The wine experience you've been waiting for...

Uncorked:

This month I decided to move a little further south in Italy and let everyone know about a great Tuscan producer, Ciacci Piccolomini. Piccolomini is one of the most sought after producers in the Montalcino region of Tuscany for their beautiful Brunellos an Rosso di Montalcino's, but the wine I want to introduce you to is there Super Tuscan, Ateo, or atheist in Italian. They use this term, Ateo, to poke fun at the strict laws governing winemaking in Italy. Their Ateo wine is a blend of Cabernet Sauvignon and Merlot grown organically in their estate vineyards. The wine shows sweet black cherry and cassis, and has a plummy texture. Tobacco, vanilla, and baking spices intermingle on the nose and palate. Ateo shows nice complexity and good structure that drinks well now with a decant and will age well for the next 20 years. Try this exceptional wine with a nice steak, roasted leg of lamb or beef stew.

Spirit Corner:

I almost always talk about whiskey in the spirit corner and for good reason, because I love it! This month I want to let you know about another limited release bourbon I was fortunate enough to get, Wathen's Barrel Proof. Only 25 barrels of this awesome bourbon were produced this year, 186 bottles per barrel and I have 6, sorry 5 bottles left, I had to try one myself so I could write about it. This bourbon is a little warm, 110.4 proof, but the flavor profile is intense with notes of apricot, cinnamon, baking spice, vanilla, honey and dark chocolate. The finish is smooth and long with a touch of pepper and ample oak. Come and pick-up a bottle of this delicious bourbon while it lasts.
