

Bountiful Brassicas

Cabbage Red Express

63 days to maturity. Compact plant with dense, solid, oval heads. These super early deep red-purple cabbage weighs 2 – 4 pounds and are bred for Canada and Northern United States. Red Express is a medium size cabbage that can be spaced closer than other varieties.

Kale Scarlet

50 days to maturity. This frilly-leaved kale grows to be 2 – 3 feet tall with sturdy leaves that are heavily curled. Scarlet is a deep red-purple color and gets even more vibrant as the weather cools down. Looks gorgeous in the garden and on your plates. Great for baby leaf and bunching.

Kale Black Magic

60 days to maturity. A cool season green that is filled with nutrients and flavor. Black Magic is a cool season green that produces large narrow dark green leaves that are great for baby kale, frying into chips or sautéing. Black Magic consists of a rich flavor which improves with frost. Also known as Dinosaur Kale or Tuscan Kale.

Mustard Black Knight

45 – 55 days to maturity. A dark green tatsoi that does not contain the normal “cabbage” taste that most tatsoi contains. Black Knight is spoon shaped, thick and compact. It contains a very high vitamin content. The leaves can be enjoyed raw or stir-fried.

Mustard Green & Purple Wave

These large upright plants grow to be 16 – 18 inches tall. They are a southern curled type but with more deeply frilled and finely cut leaves. Mustard Green is the darkest green of any curly mustard while Purple Wave, being a cross between Osaka Purple and Green Wave, is a light purple with green on the edges of the leaves.

Broccoli Romanesco

75 – 100 days to maturity. These bright green, whorled heads on a cauliflower-type plant are widely grown in northern Italy. They look gorgeous with their spirals and taste even better than the finest broccoli. Romanesco has a pleasing, nutty taste to them that can be enjoyed raw but if cooked lightly, will still retain its flavor and unique texture.

Broccoli Rapini

42 days to maturity. Rapini is the most versatile broccoli raab variety for growing throughout the season. They do well in spring and summer harvest as well as overwintering in mild climates. These large dark green broccoli raab is great lightly sautéed, boiled in soups or just fresh out of the garden.

Broccoli Purple

120 - 200 days to maturity. Broccoli Purple grows on plants that are 24 – 36 inches tall. These purple broccoli turn green when cooked and has a very sweet flavor. A very frost hardy, bushy plant that grows slowly through the winter and sprouts out prolifically in spring, for spring harvest.
