It can be tricky to transition from a wet and sandy bathing suit to normal clothing, so picking the right beach outfit is often a confusing, messy, and anxiety-inducing experience, leaving even the chicest beach-goers among us ready to resign ourselves to the loosest, easiest-to-grab items in our closets. However, it is, in fact, possible to look chic on the beach, according to fashion stylist Madeleine Kennedy. Below, she reviews a variety of outfit options that look great and feel comfortable in spite of all the sun and sand.

Cougar Soprato Luxmotion Leather Water-Repellent Sandal

I never thought a beach shoe could be chic until I saw this pair from Cougar. It's made from soft nappa leather —one of Kennedy's preferred fabrics for a beach outfit —and is resistant to water and stain damage. The pair is made for optimal comfort, with a padded sole and strap meant to cushion your feet during long walks on the beach, boardwalk, or side of the pool. Plus, they're anti-slip, so there's no need to worry while you're traversing wet, slippery terrain.

Customer Review: "The perfect sandal! I can dress them up or down and I ALWAYS get compliments. Super comfy, lightweight, and give just a touch of added height!" -Cougar
