BEAUTY BUZZ

Danielle Joubert, SumaNurica's product manager, spills on the latest trend: copper!

What exactly are copper peptides?

Copper peptides are small protein fragments that are bound together with a copper ion. They occur naturally in our body and are involved in various biological processes, including tissue repair and regeneration.

Why do we want them on our skin?

Skincare benefits include promoting collagen production, reducing the appearance of fine lines and wrinkles, antioxidant protection and [helping to aid] in wound healing with anti-inflammatory properties.

How do we use copper skincare?

Usually found in targeted skincare products such as serums, they can be used morning and night after cleansing. Always make sure you follow with an SPF during the day.

Which skin types is this good for?

Copper peptides are great for most skin types, including ageing, acne-prone and sensitive skin.

Tell us about SumaNurica's new GHK-Cu Repairing Serum...

It's formulated with copper peptides to relieve the appearance of redness and work to restore and strengthen your skin barrier. It has a two-part packaging that you activate before use to guarantee a fresher formulation for maximum results.

Advice and tips from Beauty Writer Holly Hampton-Thayers

TIP
 Try applying polish with three strokes per nail, plus an extra swipe across the tip to prevent chipping.
