Maintenance

Unlike timber decking, Natura™ composite decking requires no treatment or staining. All that is required to keep it looking its best is an occasional wash, which means you have more time to use your decking for what it's meant for - relaxing.

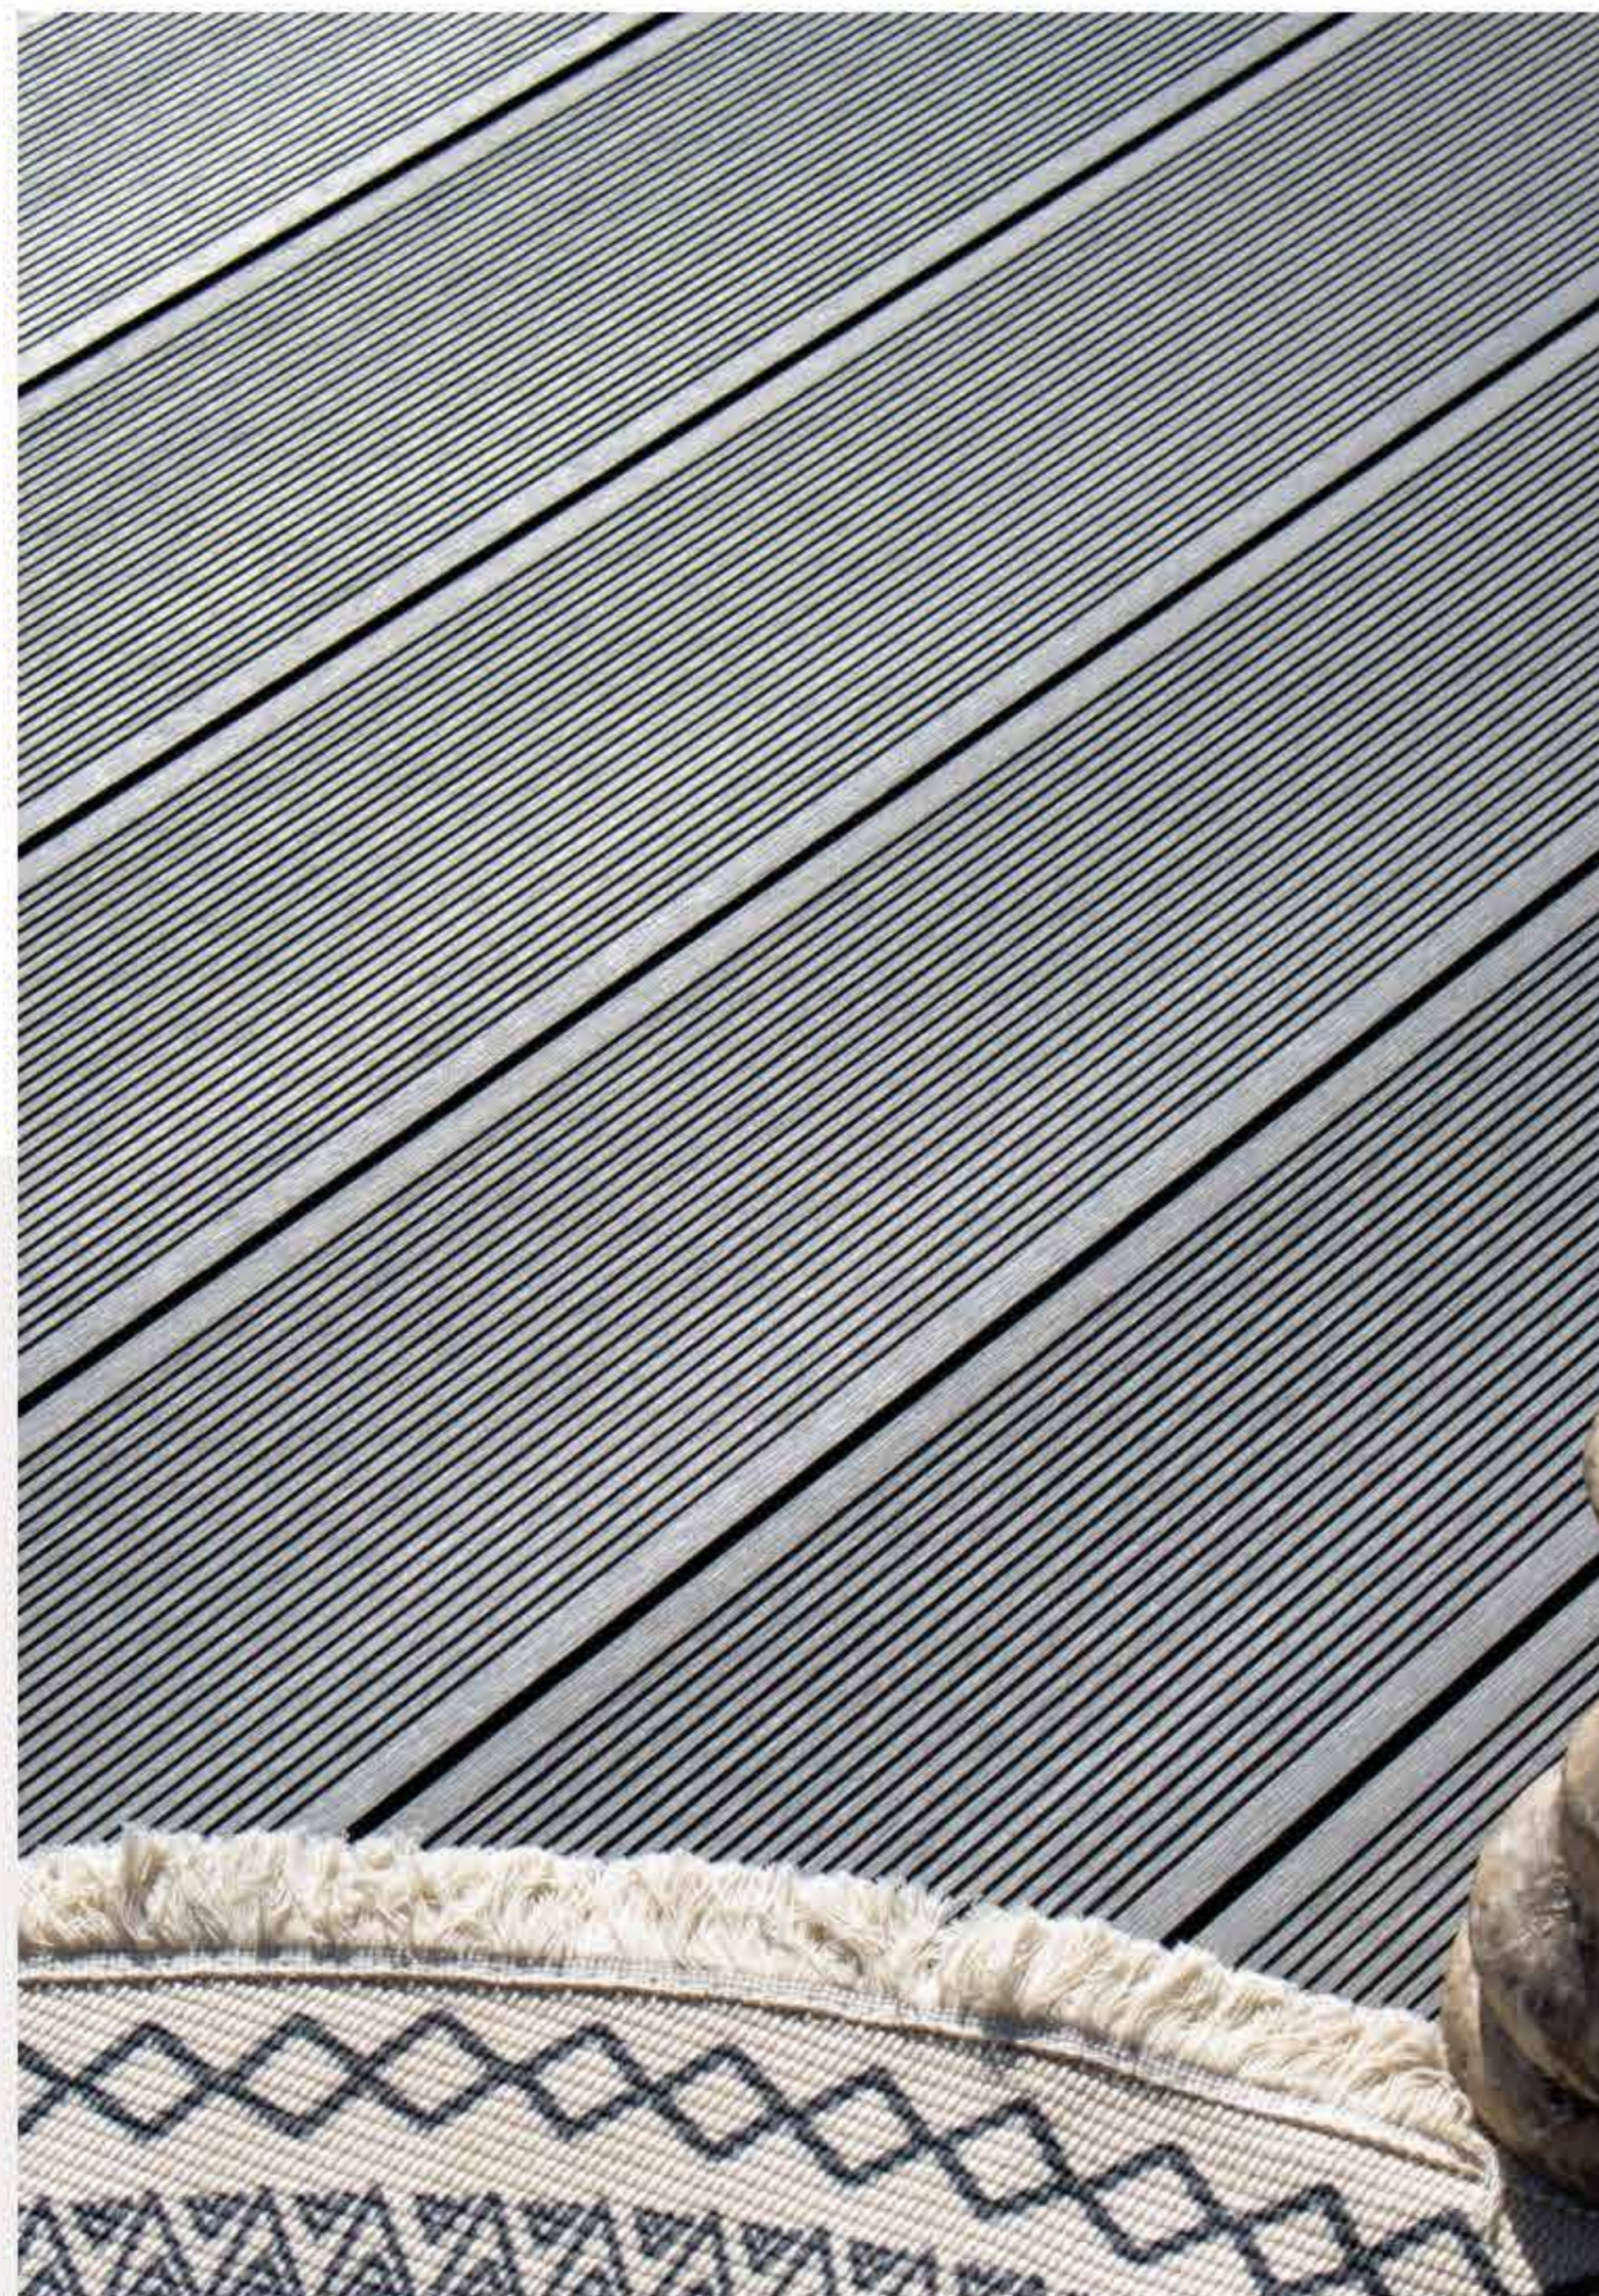

Natura™ Decking is manufactured from composition of wood flour and plastic, resulting in a material that has warmth and charm of wood without the drawbacks. Natura composite will never rot, twist, splinter or crack, and is very long lasting

Maintenance tips for your outdoor space:

- OVAEDA decking doesn't need to be treated but periodic maintenance with mild soapy water will keep decking looking its best. Work in small manageable areas and always rinse with clean water then allow to air-dry completely.
