Photodynamic therapy (PDT) + 5-aminolevulinic acid (ALA)

PDT is an excellent therapeutic alternative for the treatment of moderate to severe inflammatory acne, involving the use of a photosensitizer (ALA) that is activated on the affected tissue when exposed to light at a certain wavelength, producing a photodynamic reaction, oxidative damage and selective destruction of the cells that fix this product.

Aminolevulinic acid belongs to a class of drugs called photosensitizing agents. When aminolevulinic acid is activated by light, it damages the cells of actinic keratosis lesions.

Propionibacterium acnes (P. acnes) is the most prevalent microorganism in the skin and follicles of areas rich in sebaceous glands. This bacterium produces endogenous porphyrins and photoactivation with blue-ultraviolet LED light at an intensity of 415 nm leads to the formation of cytotoxic oxygen which ultimately leads to the disruption of the normal function of the bacterial cell wall and subsequent death of the microorganism.
