I got this paddle board for my little one and he loves it! My husband and I got SUPs last year and he's been wanting his own ever since. The color is bright and fun and the shorter paddle is much easier for him to handle. We can't wait to see his skills improve this summer!

TIPS & RECOMMENDATIONS

★ Start your child close to the shore.

★ Life jacket and ankle leash are recommended.

★ For beginnings: start them on their knees with a kayak blade.

★ For intermediates: start them on their knees and encourage them to stand up on one foot after another while looking at the horizon. Use a kayak blade or a SUP paddle depending on their skill level.

★ Ask them to keep their knees slightly bent to stay grounded and balanced while standing.

★ Practice forward stroke. Instruct them to keep the paddle close to the rail.

★ Practice reverse stroke to help them learn how to turn around.

★ Get into deeper water and practice getting back on top of the paddle board from the water. Have them locate the center of the board and ask them to reach for the handle to pull themselves on top of the board.

★ In strong currents, attach a rope through the D-ring and ensure you can pull the board back at any given moment while teaching them how to use the board. Alternatively, you can anchor the board using the iROCKER SUP Anchor and have them practice in a designated area.
