Zellige and Terracotta

One of the most recognizable and iconic parts of Morocco is Zellige. Colorful tiles that often adorn public fountains, mosques and private dwellings.

Their precise hand-cutting techniques, adjunct to the indicative chamfered back, is what defines them. Differentiating them from any other tile in the world.

This combination of traits renders Zellige tiles able to be installed without any grout in between them. This is what truly allows the intricate geometric patterns that this part of the world's architecture is vastly known for.

We also make normal Terracotta tiles. They have the same color range as our Zellige, but are your standard rectangular prism shapes. No chamfered backs.

All our tiles are 100% handmade.

What makes our tiles special

Our Zellige is made of high-quality local clay from Fes, filtered and wet on site. This allows us great quality control.

All the off-cuts from the original shaping are re-used for a zero waste approach.

We originally cut the 10x10cm in 11x11cm, so they can be re-trimmed after the final glaze. This achieves perfectly straight edges.

We measure and mix all the pigments ourselves in-house.

We guarantee NO LEAD in our colours.

We also offer good working conditions to all our workers, fair wages and chartered social insurance. Heritage Groupe always strives to be the local leader in social and ecological awareness.

Zellige's are handcrafted products and no two pieces are exactly alike. Every Zellige has unique variations, markings and shadings which are not defects but rather inherent characteristics of the beauty of this product that are impossible to represent in one single tile. Average thickness tolerance is + 1.5 mm. Not calibrated.
