OUR COMPANY

What can we say? We're a cement tile company with a passion for color!

20 years ago we started our venture into the construction materials world, but it wasn't until 2014 when we decided our world wasn't colorful enough. Inspired by the traditional cement tiles of Europe, we began our quest to bring vibrant tiles to the American market.

Today, we have two fully stocked warehouses in NJ and TX, allowing us to cater to the entire US. We find inspiration in nature and have a dedicated team of talented designers creating exquisite patterns in a rainbow of shades. We strive to think outside the box and constantly push creative boundaries in hopes of creating exceptionally unique collections aimed to delight.

All of our tiles are designed in the US and handcrafted in Vietnam.

As a company, we believe in originality. We believe in creativity and unapologetic self-expression. We believe in color. We believe in beautiful spaces and good vibes, in honest business, exceptional customer service, and the determination to do the best we can. We believe that good things happen to good people and most importantly, we believe in happy customers.

HISTORY OF CEMENT TILES

Cement tiles have had a long history in the design world, first appearing in Catalonia in the 1850s. Their beauty and versatility was immediately noticed as they made their debut at the Paris International Exposition in 1867. Due to their beauty and versatility, it did not take long for cement tiles to spread across Europe. Their production did not require energy expenditure, which meant they did not need to be baked in an oven or fired in a kiln, making them extra appealing during the time. These durable tiles quickly made their way into the most grand palaces and ornate buildings of the world, used on both floors and walls.

The French eventually brought the process over to Vietnam, which has high grade cement - ideal for such a delicate process. Today cement tiles are also made in Morocco, Spain, and Mexico, however, the precision and quality of the Vietnamese remains unmatched.

Cement tiles can be found throughout the world in both private and public spaces, the Grand Bazaar in Istanbul and the Palace of Versailles, just to name a few. Their durability makes them an ideal candidate for a tile that lasts for generations.

HOW IT'S MADE

LiLi Cement Tiles are handmade, which means each tile has been crafted individually and is completely unique.

A mold that resembles a cookie cutter is created by fusing various shapes of brass together to create a pattern. Pattern designs range from traditional to modern and everything in between. Our talented design team works diligently to create original & unique patterns in hopes of bringing beauty to your space. Since LiLi Cement Tiles are made on an individual basis, starting right from the mold, custom designs are easily achievable.

Once ready, the mold is placed in an outer frame and pigmented cement is carefully poured into each section. It is then topped off with portland cement, sand, and marble powder, giving LiLi Cement Tiles their inherent strength. Each tile is then pressed with 2,000 psi of pressure & placed on a rack to cure for 11 days. Quality control is conducted on a piece-by-piece basis rather than a lot production to ensure beauty and quality in every tile we produce. This process has not changed much since the 1850's, giving cement tiles their distinct individuality in a mass produced world.

The production of cement tiles still remains energy free, making LiLi Cement Tiles environmentally sustainable. Our tiles are also non-flammable and completely recyclable.

INSTALLATION & SEALING

When installed properly, cement tiles will last for generations to come. Ideally, they should be installed by a professional contractor with prior cement tile installation experience.

The appeal of cement tiles is their individual beauty, which means slight color variations may occasionally occur from piece to piece. In order to disperse this variation, it is best to take cement tiles out of the box and lay them out. Moving tiles around and deciding how they should look prior to installation is called a dry lay. This is especially helpful in large spaces and with tiles that have an interlocking pattern.

Due to the nature of cement, cement tiles are quite porous. This means that in order to protect them from absorbing liquid and staining, cement tiles must be properly sealed with our recommended sealer. It is imperative to seal cement tiles in order to protect them from inevitable spills & messes. Sealing cement tiles must be done after installation and before grouting. A quartz-based grout must be used in order to prevent staining the tiles.

All LiLi Cement Tiles come with an installation guide in every box. We strongly urge each step to be read & reviewed prior to installation in order to ensure a flawless installation.

RECOMMENDED INSTALLATIONS

 Floor	 Commercial Floor	 Wall	 Backsplash	 Accent	 Shower Pan

PRE-SEALED TILES

As of April 1st 2019, all new collections and custom tiles are pre-sealed for handling purposes. Pre-sealing protects cement tiles from dirt & stains during the installation process, however, tiles MUST be resealed after installation. For optimal results, use Stainproof Original Sealer by Drytreat.

