HGH and Sleep! This is the hormone your body naturally produces. It can be great for your health and produces while you sleep. HGH is commonly known as a steroid because there has been a few athletes who inject high levels of HGH to perform better. But it is something our body s naturally produce and there s even ways for us to naturally increase our production of it. The more quality sleep you get the more HGH you will produce which will lead to faster recovery, more energy, muscle growth, and fat loss!
