Emeritus professor Geoffrey Bolton fills a real need for an updated history of Western Australia with his much-anticipated release, Land of Vision and Mirage.

This comprehensive short history delves into the moments, from 1826 through to the present day, that changed the state and led to its unprecedented growth.

More of a descriptive account, than highly analytical, Land of Vision and Mirage vibrantly narrates the social, cultural, political and economic development of the most geographically isolated area in the world.

The evolution of popular WA institutions, such as BankWest, the Royal Automotive Club, the University of Western Australia and the West Coast Eagles all make for an interesting read, as do Bolton’s wry observations on the current mining boom and the emergence of western entrepreneurship.

Twenty-seven years have passed since the last short history of WA was published and with the current mining boom taking the state on yet another historical adventure, Land of Vision and Mirage is sure to stimulate public debate.

ABOUT THE AUTHOR

Geoffrey Bolton AO is an eminent historian, author of 13 books and former Chancellor of Murdoch University. A graduate of both the University of Western Australia and Oxford University, Bolton has lectured around the world and held chairs at several universities. He was General Editor of the five-volume Oxford History of Australia. Named Western Australia’s 2006 Australian of the Year, Bolton resides in Perth.