Designed with small spaces in mind, the collection is distinguished by its geometric aesthetic and meticulous detailing, perfected for the modern urban home.

“I wish this collection would bring lightness in the small space, which is derived from the design and colour”
— Keiji Ashizawa, Designer

The Designer

KEIJI ASHIZAWA (b. 1973) lives and works in Tokyo, Japan. After graduating from Yokohama University School of Architecture in 1995, Ashizawa spent the first ten years of his career working as both an architect and steel fabricator. The unique skills and experience gained throughout these early years, including a valued understanding of metals, continue to influence his approach to design. Keiji Ashizawa presents work of 'honest' design – simple yet refined, thoughtful, and of a light manner – derived naturally through the process of attempting to maximise the potential of each material and its function. He excels in applying these ideas to projects of various scales, from furniture and lighting design to architecture and exhibition design. His furniture and lighting have been exhibited internationally since 2001. In 2011, Ashizawa was awarded a 'Special Award' by the Japan Institute of Design for his principal participation in the inception of Ishinomaki Laboratory – a DIY furniture workshop established in Ishinomaki city, Japan, after it was devastated by the tsunami triggered by the Great East Japan Earthquake.

KERNEL is a furniture and lifestyle brand that aims to put good design in every home.

KERNEL curates and creates designs that tell unique stories, are novel in design and value attention to detail. We believe that your home should reflect who you are and create a harmonious environment that brings out the best in you.

With the harmony of functionality and form at the forefront of our ethos, KERNEL works with acclaimed designers around the region to offer thought-driven, innovative designs that thrive in all spaces. Design doesn't stand still, neither do we. That is why we are always working on bringing you novel ideas in home furnishing.

KERNEL

The Team

Growing up in a family where furniture was very much part of life, our founder, Jason Song teamed up with his two friends, T Y Zheng (ACRE) and Melvin Keng (Kaizen Architecture) to bring KERNEL to life in 2021.

KERNEL adopts a human centric approach to design so as to enrich any home or office.