- Use a soft-medium plastic bristle deck brush to clean, avoiding abrasive natural fibre brushes as these can dull the surface (particularly on a capped product)
- Gently shower with soap and water to get rid of dust, leaves, dirt when required.
- In winter, use a small amount of granulated salt to remove ice, then simple wash off with warm water when the weather warms up.

Unlike natural stone, Rocco™ porcelain requires no form of treating or sealing. All that is required to keep it looking its best is an occasional wash, which means you have more time to enjoy your new outdoor space.

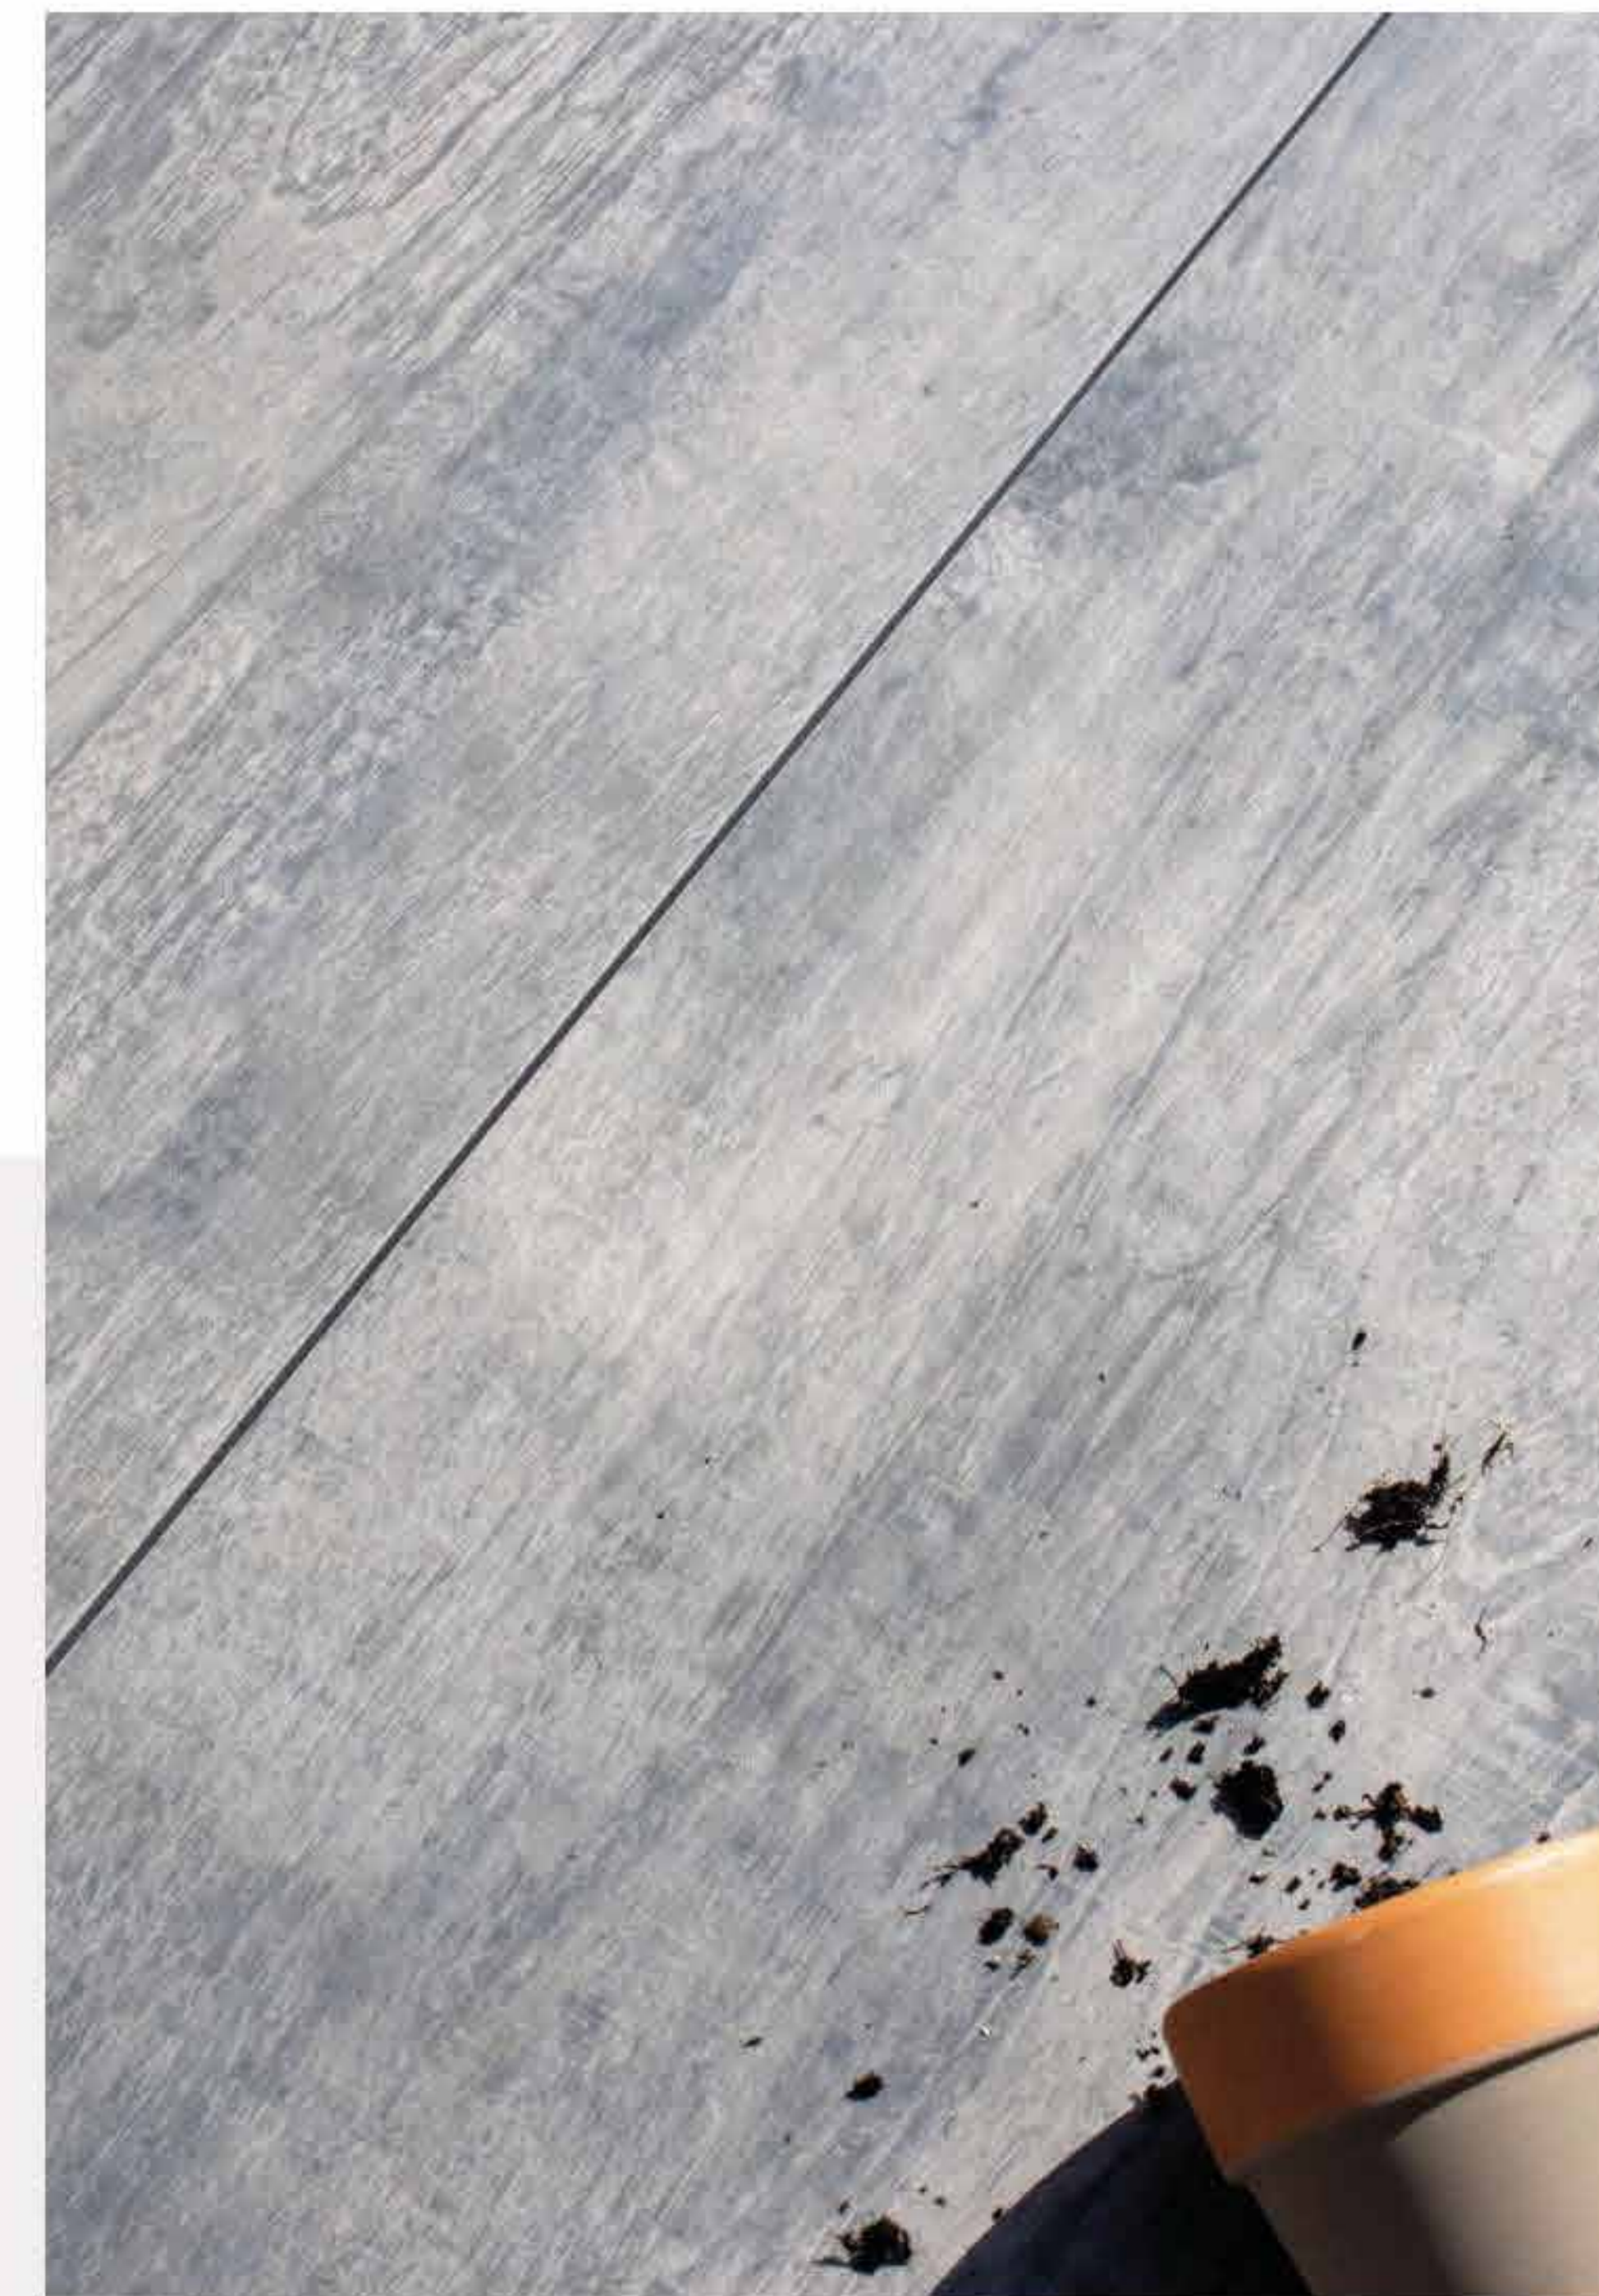

Porcelain paving is formed by baking a mixture of clay, sand and other minerals in a high-temperature kiln. This formulation results in an incredibly durable and hard-wearing surface that will keep its stunning finish over time.
