It's a quiet day at the Seong Wu School of Martial Arts. The Kung Fu Force is training hard, as always. Well, Lucas the Lizard, Coco the Cockatoo and Shifu Seong are, anyway.

Brady the Bengal Cat is feeling bored.
"Why do I have to practise the cat stance? After all,
I am a cat," he grumbles.

Before Shifu can answer,
the Kung Fu Force hotline rings.

Meet the Kung Fu Force—Brady the Bengal Cat, Lucas the Lizard and Coco the Cockatoo. Together with Shifu Seong, they are called on to save the day!

Brady thinks he knows it all as his teammates work on their techniques and stances. He is a cat, after all—he doesn't need to practise his cat stance. But when a friend calls for help, Brady can't power up enough of his Chi energy. Uh-oh.

Robin Leong is a renowned kung fu master and actor. He became a household name in Singapore starring in several popular series, including the police drama Triple Nine and the martial arts drama The Challenge (谁与争锋). In 2002 Robin established Ch'i Life Studio, a premiere martial arts studio with thousands of young students worldwide.

Eric Wong is the artist and illustrator behind the miniature 3-dimensional creations in the bestselling Karung Guni Boy, brought to life in an art installation by National Gallery Singapore.
