

ISOLATION TAILORED FOR YOU

WHAT'S NEXT?

See below for instructions regarding your ear impressions. Please be sure to complete these steps before mailing your impressions to us.

GET YOUR EAR IMPRESSIONS TAKEN

Locate an audiology office near you and contact the audiologist to find out the fees and set an appointment. We recommend shopping around as ear impression costs can vary significantly. Click here to view and download our audiologist instruction sheet. We recommend taking the instructions with you to show the audiologist when you go in for your impressions.

VERIFY YOUR IMPRESSIONS

Once you have your impressions in hand, please email a few photos of them to impressions@meeaudio.com, along with your order number. We will visually inspect them for issues that may prevent a good fit of the end product. This can help avoid the delay and expense of sending impressions back and forth if they are not adequate. Below are some examples of the best angles for photographing your impressions.

SEND THEM TO US

Once your impressions have been approved by our team, you will receive an email with further instructions on how and where to ship your impressions. Please do not ship your impressions until they have been approved.

Upon receiving your impressions, an order status update email confirming that we have received your impressions will be sent to you. You will continue to receive order status update emails as your order progresses through our manufacturing process, and then again once your order ships. The status of your custom-fit order can also be viewed in your account order history.
