EPIGRAM BOOKS / SINGAPORE

Nora's mother has a batik sarong that was handed down to her by her grandparents. Nora loves its beautiful pattern of flowers, leaves, shapes and dots.

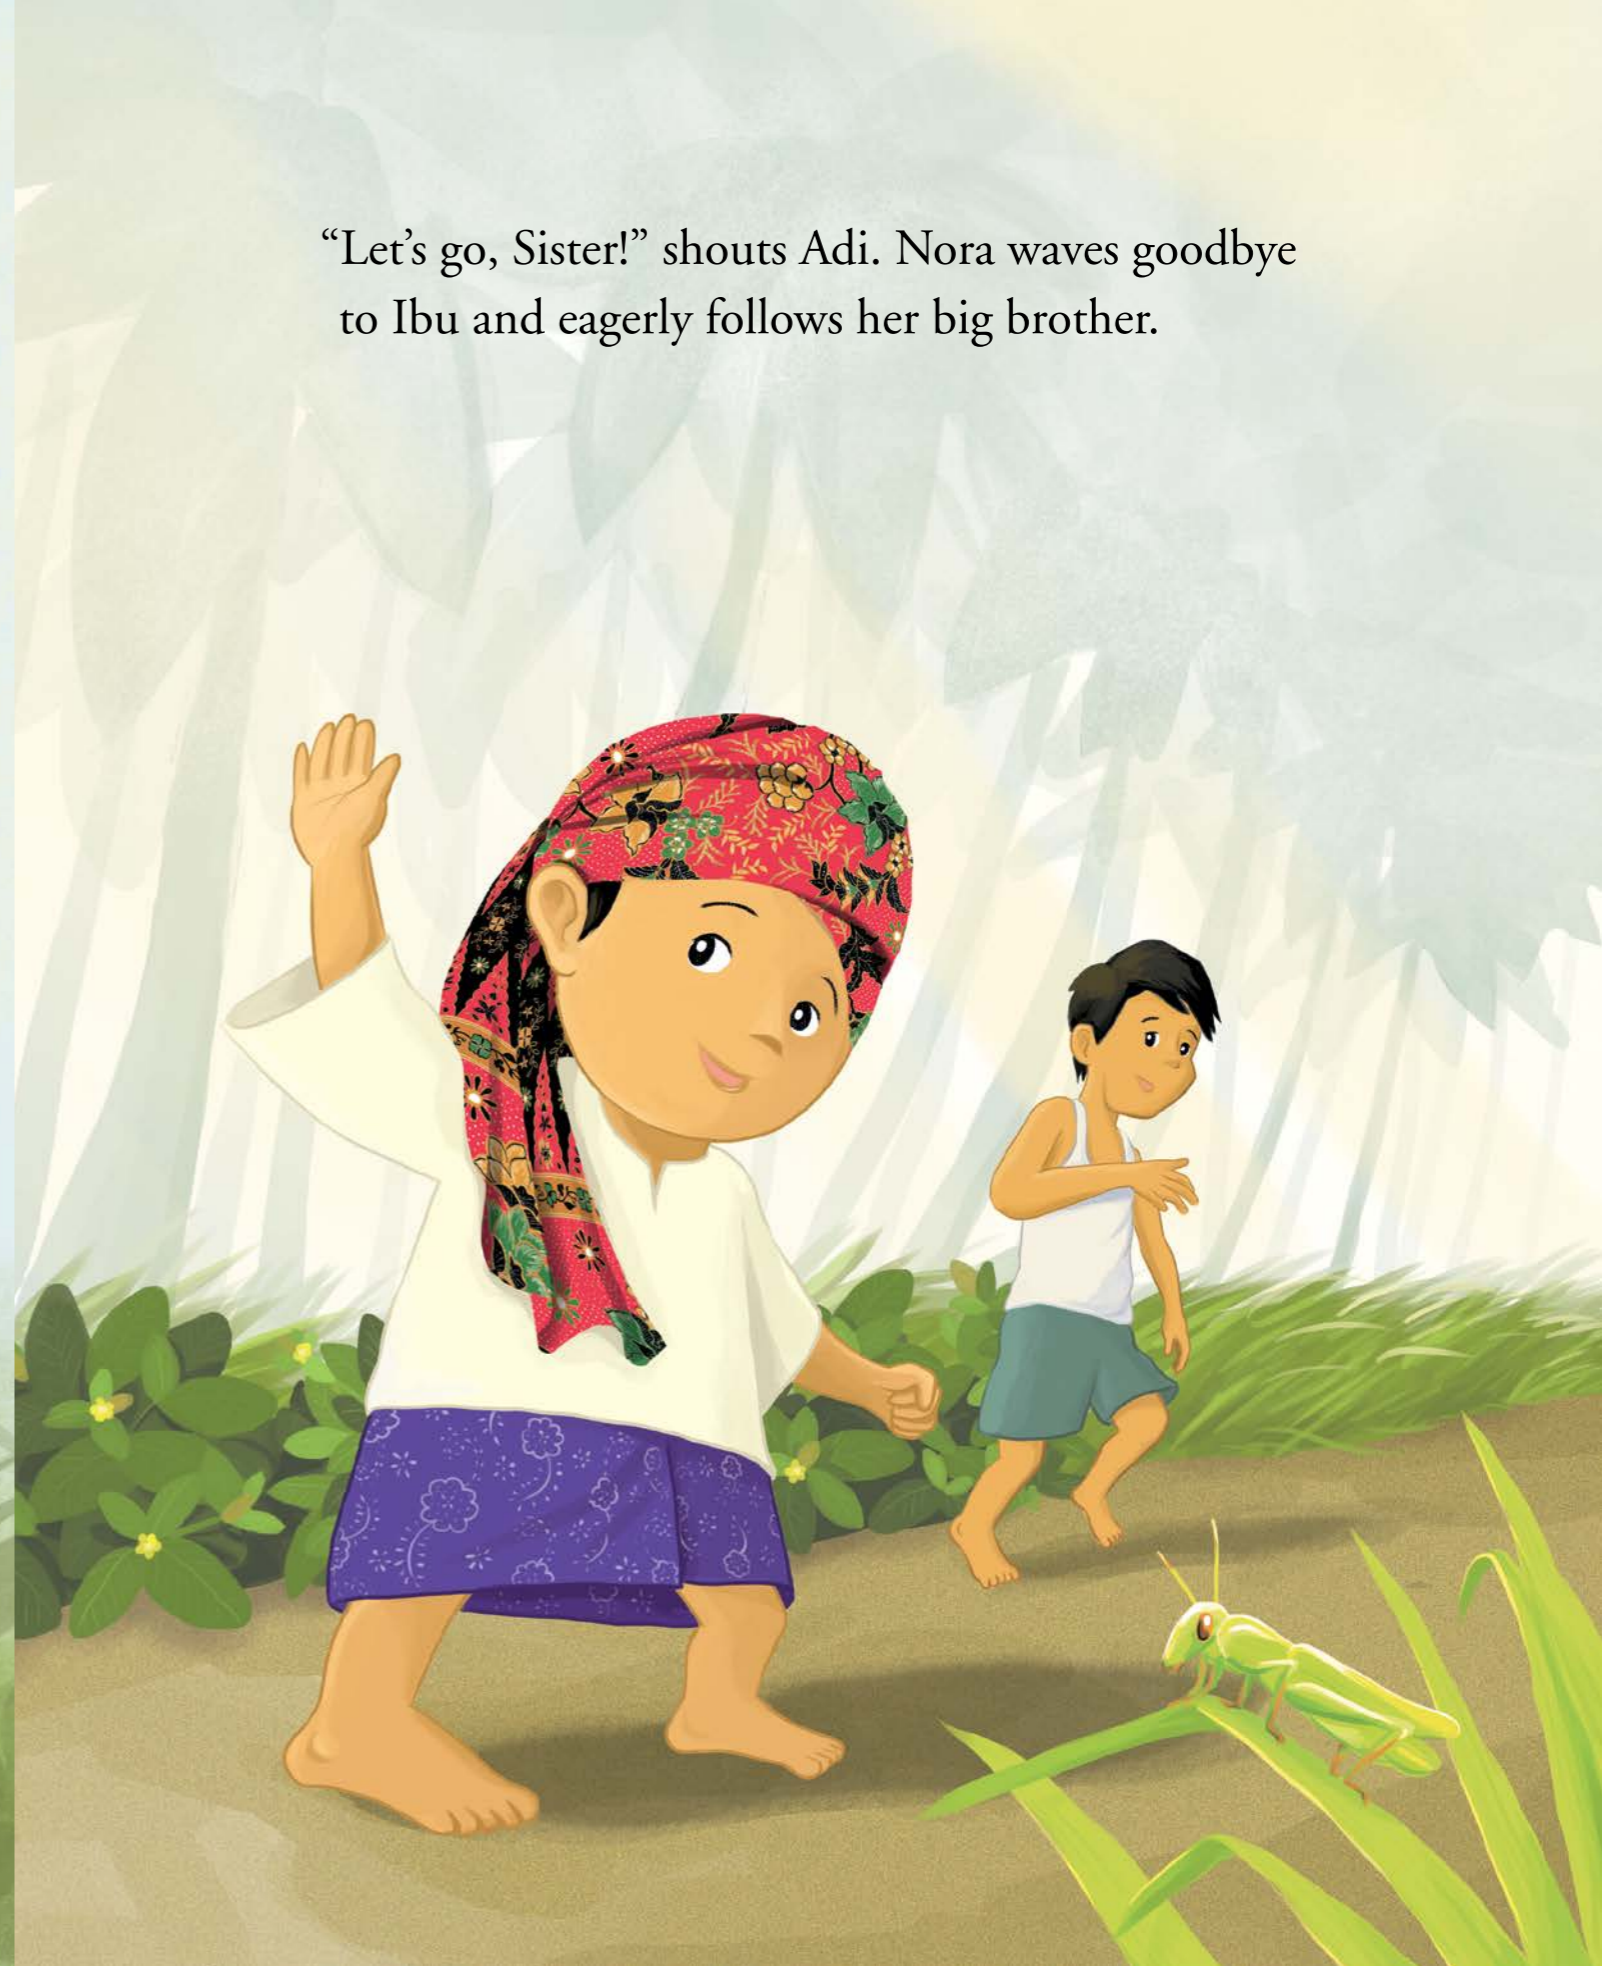

One sunny day, Nora calls out to her mother,
“Ibu! I’m going to the beach with Brother!”

“All right, take this sarong with you,” says
Ibu. She puts little Putra down and removes the baby sling tied across her body.

Ibu wraps the sarong on Nora's head, like a turban. "This will protect you from the sun," she says.

"Let's go, Sister!" shouts Adi. Nora waves goodbye to Ibu and eagerly follows her big brother.

Adi and Nora are about to go to the beach when their mother takes off her sarong baby sling and tells them to take it. And what an adventure they had with it!
