CELTIC INSPIRED JEWELLERY

Keith Jack

Keith has spent his life submersed in every aspect of the jewellery business, but it wasn't until the birth of his two children that he became serious about designing jewellery himself. More than anything he credits his children, Caitlin and Sam, for igniting his passion for creation.

Keith draws inspiration from the raw beauty of the Scottish and Irish landscapes. Each of his jewellery collections offers something unique that he has seen in a hidden mountain loch, the grey sky over the glen or the ripples on a sandy beach. Inspiration becomes design.

Such sources of inspiration push him to combine textured precious metals and exotic gemstones in surprising and stunning ways. His designs are strengthened by his ability to blend ancient Celtic symbolism with contemporary style and elegance.

Keith currently lives in Vancouver, but frequently returns home to Scotland, spending time in the wild and beautiful country that is home to his inspiration.

Window to the Soul

Celtic legend is ripe with tales of people moving between the physical and faerie realms. With the passage of time it is now only our souls that can pierce this veil between worlds. This is because our souls are eternal, like the spiritual world, without beginning or end.

Wear this piece as a reminder that your soul is what binds your physical self to the spiritual world and that it needs to be nourished with an open heart and mind.

Scottish

Legend has it that a sleeping party of Scottish warriors were saved from ambush by an invading Norse army when one of the attackers trod on a thistle with his bare feet. His cries raised the alarm, the roused Scots duly defeated the invaders and the thistle was adopted as the flower of Scotland.

Claddagh

Forged in the 17th century, this Irish love token originated in a small village called Claddagh. The hands represent friendship, the heart love and the crown loyalty. Wear the heart facing towards you if you are in a relationship and away to show there is room in your life for another.
