

*Fire In My Heart,
Ice In My Veins*

A journal for young adults and teenagers

By Enid Traisman, MSW

Fire In My Heart, Ice In My Veins

By Enid Samuel Traisman, M.S.W.

Fire in My Heart, Ice in My Veins

Word of your death greeted me like
A wave of despair
Drowning out a bonfire of hope.

The fire in my heart,
Gave way to
The ice running through my veins.

Your death caught me from behind,
Like cold fingers gripping the back of my neck
Forcing my heart to crack open.

Your death is the fire that ravages
All through the forests of my soul,
Leaving black and grey ashes in its wake.
In the shade suddenly drawn down around,
I will plant memories of you
And inhale their sweet smell in the spring.

The fire in my heart thawed the ice running through my veins.

Life will always follow after death,
As even the longest, darkest of nights
Are followed by the light of day.

By David G. Traisman

A Very Special Person Has Died

Nobody will ever realize exactly how much you meant to me; it was just between you and me.
Amy, 15

I want to begin this journal describing who you were and what you meant to me.

Funeral / Memorial Service

The funeral felt so unreal, like I was watching a movie. It wasn't really us, just actors who looked like us.
Alex, 18

On this page, I will describe the funeral service, the people who spoke and the personal touches that reflected your life and personality.

This is how I felt being there (or if I didn't go, why I didn't go).

Finish this picture to represent yourself.

About the Author

Enid Samuel Traisman, M.S.W., is a therapist specializing in bereavement and loss in Portland, Oregon. She facilitates grief support groups, conducts a part-time private practice and presents seminars to caregivers and grieving people. Enid is also the author of I Remember, I Remember, a journal for adults, A Child Remembers, a journal for children ages 8-12, and My Personal Pet Remembrance Journal.

Special thanks to Centering Corporation and Ben and Janet Sieff; especially Janet for her wonderful ideas and endless enthusiasm.

To David, my husband, for his beautiful poem and his support.

And to the Dougy Center for Grieving Children and their grieving children. The caring feedback about the contents of this journal was helpful and deeply appreciated.

Visit our new website for journal entries. This site is designed to let you share your stories, illustrations, help items and other information that you share in the journal in a online anonymous environment. Your stories and illustrations can help and that is why we would like you to share them.

www.fireinmyheart.com