

RELEASE DATE: Immediate

NASC (National Access & Scaffolding Confederation) and Leach's

The NASC has been a major driving force behind many of the improvements seen throughout the Scaffolding Industry. As the leading specialist supplier of Scaffolding and Height Safety Supplies, Leach's is thrilled to announce that they have joined the NASC as formal members.

After a successful visit from the recently appointed NASC CEO, Clive Dickin, it became clear that the ethos and passion to see safety standards and efficiency improved throughout the scaffolding industry was shared by both parties.

With the two organisations now communicating and talking directly with each other, it can only result in even greater improvements for the scaffolding industry in the years to come.

This new step from Leach's shows their continued commitment to providing scaffolders with the latest innovations and their dedication to working with industry leading organisations to help improve the future of scaffolding in the UK and Beyond.

"We're looking forward to working with members of the NASC and indeed the NASC themselves to continue developing products and innovations to meet the challenges that face our industry. We are all about making the industry safer and improving the working lives of scaffolders."

- Grant Harris, Leach's Sales Team Leader
