Mother's Day 2022: 21 gifts your mum actually wants to receive

By Joey Wong

This year's Mother's Day lands on 8 May, which gives you approximately two weeks to get your gift, get it wrapped and hand-write a card that will make mum coo and smile and maybe even cry a little.

Before we begin: call your mother, she misses you. Now that we have that out of the way, we're less than a month away from the one day of the year your mother will feel no guilt about letting you know you don't spend enough time with her; don't call her enough; aren't eating enough. And in honour of this day that celebrates mum — be it new mums, mums-to-be, surrogate mums, bus mums, grandmothers — here are some gifting ideas that should, really, only be a blueprint for what you actually get mum. You know her best! Put some thought into it, please.

Mamma Mia, It's Mother's Day!

For the mum who prefers tea:

Tea might, apologies, not be everyone's cup of tea, especially if it's in the gift-giving context, which, like candles, can often be seen as an afterthought; a last-minute throwaway. But if mother wants tea, then mother must have the best tea. Tea WG's limited-edition Sakura! Sakura! green tea blend carries notes of wild Rainier cherry and sweet rose petals and comes incased in a collectable tea tin that mum will most likely repurpose as something that holds spools of threads. Errant buttons.

Or, go for something extra special from Paper & Tea, an artisanal tea brand that's just touched down in Hong Kong from Germany. Chocolate Cure N725 blends cocoa beans with Pu-erh for a chocolately infusion that's also, well, tea.