Freeze/Thaw Resistance: Untreated cement tiles are not resistant to freeze/thaw cycles and must be treated with a penetrating sealer

Acid Resistance: Cement tiles are not acid resistant and must be cleaned with pH neutral cleaners

Use in Wet Areas: Cement tiles can be used in almost all wet areas, except inside pools. Must be sealed with a penetrating sealer in order to avoid any damage

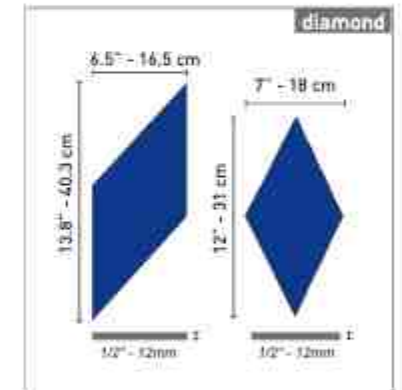

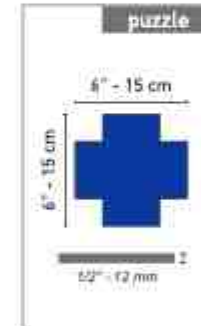

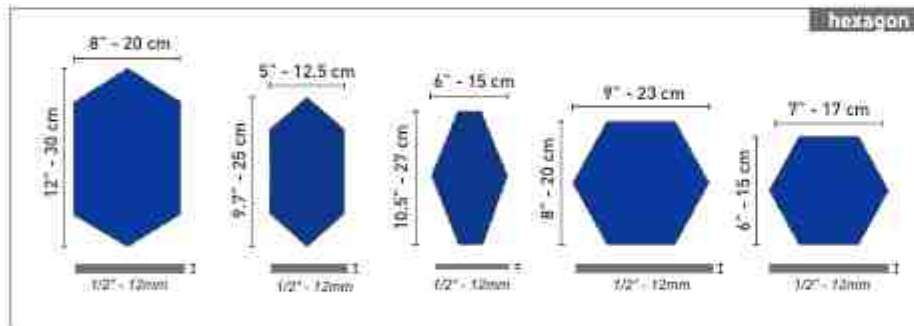

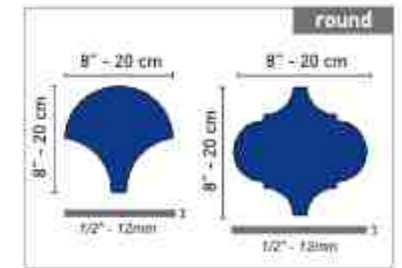

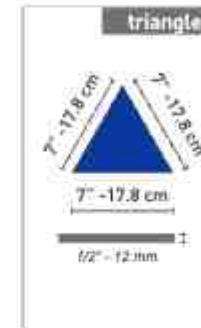

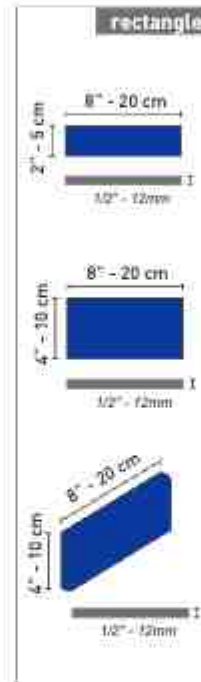

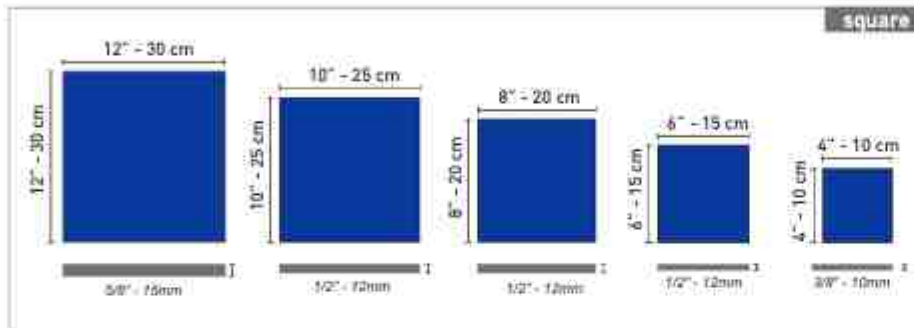

Grout: Cement tiles must be installed with a quartz based grout in order to prevent staining from standard grout pigments

Please refer to www.lilitile.com for more information

CONTINUED MAINTENANCE

Cement tiles must be cleaned with a non-abrasive, pH neutral cleaning product
Highly acidic cleaning products will cause damage to cement tiles and should be strictly avoided
Avoid using mops or chemicals with abrasive grit, as this could damage the tiles
Avoid using bleach to clean tiles, as this removes the sealer and exposes tiles to staining
Sweeping or mopping tiles regularly will help ensure the durability of cement tiles
Depending on foot traffic, periodic resealing may be necessary
