

Dance star Darcey gets a taste of Skye

A Skye business is to feature on a TV show featuring Darcey Bussell next week.

Last year True North TV Productions approached Chris and Meena Watts (pictured) of the Isle of Skye Sea Salt Company to ask if they would like to be included in a documentary series about the west coast being made for Channel 4.

Meena said: “We were delighted to take part as we love promoting Skye and we feel the island itself and the dramatic backdrop of Loch Snizort, where our salt production site is based, underlines the eco-friendly and natural provenance of our sea salt.

“Equally important, it gives us the opportunity to promote the Scottish food and drink industry of which we are very proud to be a part.”

The couple were even more thrilled when they found out Darcey Bussell was going to be the presenter. Millions of TV viewers will recognise her as a judge in ‘Strictly Come Dancing’ and she is world famous as a former principal of the Royal Ballet.

Meena said: “As a lover of dance and having introduced Bollywood dancing to Skye, I nearly fell off my seat when the producer, after her initial visit, mentioned the presenter’s name! I am still pinching myself. It was such a pleasure to have this charming, gracious and beautiful presenter on our site.

“We, in turn, were delighted to promote Skye at its best.”

Chris said: “It’s always exciting to be featured on television as it gives us the chance to promote Skye and our multi-award winning sea salt product. Darcey and the crew were hugely complimentary of our sustainable sea salt process and its environmental credentials.”

The visit took place during a non-lock down period and complied with Covid safety regulations.

The first episode of ‘Darcey Bussell’s Wild Coasts of Scotland’ covers Skye and will be shown on More4 on Monday 8th February at 9pm.
