As an artist I find inspiration in the organized chaos of the natural environment. My creative process begins with distilling essential structures and then intuitively applying those patterns across my canvas. What results are abstractions of natural forms that symbolize my own personal meditations.

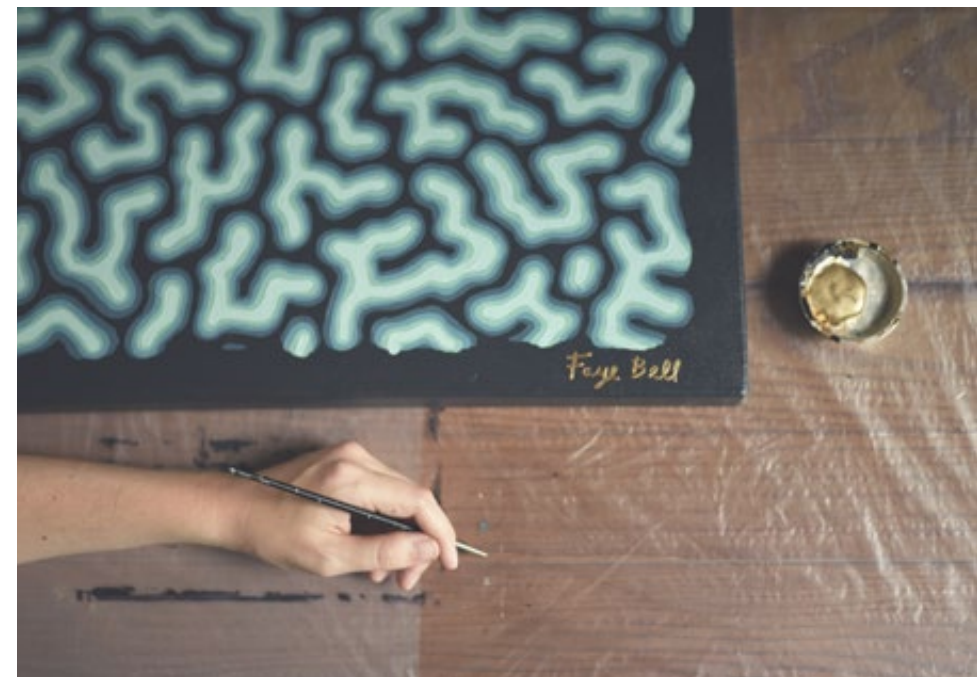

In the following chapters you'll see how I've translated this body of work into a collection of large-format, commercial-grade wallcoverings.

These repeat patterns, developed using advanced digital design techniques, have moved my paintings beyond the bounds of the canvas and into interior spaces as a form of immersive art. Additionally, the handmade aesthetic of the original work has been maintained using the same digital tools. For all these reasons and more I am beyond excited to share with you my debut wallcovering collection.

I look forward to hearing what you see in the work.
