP impacts the market

Our Charity Partners

We're proud to support these amazing charities, incorporating pets and children. Raising funds and awareness and creating life changing skills.

RuffTRACK is a youth program based at RuffTRACK Farm in Western Sydney.

They take on young people aged 13-17 years old who have disengaged with school and the community to give them skills, education, a sense of self-worth and reconnecting them with their community by partnering them with a farm dog.

A partnership that takes them on a journey of learning responsibility, caring for others and communicating without violence.

Who Gives a Cluck is an Australian charity that rescues hens from the egg laying industry and from being culled.

Upon rescue, they provide any necessary veterinary care to the hens and rehome them to loving families.

They also provide advice to owners on all things hens!

- A voice for the Pet Industry

There are also many animal welfare and animal rights groups within the community that want to influence or prevent us doing legitimate business. It is becoming more important that the operators within the Australian Pet Industry take greater control of their own destiny. As such, the Pet Industry Association regularly makes formal submissions on pet industry issues at the request of Government agencies and industry regulators.

The main benefit of Pet Industry Association membership is the ability of an individual business operator to be able to make a comment through a "Peak Industry Body" to almost any regulator of the industry – and be heard!

KINGDOM ANIMALIA

Pets and Things to Avoid

We've all heard by now how chocolate is toxic to our pets and how we shouldn't be giving our pets any of our family-sized block no matter how much their eyes are begging us for. This got us thinking; just what else is bad for pets that we may not know about? We've compiled a list of things that could be harmful to your beloved furry pal and what you can do to avoid problems and alternatives you as their owner can offer to ensure their safety.

Chocolate
Chocolate poisoning is a problem that occurs mainly in dogs but also occurs occasionally in cats or other animals. Chocolate contains cocoa. Cocoa contains a compound called theobromine. Theobromine is poisonous to dogs and other pets in certain dosages. It is vital not to give your pets chocolate and to guarantee they can't by chance access any of your chocolate stash over the Easter period.

You can still give your dog some yummy cookies or choc-drops with a chocolate-like smell and taste, without the danger of chocolate.

Carob is naturally sweet and has a chocolaty flavour that dogs love! Carob is easy and safe for you to use in homemade dog treat recipes as well as products available from your local Just For Pets store.

Avocado
Avocado contains a toxin called persin, but only certain species of animals are poisoned by persin. While dogs and cats are rarely affected by persin, avocado poisoning can be deadly to birds and large animals (such as cows, goats, sheep). The bigger risk to dogs and cats is a foreign body obstruction in the oesophagus, stomach, or intestinal tract if part or all of a large avocado seed is swallowed. Pancreatitis is also possible due to the high fat content in avocados.

Pet birds, including canaries, parakeets, cockatiels, and large parrots, should never be fed avocado as they are extremely susceptible to persin. Signs of poisoning in birds include inability to perch, difficulty breathing, fluid accumulation around the bird's heart and lungs, liver and kidney failure, and sudden death.

Coconut and Coconut Oil
The flesh and milk of fresh coconuts contain oils that may cause your pet to have an upset stomach or diarrhea. When ingested in small amounts, coconut and coconut-based products are not likely to cause serious harm to your pet. Caution should be used when offering your pets these foods. Coconut water should not be given to your pets as it is high in potassium.

Citrus
Citrus stems, leaves, peels, fruit and seeds can be dangerous for our pets as citrus plants contain citric acid and essential oils that can cause irritation and issues with their central nervous system if consumed in substantial doses. Small quantities, such as eating one piece of fruit, is not likely to produce any considerable issues aside from a possible upset stomach.

Grapes and Raisins
Grapes and raisins can cause your pet to have kidney failure. It is unknown why these are toxic to our pets. This unknown toxin can cause vomiting, diarrhea, abdominal pain, anorexia, and acute renal (kidney) failure.

Milk and Dairy
Pets do not possess significant amounts of the enzyme Lactase which is essential to the complete digestion of whole milk. It breaks down lactose, a sugar which gives milk its sweetness. Due to this, dairy-based products cause our pets to suffer from diarrhea or other upset digestive issues.

Nuts
Nuts or contain high amounts of oils and fats. These oils and fats can cause vomiting and diarrhea and worst-case scenario - pancreatitis in your pet.

Macadamia Nuts
Macadamia nuts are highly toxic to your dog and can cause weakness, vomiting, tremors and hyperthermia in dogs. Signs that your dog has ingested macadamia nuts usually appear within 12 hours and can last up to 12 to 48 hours.

Garlic, Onions and Chives
These herbs and vegetables can cause gastrointestinal irritation and could lead to red blood cell damage. Cats are more vulnerable; however, dogs are still susceptible to risk if a large amount is ingested.

Salt and Salty Snack Foods
Large amounts of salt can cause your pets to become thirsty and to drink excessive amounts of water. Signs that your pet may have eaten too many salty foods include vomiting, diarrhea, tremors, elevated body temperature, seizures and worst-case scenario, even death.

Yeast Dough
Yeast dough can rise and cause gas to accumulate in your pet's digestive system. This can be painful and can cause the stomach to bloat and potentially twist, becoming a life-threatening emergency.

Tips:
Be mindful when feeding your pet table scraps or leftovers, many of your favourite foods may contain toxins that you don't realise are in there. Your local Just For Pets store has so many safe treat & healthy treats for your pet. Even an AMAZING range of Easter cookies!

If you think your pet may have ingested a toxin in or around your home, don't delay, seek Veterinary assistance immediately.
