Curation is more than just a good eye.
It requires foresight.

PAUL BRUNNGÅRD

At Arterton, we focus on the basic ingredients of quality craft, genuine materials, and sound design. We believe that fine goods, when created well, sell on their own accord. We call this the art of desiderata.

Desiderata (noun.)

“something to be desired” from mid-17th century Latin

Matthew Gonzalez,
Savile Row Cutter

Gonzalez combines his American heritage with know-how from his Huntsman days to craft beautiful Americana-inspired suiting with soft shoulders and an elegant cut.

Supporting the Trade

In our London facility, we provide engravings up to 800 DPI in as little as 24 hours.

Yearn
SHOEMAKER

“Made in China”: A Bad Epiphet?

Yearn Shoemaker embodies the very best of shoemaking, with a hand-welted construction, previously available only at the level of bespoke, and outsole stitching to world-leading 12 SPI.

So, we think not.

Breaking Misconceptions

Since 1946, Nakata has been making the world's finest hangers in Japan. Artisans use a traditional woodworking tool called the nankin-kanna to hand-plane the surface of the wood.

They say that “the longer the woodshaving, the more experienced the artisan”

BRIDLEN

— SHOEMAKERS SINCE 1986 —

Seen as the shoemakers for shoemakers, Bridlen has built a reputation of employing classic techniques to craft well-made shoes.
