“Bubbles!” cried Di-Di-Di, looking at his toy dolphin.
“Kobe’s eating Bubbles!” Sam rushed in to see Kobe munching on Di-Di-Di’s favourite toy.
“Bad boy,” they said. But Kobe just looked up at them, wagged his tail happily, and then continued chewing on Bubbles.

“Don’t worry,” said Sam, picking up
what was left of Bubbles. “I’m sure Grandma can fix him.”

“While Grandma is mending Bubbles, let’s go to Dolphin Island to have breakfast with the dolphins,” said Sebbie.

Papa and Mama agreed that it was just the thing to cheer Di-Di-Di up, so off they went to Dolphin Island. “I hope no dogs are allowed. I don’t want Kobe chewing on the dolphins too,” said Di-Di-Di.

At Dolphin Island, the children rushed to change into their wetsuits and headed to the dolphin pool. Now the dolphins were just as excited to see Sam, Sebbie, Di-Di-Di and Xandy as the children were to see them. They swam to the surface of the water and began slapping their fins on the water's surface.

“My brothers say they’re better at doing everything than I am,” said Chloe the Dolphin.

“But we are,” said Bing and Bong.

“That sounds like my brothers,” said Sam.

Then Chloe looked at her brothers Bing and Bong who were chasing each other around the pool. “One thing you’re both better at is being cheeky and naughty.”

“My brothers are very good at being naughty too,” said Sam, giggling.

“But sisters are best at teasing,” said Sebbie.

“We agree,” said Bing and Bong. “Our sister teases us all the time.”

At Dolphin Island,
Sam, Sebbie, Di-Di-Di and Xandy
get to play with three lively dolphins.
Each claims to be the best dolphin of all.
This calls for a Water Olympics!
Will the dolphins' sibling rivalry
bring about a splashing
good time for all?
