Every season is accompanied by new fashion trends—or style statements that have simply ricocheted back into relevance. This year, Moon Boots—the pillowy winter footwear brand popularized in the '60s and '70s—have reached new heights, popping up on the feet of every influencer and model stepping out in winter weather. As with many retro resurgences, though, Moon Boots can be pretty divisive. On one hand, they're the it winter boot silhouette of 2024; on the other, they're chunkier and demand more attention than many modern-day silhouettes—and they're expensive to boot (pun definitely intended).

Cougar Magneto Nylon Waterproof Winter Boot with PrimaLoft

If you're headed out on a winter getaway with plans of actually tromping through the snow, you may want to skip the Moon Boots and opt for a silhouette that's actually waterproof—not just water-repellent. The Cougar Magneto Nylon Waterproof Winter Boot with PrimaLoft is the perfect choice. These boots feature a modern play on the retro puff silhouette, complete with a platform sole and a promise to keep your feet warm and dry with every step.

They're sold in metallic bronze, black, and silver colorways, all of which look undeniably fashion-forward. Pair any of the three colors with warm black leggings, like the Athleta Rainier Tight and a black fleece quarter zip, like the Columbia Women's Glacial IV Half Zip Fleece. Complete the look with a coordinating, mid-length statement puffer, like the Save the Duck Women's Isabel Hooded Puffer Coat.
