

THE POLYMATH CHRONICLES

FOLLOW BY EMAIL

Submit

MONDAY, MARCH 19, 2018

HOUSE REVEAL PART 2

Hello Chickens, and Happy Monday! Hopefully none of your brackets are busted...

Now that you have all seen the most formal space in the house, I thought we'd pop downstairs to the basement for the least formal spaces!

A lot of this will be a repeat for those of you who have been with us since the beginning, but since the basement was the first level we completed, it seemed worth revisiting.

Here is the landing at the bottom of the stairs, which became a very convenient little museum of odd things.

HOW TO CHANGE A LIFE

Available now!

Follow me on Twitter @staceyballis

SUBSCRIBE TO THE POLYMATH

 Posts

 Comments

GOOGLE+ BADGE

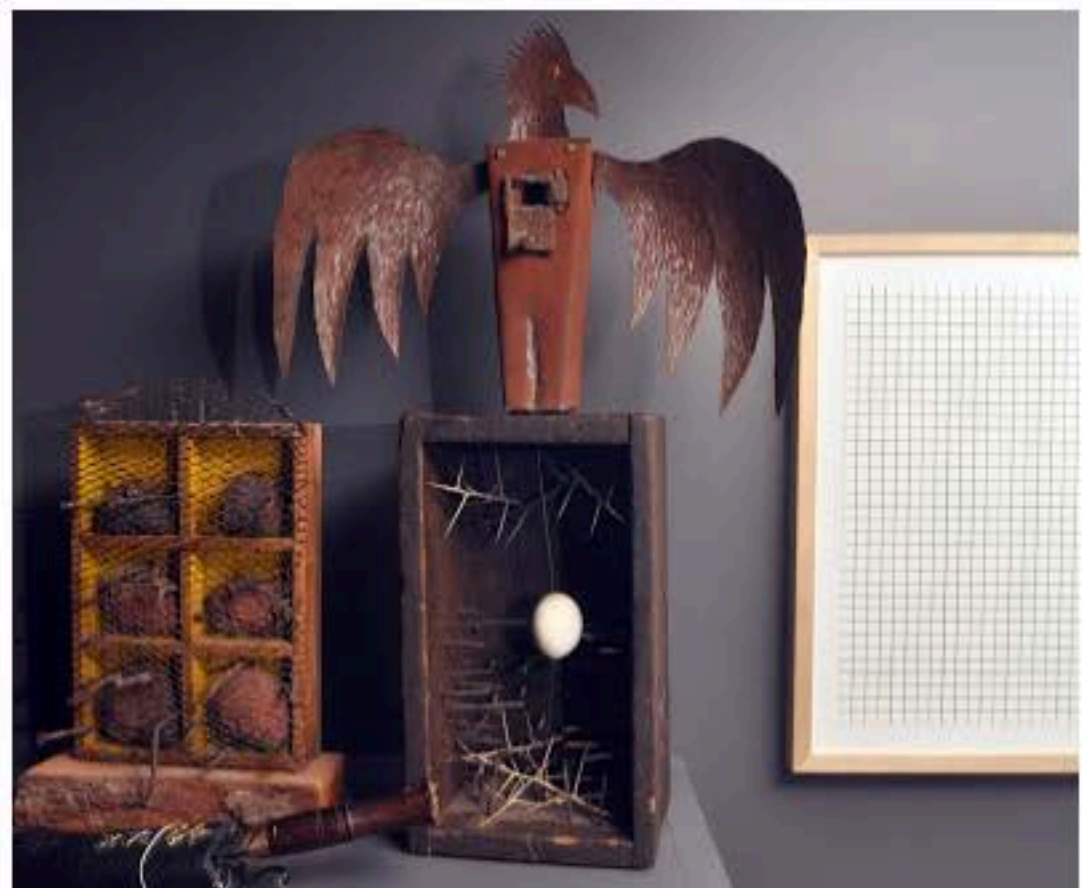

Stacey Ballis

 Follow

BLOG ARCHIVE

▼ 2018 (4)

The stairs also created this little nook that we made cozy.

Charming Suitor, as you all know, is a serious wine collector, and so the wine cellar was a space we really needed to get right!

Vinotemp did all the custom racking as well as providing the equipment that maintains the temp and humidity. All the bottles are sleeping happily, as is the country ham. Our contractors did all the details like reusing the lath from other areas of the space that got demoed for cladding the ceiling, and creating trim and wainscoting out of the old staircase we removed. Geniuses!

We loved having this bathroom as our primary bath for eighteen months while we waited for our Master Bath to be done.

