SOUTHWEST AIRCRAFT SEAT LEATHER TAKES ON NEW LIFE IN EPISODE OF PROJECT RUNWAY ALL STARS SEASON 7 ON LIFETIME

Airline shares repurposing story in “unconventional” way

DALLAS—Jan. 17, 2019—Southwest Airlines Co. (NYSE: LUV) is adding “travel haute couture” to a list of repurposed items made from recycled aircraft seat leather, underscoring a commitment to its Repurpose with Purpose initiative. Southwest has partnered with Project Runway All Stars, which challenged Season 7 contestants to create fashion items from recycled onboard and travel items, ultimately inspiring a line of leather goods to be sold by non-profit partner, Rethreaded.

For the fan-favorite Unconventional Materials episode, which aired last night, Southwest® provided items commonly used in air travel, including coffee cups, peanut packets, seat belts, and aircraft seat leather. These items were specifically chosen to showcase how everyday items can be creatively repurposed into something new. The Project Runway All Stars designers were tasked with creating a look for modern day air travel from provided materials, and crafting a leather accessory out of the upcycled Southwest aircraft seat covers, in less than 24 hours. Southwest congratulates challenge winner, Irina Shabayeva, as judges selected her design using airplane coffee cups and an aircraft seat leather clutch as their favorite. As the winning designer, Irina served as a design collaborator to Rethreaded, a women’s empowerment organization and Repurpose with Purpose partner that provides assistance to survivors of human trafficking. Employees of Rethreaded took inspiration from Irina’s accessory, plus other designers’ creations, to produce a line of accessories for sale to support the nonprofit organization and its future beneficiaries.

“The unconventional materials episode of Project Runway and Project Runway All Stars is always my favorite, and it’s wonderful to see Southwest taking a creative approach to sharing their upcycling efforts,” says Irina Shabayeva, Project Runway All Stars Season 7 contestant and episode winner. “After winning the challenge, I had a chance to visit Rethreaded in Jacksonville and was so impressed by their dedication and the work they’re doing for the survivors in their community. It was amazing to see how my design is being used for healing.”

“At Southwest, we have long been dedicated to global citizenship and Repurpose with Purpose allows us lead in that effort while continuously minimizing our environmental footprint and maximizing our social impact,” said Linda Rutherford, Southwest Airlines Senior Vice President and Chief Communications Officer. “We are committed to continuing our upcycling initiative and are thrilled to showcase our creative upcycling efforts through our partnership with Project Runway All Stars and our inclusion in the Unconventional Materials episode.”

In addition to serving as a design collaborator to the women of Rethreaded, Shabayeva also received $5,000 and roundtrip air travel for two on Southwest for her winning design.

Southwest is offering one lucky person and a guest the chance to win roundtrip airfare to any Southwest destination, along with a line of Project Runway All Stars-inspired travel accessories created by Rethreaded. These limited edition accessories are made with upcycled Southwest seat leather and can only be found at Rethreaded.com for a limited time. Starting today, Customers traveling on Southwest can enjoy the Project Runway All Stars TV Series Channel on the Inflight Entertainment Portal via the Southwest mobile app on their personal devices, or a laptop via Southwestwifi.com. This exclusive channel includes the Unconventional Materials episode from Season 7, as well as behind-the-scenes content, and videos that highlight Southwest’s Repurpose with Purpose partners.

Launched in 2013, Repurpose with Purpose is a Southwest initiative that upcycles, downcycles, and recycles discarded material into useful products with the help of partner organizations. The initial phase of Repurpose with Purpose began with the Evolve retrofit program, which replaced Southwest’s leather aircraft seat covers at that time. The latest phase of the program launched in 2017 with the goal of repurposing seat covers and other discarded materials like blankets, life jackets, aircraft engines, and billboards. Since 2017, Repurpose with Purpose has repurposed more than one million pounds of discarded material, reducing the amount of waste Southwest sends to landfills, while also generating social and economic opportunities for communities.

ABOUT RETHREADED

Rethreaded's mission is to renew hope, reignite dreams and release potential for survivors of human trafficking locally and globally through business. Rethreaded is a mindful gift company that provides long term employment coupled with mental health services to survivors of human trafficking in Jacksonville, FL.

Rethreaded provides a second chance at life through employment for survivors of human trafficking in Jacksonville, Florida.

Rethreaded started with a simple idea and a strong passion from its founder, Kristin Keen. She began by forming relationships with women on the street and making prison visits, and realized that the greatest need was for a safe, supportive work environment where the women could earn money while learning a skill and experiencing continued healing through community. Working in partnership with local non-profits, in Jacksonville, Rethreaded hired its first full-time employee in November 2012. Since inception Rethreaded has empowered over 40 women and provided over 60,000 hours of work for survivors of human trafficking.

Rethreaded works to change lives through business and guarantees that every purchase changes lives.

Rethreaded has been a Southwest Airlines Repurpose with Purpose Partner since 2017. Through this collaboration, the women of Rethreaded have become trained artisans and make the jewelry and accessories from upcycled materials donated by the airline. Thousands of pounds of retired leather airline seat covers are being given a second life as beautiful new accessories, while also giving women a second chance at life through employment.
